BIOGRAPHY

CONCERNING the supreme Englishman of Elizabethan England, it is impossible to construct an adequate personal history built solely out of facts of accredited record.

Y<sup>e</sup> only an indubitable biography bare of tradition, colourless of dazzlement from the light exhaustlessly burning in Shakespeare's writings, can fulfil the modern desire for sure knowledge of the events in Shakespeare's life.

The impossibility of much assured knowledge grows naturally out of a primary fact — social habit in Elizabethan England. Since into the scope of this fact Shakespeare was born, it becomes significant, incidentally, at the outset, to see that it directly affects the question of such biography as the modern mind desires.

The utmost possible appreciation of the genius of Shakespeare in his day, here and there, among the more advanced minds, or generally among the people with whom he lived, could not greatly change the way of life then belonging to the people as a whole. That way of life led them to be incapable of exact facts even about the titled and official personages for whom they greatly cared. It led them to care nothing in particular for any facts about a commoner, an actor and writer of plays. Only rank, office under state or church, and landed property insured a man any precise current record. Hence it was natural, and not yet grown so remote and uncommon that it need be declaimed against, that Shakespeare's external life remained traceable chiefly through legal documents as to his personal emotions, and through haphazard mention as to his artistic achievements. It is not surprising, nor is it necessarily a mercenary sign in him, that memoranda as to money matters multiplied toward the close of his life, as he more and more emerged, because of his artistic success, from the vagueness naturally encircling him as a playwright of genius into the prominence naturally attaching to him as an Englishman of property.

BIOGRAPHY

It is through no uncommon happening to the son of a rising English tradesman that the birthday of that baby of world-wide homage, William Shakespeare, is not a matter of record, but that his christening day is. The pervading importance of the church as an English institution lends the light by which he first is seen. The earliest parish register of the Church of the Holy Trinity at Stratford-on-Avon in Warwickshire — a thick folio of vellum bound in metal-edged leather, wherein were transcribed in 1600 and later the entries of baptisms, marriages, and funerals in the parish — still holds one page whose fourth line from the top, written in church Latin, has come to be of eminent interest:

1564. 'April 26. Gulielmus filius Johannes Shakspere.'

The next actually certain and indisputable record extant directly and personally concerning Shakespeare himself follows eighteen years later — his marriage.

In the absence of light upon his boyhood and youth which is not borrowed from interweaving a series of traditions, dating a century or so later, with facts concerning his family, and with inferences that are more or less matters of individual judgment, it seems best were to separate from Shakespeare's story these traditions and inferences, and to place all that remains—the facts of record—in order, leaving them to betray what they may of the pathway of his life.

Such mute and meagre but trustworthy marks along his trail are like the impersonal traces only here and there remaining to indicate, to each silently observing eye, which direction a boyish singer took whose voice and glance once meant the utmost vividness possible to young life.

The same volume holding the entry of Shakespeare's baptism contains two prior entries of the baptism of children of John Shakespeare: Jone, September 15, 1558, and Margareta, December 2, 1562. The funeral of Margaret is set down in the following April, but whether or not a six-year-old sister Jone was left to greet the baby brother when he came into the world cannot be certain, since, although the church register fails to record Jone's death, it records later the birth of a second Jone, and as no other notice of Jone I remains, she may have died either after or before William was born.

Silences like these in such records reveal the necessarily incomplete nature of the evidence which yet must be clung to if what measure of sure knowledge of the Poet is left standing after three intervening centuries is to be sifted out of the darkness of the past.

The parish of Aston Cantlowe in Wilmecote, where Shakespeare's mother, Mary Arden, lived as a girl, had apparently not even begun to keep registers either carefully or carelessly when she and John Shakespeare were married. But property of as substantial a kind as her father, Robert Arden, husbandman, and his father Thomas, also a farmer, possess it, does not fail to entitle the Ardens to more detailed and certain documentary record than remains of their poorer neighbours, the Shakespeares of Snitterfield, from whom John Shakespeare sprang, and whence he came to settle in Stratford, leaving his father Richard and brother Henry there employed in farming.

When Robert Arden of Wilmecote and his father Thomas were assessed for one of the subsidies levied on his subjects by Henry VIII, they were two of the four men of greatest substance in the parish. And a later subsidy found Robert the second richest man. His will, now in the Registry Court of Worcester, leaves to his youngest daughter Mary his best piece of land, Ashbies, some fifty-four acres out of his total acreage of a hundred and fifty or so, together with the farm-house, the 'crop apone the grounde' standing 'as hitt is,' and 'in moneye vi/i xiiis iiijd.' This will arranges for the living of his widow in the same house with his daughter Alice, who was the other executor with Mary of his estate. Toward Mary's marriage as prospective and taking place later, this will of November, 1556, bears the witness lacking from the parish register.

If, when William was born, Mrs. Shakespeare's first child, Jone, as well as her second, Margaret, had died, to how tender a welcome for the first-born son do these formal dry parchments lend their halting testimony!

A plague ravaged Stratford in July of Shakespeare's birth-year, and the town books show that Shakespeare's father contributed toward the relief of the town. Whether or not his mother trembled then for the peril to her last-born three-months-old baby, certainly the nations may tremble now at the conjecture of what the world might be without its Shakespeare.

BIOGRAPHY

There is record left in Stratford that in the same autumn of 1556 when Robert Arden died John Shakespeare made substantial preparation for living well, by purchasing two properties, a house and garden in Greenhill Street, and a double house with a garden in Henley Street, now known to travellers as the Shakespeare Museum, side by side with the house still longer known as 'the Birthplace.' His purchase was subject to the usual payment of a fee yearly to the lord of the manor, the Earl of Warwick; and it happens that a list taken for the queen later, in 1590, of the Henley Street tenants paying manorial fees to the great noble of the shire, identifies this house as the home to which Shakespeare was born in 1564, and to which, some seven years before his birth, his mother came as a bride.

The very earliest reference, 1552, made to his father in the Stratford records also connects him with Henley Street. He was then fined 12*d.* for making a refuse-heap there, two other burghers being fined along with him to the same amount for a like offence. The simple sanitary regulations of a sixteenth-century country town are thus illustrated. They consisted, it appears from the records, in preferring as dumping places several dispersed specified 'public dung-hills.'

The same year as the purchase of his home in Henley Street, John Shakespeare was summoned to serve on a jury. The style and title then given him is 'John Shakespeare, glover.' Again is it so given him thirty years later, in a legal paper preserving the fact that he went to the neighbouring town of Coventry to give bail for a Stratford tinker whom he thus befriended. From other remaining records of his transactions and suits, it comes out that he dealt in various articles made of leather and also in grain, malt, and such country produce.

By the time his first son was born, 'John Shakspeare, glover,' had risen to successive town offices: first, 1557, ale-taster, or tester for the town of malt liquors and bread; then town councillor; constable; affeeror, that is, assessor of just such fines as he and his fellow-townsmen had to pay for their individual dirt-heaps; chamberlain, or treasurer; and, finally, the next year after his son was born, alderman. He was so repeatedly employed as auditor for the town of the chamberlains' accounts and as appraiser of property that it would seem he must have been recognized as a man of practical ability and of a skill in reckoning not in the least inconsistent — at a period when accounts were cast with counters, as the shepherd's talk in 'Winter's Tale' (IV. iii. 38) illustrates — with another fact shown by the town papers, that, like most of his generation in Stratford, he signed his name with a mark.

In 1567, when he was first nominated for head bailiff or mayor, he is first written down as 'Mr Shakspeyr.' The important small prefix 'Mr.' is repeated in 1568, the year when he was successful in being elected to that office, the same year also when his first application was made to the College of Heralds for a coat of arms. The parish register reflects his increasing social importance in the same slight but significant manner in the further course of chronicling the baptism of his children: Gilbert, Oct. 13, 1566; Jone, April 15, 1569; Anna, Sept. 28, 1569 (buried in April, 1571); Richard, Mch. 11, 1574; Edmund, May 3, 1580. The 'Johannes Shakspeare' of the earlier entries becomes 'Magistri Shakspere' in 1571, and thereafter always appears as 'Mr.'

BIOGRAPHY

The next mark along the Shakespeare trail is this striking fact: As mayor of Stratford, Shakespeare's father entertained actors officially for the first time in the town's history. Between Michaelmas, 1568 and 1569, within his term of office, when Shakespeare was a five-year-old urchin, the queen's and the Earl of Leicester's players came to town and were given an official welcome. They may have come before without it, of course. In such case no one now is likely to be the wiser. Their coming is in ken now because Mayor John Shakespeare officially paid the queen's players nine shillings and the earl's twelve pence for first performances before himself and the aldermen, the town being admitted free. Admission might be charged at later performances; but, according to custom, the 'Mayor's play' was open to the public.

'To the Mayor's play,' writes Willis, a man born in the neighbouring city of Gloucester, the same year as William Shakespeare, 'every one that will comes in without money, the Mayor giving unto the players a reward as he thinks fit to shew respect unto them. At such a play my father tooke me with him, and made mee stand betweene his leggs as he sate upon one of the benches, where wee saw and heard very well. . . . This sight tooke such impression in mee that when I came towards mans estate it was as fresh in my memory as if I had seen it newly acted.* This Willis records in 'Mount Tabor. Private Exercises of a Penitent Sinner, published in the yeare of his age 77 Anno Dom. 1639.' Will Shakespeare's mind can scarcely be supposed to be less impressionable.

The Coventry Corpus Christi Playe were playing

BIOGRAPHY

during Shakespeare's youth. They played at Bristol in 1570, and their road ran through Stratford. In 1575, when Shakespeare was eleven, Queen Elizabeth was entertained by Leicester with wide-heralded festivities and shows at Kenilworth, within a walk of Stratford. Coventry is but five miles farther on.

In the next year, 1576, and the next, companies of players came to Stratford, and again from 1579 on for eight years each twelvemonth brought its actors to Shakespeare's town. 1587, the richest year of all, brought five companies, the queen's, Leicester's, and Essex's among them.

Teaching was to be had free to boys of Stratford at the 'Kings New School.' It was in charge of Walter Roche in 1570, an Oxford man, fellow of Corpus Christi, and to him, in 1577, the curate of Luddington, Thomas Hunt, succeeded. Such schools led boys, after just such initial instruction in the horn-book and the b-a's as Moth makes fun with in 'Loves Labour's Lost' (V. i. 49-60), through just such a first book in Latin as William Page recites from to Parson Hugh in 'The Merry Wives of Windsor' (IV. i. 13-63), Lily's Grammar and the 'Sententiæ Pueriles' being passed, to the 'Eclogues' of Mantuanus, praised in 'Loves Labour's Lost' (IV. iii. 97-101), to Plautus, Ovid, Virgil, Seneca, Terence, Cicero, Horace, and the rudiments of Greek. It had not yet occurred to the pedagogic mind that anything but the classics was a subject for instruction, and Latin was, of course, as common as geography, physiology, and arithmetic now.

In 1571 John Shakespeare was chief alderman. In 1575 he bought an additional house, the one adjoining, now called 'the Birthplace.'

BIOGRAPHY

- So far the facts betoken comfort and prosperity. But when Shakespeare was fourteen a decided stroke of misfortune from the money point of view befell the family, through the father's mortgaging his wife's property of Ashbies to her brother-in-law, Edmund Lambert, for £40, for it led to the Shakespeares' loss of their estate.

Early in the same year, 1578, the town council agreed 'that every alderman, suche underwrytten excepted, shall paye towardes' the equipment of pikemen, billmen, and archer 'vjs. viij<sup>d</sup>.,' and 'Mr. Shaxpeare' was one of the two let off with paying less. Later in the year he and another were excused from a weekly poor-tax levied on the aldermen. The next year he is named among those failing to pay a levy on all the citizens for the purchase of armour. He and his wife parted with his individual share in Snitterfield property for £4, and they parted with her interest in other Snitterfield property for £40. He begins in 1578 to absent himself from the town council meetings, still more the next year, and then so altogether that in 1586 an alderman was chosen to fill his place, since he 'dothe not come to the halles . . . nor hath not done of longe tyme.'

Shakespeare's sister Anna died in April just before her brother's fifteenth birthday, and the sadness of this, together with the family distresses, particularly over Ashbies, regarding which repeated interviews and arrangements with the Lamberts were sought in vain by his father, must have brought Shakespeare early face to face with some of the relentless words of life.

If in the spring of the year 1580, when the £40 was to be repaid, his brother was christened Edmund in deference to Uncle Edmund Lambert, who had lent the money to the Shakespeares on such good security, the compliment did not serve to loosen his grasp upon the land. The law of the time favoured a creditor's absolute ownership of security if repayment was not made rigidly on the day specified, and though the Shakespeares claimed in their first legal appeal against Lambert, as in other complaints later, that John took his £40 across Barton Heath to Edmund at Michaelmas of 1580, and that it was refused because there were other debts that must be paid, some confusion as to the time sticks to these claims, due, it may be, to misfortune rather than fault of the Shakespeares. The result, however, remained inexorable.

BIOGRAPHY

1582. 'Datum 28 die Novembris anno regni domine nostre Elizabethæ . . . Sc. 25<sup>o</sup>.'

The church registers at Luddington and at Temple-Grafton are not extant to yield record of Shakespeare's marriage as taking place in 1582. It is a fact assured by a bond preserved in Worcester at the bishop's registry. This bond was made in anticipation of the marriage and to guarantee the bishop of the diocese, who would be held responsible for such a course as was taken, from any objection that might be made against him for allowing this marriage of 'William Shagspere and Anne Hathawey, of Stratford in the diocese of Worcester,' to take place with but once asking of the banns, instead of the usual thrice. It happens that there is also preserved in the bishop's registers in Worcester an entry for a marriage license, November 27, 1582, between 'Willielmum Shaxpere' and 'Annam Whateley de Temple Grafton'—how explicable, whether the same William and Anne or not, nobody knows.

BIOGRAPHY

The Stratford registers supply the next facts on record and introduce Shakespeare as father:

1583. 'B. May 26. Susanna, daughter to William Shakspeare.'

1585. 'B. February 2. Hamnet & Judeth, sonne and daughter to William Shakspeare.'

Shakespeare's uncles, Henry Shakespeare of Snitterfield and Edmund Lambert of Wilmecote, cross the path of his family fortunes in 1587. Henry owed £22. His debtor claimed that John Shakespeare had made himself responsible if Henry did not pay it. He did not, and John was troubled with a series of suits over it. Edmund, the withholder of Ashbies, died, and his son and heir John was visited by John Shakespeare, as he claimed later, with a proposition to pay the old debt, and also with a new proposition to yield him undisputed title on his payment of £40. In this new application, which was ineffective, William Shakespeare joined his father and mother, as also in the complaint brought against Lambert two years later.

1587-1589. 'Johannes Shackspeare et Maria uxor ejus, simulcum Willielmo Shackspeare filio suo,' etc.

This is the last recorded Stratford mention of Shakespeare before London mention begins. Whether he was in Stratford then, or already in London, there is no certain sign.

The final records concerning him in Stratford—his growing family, the vexed question of Ashbies, and his father's harassments—clearly provide spurs sharp enough to prick the sides of any intent a sensitive spirit might feel, either then or earlier, to win fortune to befriend him in London.

Something of the sense of injured pride and desperate ambition with which the Shakespeares would naturally cling to the lost estate echoes in these words from one of their actions for the recovery of the land 'the sayde John wrongfullie still keepeth': 'the sayde John Lamberte ys of greate wealthe and abilitie, & well frended and alied amongst gentlemen and freeholders of the countrey in the saide countie of Warwicke, where he dwelleth, and your saide oratours are of small wealthe and verey fewe frendes and alyance in the saide countie.'

This year of 1587 was the year, already noticed, when as many as five companies of actors visited Stratford, among them the Earl of Leicester's players.

1592. 'The onlie Shake-scene,' etc.

A new drama of 'Henry VI' was brought out in March of this year, at the Rose Theatre, by the players formerly Leicester's, now Lord Strange's. Talbot, as he appears in '1 Henry VI,' is spoken of that summer as 'new embalmed with the teccars of ten thousand spectators at least' in Nash's 'Pierce Pennilesse,' printed in 1592. Robert Greene wrote from his death-bed, September 4, making use of Clifford's line in '3 Henry VI,' I. iv. 137, 'O tiger's heart wrapt in a woman's hide,' for a fling at Shakespeare's sudden eminence. In his 'Groatsworth of Wit bought with a Million of Repentance,' published by his friend Henry Chettle, September 20, Greene warned 'those Gentlemen his Quondam acquaintance that spend their wits in making Plaies,' that there was 'an upstart crow, beautified with our feathers, that with his Tygers heart wrapt in a Players hide, supposes he is as well able to bumbast out a blanke verse as the best of you; & being an absolute Johannes factotum, is in his owne conceit the onlie Shake-scene in a countrie.'

BIOGRAPHY

Chettle himself, in December, in his Preface to 'Kind Heart's Dreame,' adds clearness to this scarcely disguised allusion to Shakespeare and his collaborator in '3 Henry VI' by suing for pardon to one of the two playmakers aggrieved by Greene's hit. One of them he refers to as 'learned' and the other as an actor, 'whome at that time I did not so much spare as since I wish I had . . . because myselfe have seene his demeanor no lesse civill than he excellent in the qualitie he professes;—besides divers of worship have reported his uprightnes of dealing, which argues his honesty, and his facetious grace in writing that approoves his art.'

1593. 'xviii<sup>o</sup> Aprilis.—Richard Feild . . . a booke intuled Venus and Adonis.'

But the sudden fame of Shakespeare's poem, 'Venus and Adonis,' mounted higher in the esteem of 'divers of worship' than any play could climb at that time. It was published by his fellow-townsmen from Stratford, Richard Field, whose father's estate had been appraised at home by the Poet's father the year before. Its dedication, signed by William Shakespeare, challenged with a graceful adventurousness, modest but not obsequious, the patronage of the most notable in literary taste of the young courtiers of the day, the Earl of Southampton, and won it, along with the acclaim of the town. Seven editions were issued inside of ten years. Thus the year that saw Kit Marlowe's unfortunate death saw Will Shakespeare launched on the crest of fortune. The saying of the fop Gullio in 'The Return from Parnassus,' acted at St. John's, Cambridge, in 1599, expresses in a representative way its vogue: 'O sweet Mr Shakespeare! I'll have his picture in my study at the Court. . . . Let the duncishipp sweet Mr. Shakspeare, and to honour him will lay his Venus and Adonis under my pillow, as we read of one (I do not well remember his name, but I am sure he was a king) slept with Homer under his bed's head.'

1594. '9 May. Mr. Harrison . . . a booke intituled the Ravysheiment of Lucrece.'

Shakspeare's second dedication to Southampton in his 'Lucrece' revealed his advance into his patron's favour, and the poem received such choice praise among writers as Drayton gave it in his 'Legend of Mathilda' (1594), referring to Lucrece of Rome as 'Latel<sup>y</sup> re-vivd to live another age,' and such direct allusion and specific naming of the Poet as this in 'Willobie his Avisa' (1594):

· 'Though Collatine have deerely bought
To high renowne a lasting life,
And found that most in vaine have sought,
To have a faire and constant wife,
Yet Tarquyne pluckt his glistering grape,
And Shake-speare paints poore Lucrece rape.'

The triumph of the year as Poet closed with fresh honour as Player and Playwright. He appeared before Queen Elizabeth at Greenwich Palace during the holidays, as the following entry in her Treasurer's MS. accounts sets forth: 'to William Kempe, William Shakespeare and Rīcharde Burbage, servauntes to the by waye of her Majesties rewarde vj.li. xiijs. iiij*d*, in all xx*li*.'

The same December holidays, the 28th, 'The Comedie of Errors' is recorded at the Temple as 'played by the players' before the students at the Hall in Gray's Inn.

Henceforth, each holiday season during the remaining years of Elizabeth's reign, there is record of plays before her by the company to which Shakespeare belonged.

Weever's sonnet includes, along with mention of the poems, allusion to the earliest tragedy, 'Romeo and Juliet,' and another of the histories, and thus furnishes evidence of work done up to this time, in addition to the earlier histories and the comedies already named, of which contemporary record is lacking. Weever's 'more whose names I know not' is like Banquo's glass. It images the shadowy many in the background — the much unknown exactly in the royal succession of Shakespeare's achieved dramas. The Sonnet is addressed:

AD GULIELMUM SHAKESPEARE

'Honie-tong'd Shakespeare, when I saw thine issue,
I swore Apollo got them and none other
Their rosie-tainted features cloth'd in tissue,
Some heaven-born goddesse said to be their mother;

They burn in love; thy children, Shakespear het them;

From London achievements so brilliant Shakespeare's eyes were turned to Stratford by the death of his son, whose funeral is entered in the church register:

1596. 'F. August 11. Hamnet filius William Shakspere.' His uncle Henry died during the Christmas holidays, while Shakespeare's company was performing before the queen at Whitehall. His father's application this year to the College of Heralds resulted in his obtaining a pattern for a coat of arms, and a draft of the proposed grant was made out, which is still on record, though not executed.

Recorded sign in 1597 of Shakespeare's continued personal attachment to Stratford as his home, which is lacking with relation to the more intimate event of his son's death, is found in his purchase for £60 of New Place, the finest residence in the town, built for Sir Hugh Clopton in 1496; 'a pratty house of bricke and tymbre,' opposite a 'goodly Churche in a fayre street,' says a writer describing it in 1540.

Again, with relation to material affairs, record of which is demanded by custom, Shakespeare's strong continued interest in his family's affairs is revealed by the fact that a chancery suit was begun against John Lambert for recovery of Ashbies. The plea dates November 24, 1597, and a series of court orders for hearing witnesses runs from July, 1598, to October, 1599. This necessarily expensive struggle for the Arden property testifies that London success had not obscured but rather brightened the old Stratford desires. No decree of the court was ever recorded.

Letters of Stratfordians belong to this first epoch of attainment, and show Shakespeare in a position upon which his townsmen place friendly dependence, as the following extracts illustrate:

1. From a letter of January 24, 1597, from Abraham Sturley to his brother-in-law in London, Richard Quiney, whose son married Judith Shakespeare later:

‘This is one speciall remembrance from ur fathers motion. Itt seemeth bi him that our countriman, Mr. Shaksper, is willinge to disburse some monei upon some od yarde land or other att Shotterie or neare about us; he thinketh it a veri fitt patterne to move him to deale in the matter of our tithes. Bi the instructions u can geve him thereof, and bi the frendes he can make therefore, we thinke it a faire marke for him to shoote att, and not impossible to hitt. It obtained would advance him in deede, and would do us mucche good.’

By the time Shakespeare had reached his thirty-fourth year, then, even these inadequate records are enough to show that he had grasped material comfort in Stratford and artistic supremacy in London. Where he most wanted ‘endearing quiet and well-being, at home in Stratford, with family and kindred, he took pains to secure an established mansion. In the years following he proceeded to add unto it broad lands and means for its fit maintenance. Out among men, on the other hand, in the stir and stream of life in London, he was not yet content to pause, though he had achieved a mass of work in the thirty-four years of his life up to that time, so compactly summed up by a contemporary critic that his statement has served the world ever since as the best single measure of the results of genius.

This critic, Francis Meres, in a chapter in his 'Wits Commonwealth or Palladis Tamia,' compares the poets of England with the Greek and Latin poets. He parallels Shakespeare with the classics under every division of his subject: with 'the sweete wittie soule of Ovid' he links the poems and 'sugred sonnets' of 'melifluous and hony-tongued Shakespeare'; with 'Plautus and Seneca the best among the Latines for Comedy and Tragedy,' he places 'Shakespeare among the English the most excellent in both kinds for the stage.' The famous list follows: 'for comedy witnes his Gentlemen of Verona, his Errors, his Love labors lost, his Love labours wonne, his Midsummer Nights dreame, and his Merchant of Venice; for tragedy, his Richard the 2, Richard the 3, Henry the 4, King John, Titus Andronicus, and his Romeo and Juliet.' With the best lyrick poets, and the best tragick poets, with the best poets among the Greekes for Comedy and the most famous for Tragedy, and those for elegy 'the most passionate among us to bewaile and bemoane the perplexities of love,' with all in every list Shakespeare's name shines out. Other names often precede his, it is true. Who is Doctor Leg of Cambridge, may well be asked now, that he should be first on a list of English dramatists that is paired with the supreme Greek tragedians? And who are Maister Edwardes, Edwarde Earle of Oxford, Lord Buckhurst, for example, that they should rank ahead of Will

BIOGRAPHY

Shakespeare anywhere? The lesser lights of these higher-placed gentry have sputtered into blankness, while Shakespeare's holds fresh brilliancy, and suffices to redeem his contemporary critic's errors in adjudging precedence here and there by his discernment in fixing the Player-poet so early and so firmly among his stars.

Signs of Shakespeare's continuance as a Player are not less steadfast, though much less conspicuous, than as a Playwright and as a Stratfordian. His life as an actor apparently never ceased during his London successes, and in 1598, this year marking so much attainment past, it is clear that he played in Ben Jonson's 'Every Man in His Humour,' since his name appears at the head of the original list of actors.

The chief mention extant of the plays added by his 'right happy and copious industry' to Meres's oft-cited tale may now follow. And as, continuously all along with the creation of the great plays, the tenacity of his hold upon Stratford as his home is evident, the two streams of intermittent testimony may fitly flow on together, side by side, to betray what little they may of the brain and heart of the deviser behind them.

1599. 'And to ourselves wee joyned those deserving men, Shakspeare, Hemmings, Condall, Philips & others, partners in the profittes of that they call the House.'

Thus in an address to the Right Honourable Philip, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, a manuscript now in the Public Record Office, London, in which they stated their side of the difficulties they had with other of their actors, the Burbages — owners of the Theatre, the Globe, and finally of Blackfriars — preserve for posterity the fact of the shares they leased out for twenty-one years. These shares assured Shakespeare a far larger part in his successes than he could have won either as actor or as author. The same address explains, too, that in the days of the Theatre the players had only 'the profitts arising from the doores,' but now, since the building of the Globe, they 'receave all the cummings in at the doores to themselves and halfe the galleries.'

1600. '4 Augusti. — As You likeyt, a booke; Henry the Fifth, a booke; The Commedie of Muche Adoe about nothinge, a booke, } to be Staied'

Whether or not, as sharer in the company, Shakespeare was interested in the staying of these plays from the hands of the printers which this famous entry in the Stationers' Books indicates, the richness of his literary harvest by the year 1600 is shown by it, and there are to be added entries of 'A mydsommer nightes dreame' and 'The Merchant of Venyce.' In Weever's 'Mirror of Martyrs' an allusion is clear to Shakespeare's 'Julius Cæsar':

'The many-headed multitude were drawn
By Brutus' speech, that Cæsar was ambitious,
When eloquent Mark Antony had shown
His virtues, who but Brutus then was vicious?
Man's memory, with new, forgets the old,
One tale is good until another's told.'

Meanwhile in Stratford, while he was himself in London, an item appears of his recovery of £7 from John Clayton.

1602. 'Poeticall Essaies . . . Shadowing the Truth of Love in the constant Fate of the Phœnix and Turtle. Done by the best and cheifest of our moderne writers.'

Chapman, Jonson, and Marston contributed with Shakespeare to this volume of Chester's 'Love's Martyr'; and Shakespeare's contribution, mystical and symbolic, signed by him, is a tantalizingly interesting fact in the history of his authorship.

This was the year of the rebellion of Essex, and in London, all around Shakespeare, tumult surged. In it his patron Southampton, and a group of nobles allied with him to the fortunes of Essex, were involved, and the venturous playing of 'Richard II,' with its deposition scene, suppressed before 'as hateful to the queen, occasioned the examination of his fellow-player Philips, but Shakespeare himself seems to be clear of tanglement, whatever his feelings may have been.

In Stratford, in the parish register, is set down :

1601. 'F. — Septemb. 8. Mr. Johannes Shakspeare.'

No grave or other memorial of him remains in Stratford.

1602. 'xxvjth Julij. — James Robertes. — Entred . . .
A booke called the Revenge of Hamlett . . . as yt was latelie Acted by the Lo: Chamberleyn his servantes.'

The earliest remaining reference to Shakespeare by name in relation to the great play is an interesting one, not printed, however, till 1604, in 'Daiphantus,' where, after praise of Sidney's 'Arcadia,' it is written: 'or to come home to the vulgars element, . . . friendly Shakespeare's tragedies, where the commedian rides, when the tragedian stands on tiptoe; Faith, it should please all, like Prince Hamlet.'

'The Merry Wives of Windsor' was entered the same year, earlier. Along with the record of these two imperfect copies of these plays, & now we know them, comes the customary evidence that the Poet remembered Stratford, from the title-deed of May 1, 1602, conveying 'Fowre yarde lande . . . conteyning by estimation one hundred and seven

'acres' from 'John Combe of Olde Stretford . . . gentleman' to 'William Shakespere of Stretford-uppon-Avon . . . gentleman.' A purchase from Walter Getley, still further enlarging the estate he was building up at home, was also made that September, of a cottage and garden in Chapel Lane, near New Place.

1603. 'The Players Priviledge,'

and License of May 17, 'By the King,' authorized 'these our servantes, Lawrence Fletcher, William Shakespeare, Richard Burbage,' and others named, 'freely to use and exercise the arte and facultie of playing comedies, tragedies, histories.' This is the eminent memorandum of the year for Shakespeare, although he had played before the queen in February at Richmond just before her death in March. Henceforth his company was the king's, receiving £30 from him on first playing before him at Wilton in December, and playing again before him at Christmas and New Year at Whitehall and Hampton Court.

1604. 'Hallamas Day being the first of Novembar A play in the Banketinge house att Whitball called the Moor of Venis,' was played by his Majesty's players, as appears from the Accounts of the 'Court Revels'; the 'Sunday following,' 'Merry Wives,' and on 'St Stivens Night in the Hall . . . Mesur for Mesur,' and on 'Inosents Night The Plaie of Errors,' all stated to be by 'Shaxberd.'

When the king made his triumphal entry in London in the spring of the same year, nine actors of this company were named in the Accounts as walking in the procession, William Shakespeare, with Burbage, Hemminge, and Condell, among them, and each of them was presented by the king with four and a half yards of scarlet cloth.

Whatever glory came of ranking with the grooms of his Majesty's bedchamber thereafter, Stratford pursuants were not less followed, as the suit the Poet brought that July in Stratford against Philip Rogers for the balance of a debt of '1*li* xix*s* x*d*' for malt bears witness.

1605. July 24. 'Unto the sayed William Shakespear, for and duringe all the residue of the sayed terme,' was conveyed for £440, a lease of a moiety of the Stratford tithes.

That spring, May 4, Augustine Phillips willed 'to my fellowe William Shakespeare, a 30 shillings peece in goold.' Earlier, March 3, another record of personal association is evidenced by his acting as godfather to William Davenant, son of John Davenant, host of the Crown Inn in Oxford.

1606. 'Mr. William Shakespeare his historye of King Lear' was played, as the entry in the Stationers' Books of the next year shows, 'before the Kinges majestie at Whitehall uppon St. Stephans night at Christmas last.'

1607. 'M. Junij 5. John Hall gentleman and Susanna Shaxspere.'

This notice of the marriage of Shakespeare's elder daughter is in the Stratford church register.

The notice of his brother Edmund's death, the player-brother who died in London, the register at St. Saviour's, Southwark, supplies, with the memorandum of the unusual honour and expense for an actor attending his burial, 'a fore noone knell of the great bell.'

1608. '20 May. — Edw. Blount Entred . . . a booke called Anthony and Cleopatra.'

This is in the London Registers. In Stratford church register appear the birth of Shakespeare's first grandchild, 'Februar. 21. Elizabeth dawghter to John Hall, gen.,' and on September 9 the funeral of 'Mayry Shakspere, wydowe.' In Stratford, again, Shakespeare stood as godfather to William, son of his friend, Alderman Henry Walker.

1609. '20 May. Tho. Thorpe . . . a Booke called Shakespeare's sonnettes.'

The 'Never before Imprinted' line of the title-page in the published volume gives to the foregoing entry in the 'Stationers' Registers' the look of its being a long-buried treasure, not a new event in the story of Shakespeare's authorship by any means, and this falls in with the reference by Meres in 1598 to 'sugred sonnets.'

1610. 'Macbeth at the Glob, 1610 the 20 of April'

is the beginning of one of the interesting accounts of the plays which Dr. Simon Forman saw acted. It is taken from his MS. 'Bocke of Plaies and Notes therof.'

Twenty more acres bought of the Combes were added by Shakespeare to his Stratford estate this same year.

1611. 'In the Winters Talle at the Glob, 1611, 15 of Maye. Observe ther howe Lyontes,' etc. Thus notes Dr. Forman again in his 'Diary.' There follows, also, without date, this: 'Of Cimbalin King of England,' etc.

In Stratford Shakespeare's name appears on the margin of a subscription list started on September 11, 'towards the charge of prosecuting the bill in Parliament for the better repair of the highway.'

1612. 'Richard Lane, Thomas Greene . . . and William Shackspeare gentleman, contra W. Combe.'

This extract is from a bill of complaint of harm to the tithes by action of the Combes. Greene's interest is stated at a yearly value of £3, Shakespeare's at three-score pounds. It is of special interest in its connection with further difficulties over the threatened injury to the tithes by inclosing of the fields held in common by Stratford citizens.

1613. 'Item, paid to John Heminges upon the Councells warrant dated att Whitehall xx<sup>o</sup> die Maij, 1613.'

This, from the treasurer's accounts in a manuscript in the Bodleian Library, shows the performance of 'The Tempest,' with other plays, at the marriage of the Lady Elizabeth and Prince Frederick. The list reads: 'Much adoe abowte nothings . . . the Tempest, the Winters Tale, Sir John Falstafe, the Moore of Venice, . . . Cæsar's Tragedye . . .' etc. And later, 'one playe called a badd beginininge makes a good endinge . . . one other the Hotspurr, and one other called Benedicte and Betteris.'

The same spring, March 10, 'William Shakespear of Stratford-upon-Avon, gentleman,' bought a house in Blackfriars, London, 'in consideration of the somme of one hundred and fortie pounds.'

In the Stratford church register is entered, February 4, the funeral of 'Rich. Shakspeare,' leaving Gilbert the only surviving brother; but there is an unexplained entry of a funeral, 1612, February 3, of 'Gilbertus Shakspeare, adolescens.'

In June of the same year the last new play of Shakespeare's was played at the Globe, 'Henry VIII,' and during its performance, as various letters of that summer still remaining relate, the theatre was burned to the ground.

1614. 17 Nov. 'My cosen Shakspeare comyng yesterday to towne, I went to see him how he did.'

Much talk followed during this visit of Thomas Greene, the Stratford town clerk, upon the mooted injury to their property in the tithes by the Combes' inclosure of the common lands, and Shakespeare in October had taken the precaution to make an agreement with William Replingham to make recompense for all 'losse . . . thought in the viewe of foure indifferent persons' to be sustained 'by reason of anie inclosure.'

John Combe had died that summer, July, leaving Shakespeare £5 in his will. His heir William was now intending to make the inclosure. Greene's 'Diary' gives further account of their talk, etc., thus:

'He told me that they assured him they ment to inclose noe further then to Gospell Bushe, and soe upp straight (leavyng out part of the Dyngles to the Field) to the Gate in Clopton hedge, and take in Salisburys peece; and that they mean in Aprill to survey the land, and then to gyve satisfaccion, and not before; and he and Mr. Hall say they think ther will be nothyng done at all.

'23. Dec. A hall. Lettres wryten on to Mr. Maneryng, another to Mr. Shakspeare, with almost all the companies handes to eyther. I alsoe wrytte of my self to my cosen Shakspear the coppyes of all our actes, and then also a not of the inconvenyences wold happen by the inclosure.'

1615. '9 Jan. Mr. Replyngbam, 28 Octobris: article with Mr. Shakspear.'

This is again from Greene's 'Diary,' after which follows: '11 Januarii Mr Manyryng and his agreement for me with my cosen Shakspeare.' Finally: 'Sept. Mr. Shakspeare tellyng J. Greene that I was not able to beare the enclosing of Welcombe.' The project of inclosing Welcombe was given up.

Thus the Poet's will was signed. It left his younger daughter Judith 150 'poundes of lawfull English money,' and another 150 after three years. It provided for his sister Jone Hart and her three sons, and left her the house 'wherein she dwelleth.' To his granddaughter, then but eight years old, all his plate was left 'except my brod silver and gilt bole' (which was left to Judith). Various bequests and remembrances to Stratford citizens follow: to his wife his 'second best bed with the furniture,' and to 'my fellowes, John Hemynges, Richard Burbage and Henry Cundell, xxvj*s*. viii*d* apeece [to] buy them ringes.' The remainder of his estate went to his daughter Susanna and his son-in-law Dr. John Hall, her husband, whom the Poet also made his executors. The marriage of Judith to Thomas Quiney had then taken place, and the following three entries of marriage, funeral, and baptism in the church register close this year:

'M. Feabruary 10. The Queeny tow Judith Shakspere.

'F. Aprill 25. Will Shakspere, gent.

'B. November 23. Shaksper, fillius Thomas Quyny, gent.'

This grandson died the next year. Two later-born sons to Judith died in 1639. In 1623 Mrs. Shakespeare, Shakespeare's widow, died, and was buried in the church chancel with her husband. The same year saw the publication of the first collected edition of the Plays of William Shakespeare, in London.

Shakespeare's daughter Susanna died July 11, 1649, and the Poet's only grandchild, Elizabeth, married successively to Thomas Nash in 1626, and, after his death in 1647, to Sir John Barnard of Abingdon, died childless February 17, 1669. The last descendant from his sister Jone, John Hart, died in 1800.

The Works of William Shakespeare remain alone, and enough, to honour their father.

INTRODUCTION

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

THOUGH classed with the comedies, 'Measure for Measure' is a stern drama of violated justice and retribution, which is saved from being a tragedy only by a gleam of mercy at the close.

In order to introduce reforms into his city, the Duke of Vienna turns over the reins of government to a deputy, Angelo, a man of high reputation, and announces that he is going to travel; but instead he remains secretly in the city to watch affairs. The first offender brought before Angelo is Claudio, who has wronged his fiancée, Juliet. By an ancient law, hitherto unobserved, Claudio's offence is punishable by death; and to this fate the stern Angelo sentences him.

Claudio's sister, Isabella, hears of her brother's peril, and hastens to the deputy to plead for mercy (Act II). She arouses a passion in the cold-hearted Angelo, and in their second interview he offers to barter her brother's pardon for her own virtue.

She repulses the offer, and in Act III goes to Claudio in prison and tells him to prepare for death, since he can be saved only on disgraceful terms. Her brother at first upholds, then reproaches her. Meantime the disguised duke, who has kept pace with events, tells Isabella of another way to save her brother.

Measure for Measure C

MEASURE FOR MEASURE

Following the duke's instructions (Act IV), Isabella appears to yield to Angelo's desires, but sends him, in her stead, a former deserted sweetheart of the deputy's. The deputy thinks it to be Isabella, yet violates his promise and orders the execution of Claudio, who is saved by a ruse.

In Act V the duke returns; Angelo is charged with seduction and murder; the duke condemns him to death, but pardons him on the intercession of Isabella; the latter finds a suitor in the duke himself, and Claudio is released and commanded to wed Juliet.

SOURCES

Shakespeare's play is derived from two earlier stories, but shows great improvement over both. The first source is from the eighth Decade of Giraldi Cinthio's 'Hecatommiti,' a collection of Italian tales similar to Boccaccio's 'Decameron.' This story's outline is given in its title, and runs as follows:

'Juriste is sent to Inspruch by the Emperor Maximilian, where he arrests a young man, who has violated a virgin, and condemns him to death; his sister endeavours to free him; Juriste gives her to understand that he will marry her and liberate her brother; she yields to him, and the same night Juriste causes her brother's head to be struck off and sent to her. She goes to the Emperor with her wrongs, and he orders Juriste to marry her; he then sentences Juriste to death; the lady obtains his pardon and lives with him in all affection.'

The later source is a play of George Whetstone's (1578), entitled 'Promos and Cassandra,' but never acted. This plot differs from Cinthio's chiefly in preventing the execution of the brother in prison by a ruse similar to that made use of in 'Measure for Measure.' Shakespeare, in turn, improves further on the original plot by saving the virtue of the sister without altering the situation.

In 1582 Whetstone published a book of tales similar to that of Cinthio's, and entitled the 'Heptameron of Civil Discourses.' The above tale reappears here, and may have been the version known to Shakespeare, who, however, is indebted only for general outlines; for he re-creates his characters, giving them nobler lines and living force. The play as a whole rises to a dignity and symmetry lacking in the earlier stories.

DURATION OF THE ACTION

The action is comprised in four days, as follows: The first day, Act I, scene i, is introductory, and followed by an interval. The second day extends from Act I, scene ii, to Act IV, scene ii. The third day comprises the next two scenes. The fourth day extends from Act IV, scene v, to the end of the play.

The period, according to Whetstone's story, was the time of Corvinus, King of Hungary, who died in 1490. Shakespeare, while changing the name of the city from Julio to Vienna, retained traits and costumes peculiar to the earlier plot. His play, therefore, lies near the close of the fifteenth century.

DATE OF COMPOSITION

'Measure for Measure' was produced between the years 1598 and 1605, according to meagre and unsubstantial external evidence. The former date is suggested by the fact that Meres does not mention it in his list of that year; the latter, by an entry of the 'Court Revels,' from October, 1604, to October, 1605, which reads: 'By his Ma<sup>tie</sup> Plaiers. On St Stevens night in the Hall, a Play caled Mesur for Mesur.' This entry, however, is now called a forgery, so we are thrown back upon internal evidence to determine our dates.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE

A likeness between the duke and King James has been repeatedly pointed out, and would seem to place the play at the time of that monarch's accession, 1603. This year is further supported by the play's strong similarity in tone and treatment to 'Hamlet,' and by metrical tests which place it among the maturer works. Critics are generally agreed in fixing the date at 1603 or 1604.

EARLY EDITIONS

The First Folio edition of 1623 contains the earliest known text of this play. It occupies pages 61 to 84, and is fourth among the comedies. It is divided into acts and scenes, and is followed by 'The names of all the Actors,' which list omits Varrius and the Justice. The text is generally clear, though several obscure passages have given much trouble to commentators, who have no earlier version to fall back upon.

1. Gent. How now, which of your hips has the most profound Ciatica?

Bawd. Well, well: there's one yonder arrested, and carried to prison, was worth five thousand of you all. 60

2. Gent. Who's that I pray' thee?

Bawd. Marry Sir, that's Claudio, Signior Claudio.

1. Gent. Claudio to prison? 'tis not so.

Bawd. Nay, but I know 'tis so: I saw him arrested: saw him carried away: and which is more, within these three daies his head to be chop'd off.

Luc. But, after all this fooling, I would not have it so: Art thou sure of this?

Bawd. I am too sure of it: and it is for getting Madam Julietta with childe. 70

Luc. Beleeve me this may be: he promis'd to meete me two howres since, and he was ever precise in promise keeping.

2. Gent. Besides you know, it drawes something neere to the speech we had to such a purpose.

1. Gent. But most of all agreeing with the proclamation. |

Luc. Away: let's goe learne the truth of it. Exit.

Bawd. Thus, what with the war; what with the sweat, what with the gallowes, and what with poverty, I am

Custom-shrunke. How now? what's the newes with you. Enter Clowne [Pompey]. 81

Clo. [Pom.] Yonder man is carried to prison.

Baw. Well: what has he done?

Clo. A Woman.

Baw. But what's his offence?

Clo. Groping for Trowts, in a peculiar River.

Baw. What? is there a maid with child by him?

Clo. No: but there's a woman with maid by him: you have not heard of the proclamation, have you?

Baw. What proclamation, man? 90

Clo. All howses in the Suburbs of Vienna must bee pluck'd downe.

Bawd. And what shall become of those in the Citie?

Clo. They shall stand for seed: they had gon down to, but that a wise Burger put in for them.

Bawd. But shall all our houses of resort in the Suburbs be puld downe?

Clo. To the ground, Mistris.

Bawd. Why heere's a change indeed in the Commonwealth: what shall become of me? 100

Clo. Come: feare not you: good Counsellors lacke no Clients: though you change your place, you neede not change your Trade: Ile bee your Tapster still; courage, there will bee pittie taken on you; you that have worne your eyes almost out in the service, you will bee considered.

Bawd. What's to doe heere, ~~Thomas~~ Tapster? let's withdraw?

Clo. Here comes Signior Claudio, led by the Provost to prison: and there's Madam Juliet. Exeunt. 110

Scena Tertia.

*Enter Provost, Claudio, Juliet, Officers, Lucio,
& 2. Gent. |*

Cla. Fellow, why dos't thou show me thus to th' world?
Beare me to prison, where I am committed.

Pro. I do it not in evill disposition,
But from Lord Angelo by speciall charge.

Cla. Thus can the demy-god (Authority)
Make us pay downe, for our offence, by waight
The words of heaven; on whom it will, it will,
On whom it will not (soe) yet still 'tis just. * 120

Luc. Why how now Claudio? whence comes this restraint. |

Cla. From too much liberty, (my Lucio) Liberty
As surfet is the father of much fast,
So every Scope by the immoderate use
Turnes to restraint: Our Natures doe pursue
Like Rats that ravyn downe their proper Bane,
A thirstie evill, and when we drinke, we die.

Luc. If I could speake so wisely under an arrest, I would send for certaine of my Creditors: and yet, to say the truth, I had as lief have the foppery of freedome, as the mortality of imprisonment: what's thy offence,
Claudio? 132

Cla. What (but to speake of) would offend againe.

Luc. What, is't murder?

Cla. No.

Luc. Lecherie?

Cla. Call it so.

Pro. Away, Sir, you must goe.

111. Scena Tertia: out-Rowz. 131. mortality: morality-Rowz.

Cla. One word, good friend:

Lucio, a word with you. 140

Luc. A hundred:

If they'll doe you any good: Is Lechery so look'd after?

Cla. Thus stands it with me: upon a true contract
I got possession of Julietas bed,
You know the Lady, she is fast my wife,
Save that we doe the denunciation 'lacke
Of outward Order. „This we came not to,
Onely for propagation of a Dowre
Remaining in the Coffe of her friends,
From whom we thought it meet to hide our Love 150
Till Time had made them for us. But it chanches
The stealth of our most mutuall entertainment
With Character too grosse, is writ on Juliet.

Luc. With childe, perhaps?

Cla. Unhappely, even so.

And the new Deputie, now for the Duke,
Whether it be the fault and glimpse of newnes,
Or whether that the body publique, be
A horse whereon the Governor doth ride,
Who newly in the Seate, that it may know 160
He can command; lets it strait feele the spur:
Whether the Tirranny be in his place,
Or in his Eminence that fills it up
I stagger in: But this new Governor
Awakes me all the inrolled penalties
Which have (like un-scowr'd Armor) hung by th'wall
So long, that ninteene Zodiacks have gone round,
And none of them beene worne; and for a name
Now puts the drowsie and neglected Act
Freshly on me: 'tis surely for a name. 170

Luc. I warrant it is: And thy head stands so tickle on 139-40. 1 l.—Pope.

thy shoulders, that a milke-maid, if she be in love, may sigh it off: Send after the Duke, and appeale to him.

Gla. I have done so, but hee's not to be found.

I pre'thee (Lucio) doe me this kinde service:

This day, my sister should the Cloyster enter,

And there receive her approbation.

Acquaint her with the danger of my state,

Implore her, in my voice, that she make friends

To the strict deputie: bid her selfe assay him, 180

I have great hope in that: for in her youth

There is a prone and speechlesse dialect,

Such as move men: beside, she hath prosperous Art

When she will play with reason, and discourse,

And well she can perswade.

Luc. I pray shee may; as well for the encouragement of the like, which else would stand under greivous imposition: as for the enjoying of thy life, who I would be sorry should bee thus foolishly lost, at a game of ticktack: Ile to her. 190

Gla. I thanke you good friend Lucio.

Luc. Within two houres.

Gla. Come Officer, away. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

[Scene iii. A monastery.]

Enter Duke and Frier Thomas.

Duk. No: holy Frier, throw away that thought, Beleeve not that the dribbling<sup>1</sup> dart of Love <sup>1 feeble</sup>
Can pierce a compleat bosome: why, I desire thee
To give me secret harbour, hath a purpose
More grave, and wrinkled, then the aimes, and ends
Of burning youth.

Fri. May your Grace speake of it!

. Duk. My holy Sir, none better knowes then you 10
 How I have ever lov'd the life removed
 And held in idle price, to haunt assemblies
 Where youth, and cost, witlesse bravery keepes.
 I have deliverd to Lord Angelo
 (A man of stricture<sup>1</sup> and firme abstinence) <sup>1</sup> strictness
 My absolute power, and place here in Vienna,
 And he supposes me travailld to Poland,
 (For so I have strewd it in the common eare)
 And so it is receiv'd: Now (pious Sir)
 You will demand of me, why I do this. 20

Fri. Gladly, my Lord.

Duk. We have strict Statutes, and most biting Laws,
 (The needfull bits and curbes to headstrong weedes,) <sup>30</sup>
 Which for this foureteene yeares, we have let slip,
 Even like an ore-growne Lyon in a Cave
 That goes not out to prey: Now, as fond Fathers,
 Having bound up the threatning twigs of birch,
 Onely to sticke it in their childrens sight,
 For terror, not to use: in time the rod
 More mock'd, then fear'd: so our Decrees, 30
 Dead to infliction, to themselves are dead,
 And libertie, plucks Justice by the nose;
 The Baby beates the Nurse, and quite athwart
 Goes all decorum.

Fri. It rested in your Grace
 To unloose this tyde-up Justice, when you pleas'd:
 And it in you more dreadfull would have seem'd
 Then in Lord Angelo.

Duk. I doe feare: too dreadfull:
 Sith 'twas my fault, to give the people scope, 40
 'Twould be my tirrany to strike and gall them,
 For what I bid them doe: For, we bid this be done
 When evill deedes have their permissive passe,

And not the punishment: therefore indeede (my father)
 I have on Angelo impos'd the office,
 Who may in th'ambush of my name, strike home,
 And yet, my nature never in the fight
 To do in slander: And to behold his sway
 I will, as 'twere a brother of your Order,
 Visit both Prince, and People: Therefore I pre'thee 50
 Supply me with the habit, and instruct me
 How I may formally in person beare
 Like a true Frier: Moe reasons for this action
 At our more leysure, shall I render you;
 Onely, this one: Lord Angelo is precise,
 Stands at a guard with Envie: scarce confesses
 That his blood flowes: or that his appetite
 Is more to bread then stone: hence shall we see
 If power change purpose: what our Seemers be. Exit.

Scena Quinta.

[Scene iv. A nunnery.]

Enter Isabell and Francisca a Nun.

Isa. And have you Nuns no farther priviledges?

Nun. Are not these large enough?

Isa. Yes truly; I speake not as desiring more,
 But rather wishing a more strict restraint
 Upon the Sisterhood, the Votarists of Saint Clare.

Lucio within.

Luc. Hoa? peace be in this place.

Isa: Who's that which calls? 10

Nun. It is a mans voice: gentle Isabella
 Turne you the key, and know his businesse of him;

7. Sisterhood: sisterhood-2-4F.

You may; I may not: you are yet unsworne:
 When you have vowd, you must not speake with men,
 But in the presence of the Prioresse;
 Then if you speake, you must not show your face;
 Or if you show your face, you must not speake.
 He calls againe: I pray you answer him. [Exit.]

Isa. Peace and prosperitie: who is't that calls? 19

[Enter Lucio.]

Luc. Haile Virgin, (if you be) as those cheek-Roses
 Proclaime you are no lesse: can you so steed<sup>1</sup> me,
 As bring me to the sight of Isabella, <sup>1 serve</sup>
 A Novice<sup>2</sup> of this place, and the faire Sister
 To her unhappie brother Claudio?

Isa. Why her unhappy Brother? Let me ask,
 The rather for I now must make you know
 I am that Isabella, and his Sister.

Luc. Gentle & faire: your Brother kindly greets you;
 Not to be weary with you; he's in prison.

Isa. Woe me; for what? 30

Luc. For that, which if my selfe might be his Judge,
 He should receive his punishment, in thanks:
 He hath got his friend with childe.

Isa. Sir, make me not your storie.

Luc. 'Tis true; I would not, though 'tis my familiar sin,
 With Maids to seeme the Lapwing, and to jest
 Tongue, far from heart: play with all Virgins so:
 I hold you as a thing en-skied, and sainted,
 By your renouncement, an imortall spirit
 And to be talk'd with in sincerity, 40
 As with a Saint.

Isa. You doe blaspheme the good, in mocking me.

21. steed: stand—Rowe.

35. 'Tis: It is; new l. at I would—STEEVENSON.

Luc. Doe not beleeve it: fewnes, and truth; tis thus,
Your brother, and his lover have embrac'd;
As those that feed, grow full: as blossoming Time
That from the seednes, the bare fallow brings
To teeming foyson: even so her plenteous wombe
Expresseth his full Tilt, and husbandry.

Isa. Some one with childe by him? my cosen Juliet?

Luc. Is she your cosen? 50

Isa. Adoptedly, as schoole-maids change their names
By vaine, though apt affection.

Luc. She it is.

Isa. Oh, let him marry her.

Luc. This is the point.

The Duke is very strangely gone from hence;
Bore many gentlemen (my selfe being one)
In hand, and hope of action: but we doe learne,
By those that know the very Nerves of State,
His giving-out, were of an infinite distance 60
From his true meant designe: upon his place,
(And with full line of his authority)
Governes Lord Angelo; A man, whose blood
Is very snow-broth: one, who never feeles
The wanton stings, and motions of the sence;
But doth rebate,<sup>1</sup> and blunt his naturall edge <sup>1 dull</sup>
With profits of the minde: Studie, and fast
He (to give feare to use, and libertie,
Which have, for long, run-by the hideous law,
As Myce, by Lyons) hath pickt out an act, 70
Under whose heavy sence, your brothers life
Fals into forfeit: he arrests him on it,
And followes close the rigor of the Statute

43. fewnes: fewness (fewnesse-2-3F.)-4F.

47. teeming: teeming-2-4F.

60. giving-out: givings-out-Rowe.

To make him an example: all hope is gone,
 Unless you have the grace, by your faire praier
 To soften Angelo: And that's my pith of businessse
 'Twixt you, and your poore brother.

Isa. Doth he so,
 Seeke his life?

Luc. Has censur'd him already, 80
 And as I heare, the Provost hath a warrant
 For's execution.

Isa. Alas: what poore
 Abilitie's in me, to doe him good.

Luc. Assay the powre you have.

Isa. My power? alas, I doubt.

Luc. Our doubts are traitors
 And makes us loose the good we oft might win,
 By fearing to attempt: Goe to Lord Angelo
 And let him learne to know, when Maidens sue 90
 Men give like gods: but when they weepe and kneele,
 All their petitions, are as freely theirs
 As they themselves would owe them.

Isa. Ile see what I can doe.

Luc. But speedily.

Isa. I will about it strait;
 No longer staying, but to give the Mother
 Notice of my affaire: I humbly thanke you:
 Commend me to my brother: soone at night
 Ile send him certaine word of my successe. 100

Luc. I take my leave of you.

Isa. Good sir, adieu. Exeunt

78-85. 5 five-accents ll. ending him, hath, execution, me, have-CAPELL.

82. For's: for his-CAPELL.

88. makes: make-2ROWE.

Actus Secundus. Scœna Prima.[A hall in Angelo's house.]

*Enter Angelo, Escalus, and servants, Justice.
[Provost, Officers, and other Attendants behind.]*

Ang. We must not make a scar-crow of the Law,
Setting it up to feare the Birds of prey,
And let it keepe one shape, till custome make it
Their perarch, and not their terror.

Esc. I, but yet
Let us be keene, and rather cut a little
Then fall, and bruise to death: alas, this gentleman
Whom I would save, had a most noble father, 10
Let but your honour know
(Whom I beleeve to be most strait in vertue)
That in the working of your owne affection,
Had time coheard with Place, or place with wishing,
Or that the resolute acting of our blood
Could have attaind th'effect of your owne purpose,
Whether you had not sometime in your life
Er'd in this point, which now you censure him,
And puld the Law upon you.

Ang. 'Tis one thing to be tempted (Escalus) 20
Another thing to fall: I not deny
The Jury passing on the Prisoners life
May in the sworne-twelve have a thiefe, or two Guiltier then him they try; what's open made to Justice,
That Justice ceizes; What knowes the Lawes
That theeves do passe on theeves? 'Tis very pregnant,<sup>1</sup>
The Jewell that we finde, we stoope, and take't,
Because we see it; but what we doe not see, <sup>1</sup> obvious
We tread upon, and never thinke of it.
You may not so extenuate his offence, 30

For I have had such faults; but rather tell me
 When I, that censure him, do so offend,
 Let mine owne Judgement patterne out my death,
 And nothing come in partiall. Sir, he must dye.

Enter Provost.

Esc. Be it as your wisdoms will.

Ang. Where is the Provost?

Pro. Here if it like your honour.

Ang. See that Claudio

Be executed by nine to morrow morning, 40
 Bring him his Confessor, let him be prepar'd,
 For that's the utmost of his pilgrimage. [Exit Provost.]

Esc. Well: heaven forgive him; and forgive us all:

Some rise by sinne, and some by vertue fall:

Some run from brakes of Ice, and answer none,
 And some condemned for a fault alone.

Enter Elbow, Froth, Clowne [Pompey], Officers.

Elb. Come, bring them away: if these be good people in a Common-weale, that doe nothing but use their abuses in common houses, I know no law: bring them away. 51

Ang. How now Sir, what's your name? And what's the matter?

Elb. If it please your honour, I am the poore Dukes Constable, and my name is Elbow; I doe leane upon Justice Sir, and doe bring in here before your good honor, two notorious Benefactors.

Ang. Benefactors? Well: What Benefactors are they? Are they not Malefactors? 59

Elb. If it please your honour, I know not well what they are: But precise villaines they are, that I am sure of, and void of all prophanation in the world, that good Christians ought to have.

Esc. This comes off well: here's a wise Officer.

Why do'st thou not speake Elbow?

Clo. He cannot Sir: he's out at Elbow.

Ang. What are you Sir? 69

Elb. He Sir: a Tapster Sir: parcell Baud: one that serves a bad woman: whose house Sir was (as they say) pluckt downe in the Suborbs: and now shee professes a hot-house;<sup>2</sup> which, I thinke is a very ill house too.

Esc. How know you that? <sup>2</sup> brothel

Elb. My wife Sir? whom I detest before heaven, and your honour.

Esc. How? thy wife?

Elb. I Sir: whom I thanke heaven is an honest woman.

Esc. Do'st thou detest her therefore? 80

Elb. I say sir, I will detest my selfe also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a Bauds house, it is pitty of her life, for it is a naughty house.

Esc. How do'st thou know that, Constable?

Elb. Marry sir, by my wife, who, if she had bin a woman Cardinally given, might have bin accus'd in fornication, adultery, and all uncleannesse there.

Esc. By the womans meanes?

Elb. I sir, by Mistris Over-dons meanes: but as she spit in his face, so she defide him. 90

Clo. Sir, if it please your honor, this is not so.

Elb. Prove it before these varlets here, thou honorable man, prove it.

Esc. Doe you heare how he misplaces?

Clo. Sir, hee is in great with childe: and longing

(saving your honors reverence) for stewd prewyns; sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant time stood, as it were in a fruit dish (a dish of some three pence; your honours have seene such dishes) they are not China-dishes, but very good dishes. 100

Esc. Go too: go too: no matter for the dish sir.

Clo. No indeede sir not of a pin; you are therein in the right: but, to the point: As I say, this Mistris Elbow, being (as I say) with childe, and being great bellied, and longing (as I said) for prewyns: and having but two in the dish (as I said) Master Froth here, this very man, having eaten the rest (as I said) & (as I say) paying for them very honestly: for, as you know Master Froth, I could not give you three pence againe.

Fro. No indeede. 110

Clo. Very well: you being then (if you be remembred) cracking the stones of the foresaid prewyns.

Fro. I, so I did indeede.

Clo. Why, very well: I telling you then (if you be remembred) that such a one, and such a one, were past cure of the thing you wot of, unlesse they kept very good diet, as I told you.

Fro. All this is true.

Clo. Why very well then. 119

Esc. Come: you are a tedious foole: to the purpose: what was done to Elbowes wife, that hee hath cause to complaine of? Come me to what was done to her.

Clo. Sir, your honor cannot come to that yet.

Esc. No sir, nor I meane it not.

Clo. Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honours leave: And I beseech you, looke into Master Froth here sir, a man of foure-score pound a yeare; whose father died at Hallowmas: Was't not at Hallowmas Master Froth?

Fro. Allhallond-Eve.

Clo. Why very well: I hope here be truthes: he Sir, sitting (as I say) in a lower chaire, Sir, 'twas in the bunch of Grapes, where indeede you have a delight to sit, have you not?

Fro. I have so, because it is an open roome, and good for winter.

Clo. Why very well then: I hope here be truthes.

Ang. This will last out a night in Russia

When nights are longest there: Ile take my leave,
And leave you to the hearing of the cause; 140
Hoping youle finde good cause to whip them all. Exit.

Esc. I thinke no lesse: good morrow to your Lordship. Now Sir, come on: What was done to Elbowes wife, once more?

Clo. Once Sir? there was nothing done to her once.

Elb. I beseech you Sir, aske him what this man did to my wife.

Clo. I beseech your honor, aske me.

Esc. Well sir, what did this Gentleman to her?

Clo. I beseech you sir, looke in this Gentlemans face: good Master Froth looke upon his honor; 'tis for a good purpose: doth your honor marke his face? 152

Esc. I sir, very well.

Clo. Nay, I beseech you marke it well.

Esc. Well, I doe so.

Clo. Doth your hono<sup>r</sup>. see any harme in his face?

Esc. Why no.

Clo. Ile be supposd upon a booke, his face is the worst thing about him: good then: if his face be the worst thing about him, how could Master Froth doe the Constables wife any harme? I would know that of your honour. 162

Esc. He's in the right (Constable) what say you to it?

Elb. First, and it like you, the house is a respected house; next, this is a respected fellow; and his Mistris is a respected woman.

Clo. By this hand Sir, his wife is a more respected person then any of us all.

Elb. Varlet, thou lvest; thou lvest wicked varlet: the time is yet to come that shee was ever respected with man, woman, or childe. 171

Clo. Sir, she was respected with him, before he married with her.

Esc. Which is the wiser here; Justice or Iniquitie? Is this true?

Elb. O thou caytiffe: O thou varlet: O thou wicked Hanniball; I respected with her, before I was married to her? If ever I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship thinke mee the poore Dukes Officer: prove this, thou wicked Hanniball, or ile have mine action of battry on thee. 181

Esc. If he tooke you a box 'oth'care, you might have your action of slander too.

Elb. Marry I thanke your good worship for it: what is't your Worships pleasure I shall doe with this wicked Caitiffe?

Esc. Truly Officer, because he hath some offences in him, that thou wouldst discover, if thou couldst, let him continue in his courses, till thou knowst what they are.

Elb. Marry I thanke your worship for it: Thou seest thou wicked varlet now, what's come upon thee. Thou art to continue now thou Varlet, thou art to continue.

Esc. Where were you borne, friend? 193

Frotb. Here in Vienna, Sir.

Esc. Are you of fourescore pounds a yeere?

Froth. Yes, and 't please you sir.

Esc. So: what trade are you of, sir?

Clo. A Tapster, a poore widdowes Tapster.

Esc. Your Mistris name?

Clo. Mistris Over-don. 200

Esc. Hath she had any more then one husband?

Clo. Nine, sir: Over-don by the last.

Esc. Nine? come hether to me, Master Froth; Master Froth, I would not have you acquainted with Tapsters: they will draw you Master Froth, and you wil hang them: get you gon, and let me heare no more of you.

Fro. I thanke your worship: for mine owne part, I never come into any roome in a Tap-house, but I am drawne in. 209

Esc. Well: no more of it Master Froth: farewell: [Exit Froth.] Come you hether to me: M<sup>r</sup>. Tapster: what's your name | M<sup>r</sup>. Tapster?

Clo. Pompey.

Esc. What else?

Clo. Bum, Sir.

Esc. Troth, and your bum is the greatest thing about you, so that in the beastliest sence, you are Pompey the great; Pompey, you are partly a bawd, Pompey; howsoever you colour it in being a Tapster, are you not? come, tell me true, it shall be the better for you. 220

Clo. Truly sir, I am a poore fellow that would live.

Esc. How would you live Pompey? by being a bawd? what doe you thinke of the trade Pompey? is it a lawfull trade?

Clo. If the Law would allow it, sir.

Esc. But the Law will not allow it Pompey; nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna.

Clo. Do's your Worship meane to geld and splay all the youth of the City?

Esc. No, Pompey. 230

Clo. Truly Sir, in my poore opinion they will too't then: if your worship will take order for the drabs and the knaves, you need not to feare the bawds.

Esc. There is pretty orders beginning I can tell you: It is but heading, and hanging.

Clo. If you head, and hang all that offend that way but for ten yeare together; you'll be glad to give out a Commission for more heads: if this law hold in Vienna ten yeare, ile rent the fairest house in it after three pence a Bay:<sup>1</sup> if you live to see this come to passe, say Pompey told you so. <sup>1 attic</sup> 241

Esc. Thanke you good Pompey; and in requitall of your prophesie, harke you: I advise you let me not finde you before me againe upon any complaint whatsoever; no, not for dwelling where you doe: if I doe Pompey, I shall beat you to your Tent, and prove a shrewd Cæsar to you: in plaine dealing Pompey, I shall have you whipt; so for this time, Pompey, fare you well. 248

Clo. I thanke your Worship for your good counsell; but I shall follow it as the flesh and fortune shall better determine. Whip me? no, no, let Carman whip his Jade, The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade. Exit.

Esc. Come hether to me, Master Elbow: come hither Master Constable: how long have you bin in this place of Constable?

Elb. Seven yeere, and a halfe sir.

Esc. I thought by the readinesse in the office, you had continued in it some time: you say seaven yeares together.

234. is: are-2-4F.

257. by the: by your-Pore.

Elb. And a halfe sir. 260

Esc. Alas, it hath beene great paines to you: they do you wrong to put you so oft upon't. Are there not men in your Ward sufficient to serve it?

Elb. 'Faith sir, few of any wit in such matters: as they are chosen, they are glad to choose me for them; I do it for some peece of money, and goe through with all.

Esc. Looke you bring mee in the names of some sixe or seven, the most sufficient of your parish.

Elb. To your Worships house sir?

Esc. To my house: fare you well: [Exit Elbow.] what's a clocke, | thinke you? 271

Just. Eleven, Sir.

Esc. I pray you home to dinner with me.

Just. I humbly thanke you.

Esc. It grieves me for the death of Claudio
But there's no remedie:

Just. Lord Angelo is severe.

Esc. It is but needfull.

Mercy is not it selfe, that oft lookes so,
Pardon is still the nurse of second woe: 280
But yet, poore Claudio; there is no remedie.
Come Sir. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

[Another room in the same.]

Enter Provost, Servant.

Ser. Hee's hearing of a Cause; he will come straight,
I'll tell him of you.

Pro. 'Pray you doe; [Exit Servant.] Ile know
His pleasure, may be he will relent; alas
He hath but as offended in a dreame,

All Sects, all Ages smack of this vice, and he
To die for't?

10

Ang. Now, what's the matter Provost?

Pro. Is it your will Claudio shall die to morrow?

Ang. Did not I tell thee yea? hadst thou not order?
Why do'st thou aske againe?

Pro. I est I might be too rash:
Under your good correction, I have seene
When after execution, Judgement hath Repented ore his doome.

Ang. Goe to; let that be mine,
Doe you your office, or give up your Place, 20
And you shall well be spar'd.

Pro. I crave your Honours pardon:
What shall be done Sir, with the groaning Juliet?
Shee's very neere her howre.

Ang. Dispose of her
To some more fitter place; and that with speed.

[Re-enter Servant.]

Ser. Here is the sister of the man condemn'd, Desires accesse to you.

Ang. Hath he a Sister?

Pro. I my good Lord, a very vertuous maid, 30
And to be shortlie of a Sister-hood,
If not alreadie.

Ang. Well: let her be admitted, [Exit Servant.]
See you the Fornicatresse be remov'd,
Let her have needfull, but not lavish meanes,
There shall be order for't.

Enter Lucio and Isabella.

Pro. 'Save your Honour.

Ang. Stay a little while: [To Is.] y'are welcome:
what's your will? |

Isab. I am a wofull Sutor to your Honour, 40
'Please but your Honor heare me.

Ang. Well: what's your suite.

Isab. There is a vice that most'I doe abhorre,
And most desire should meet the blow of Justice;
For which I would not plead, but that I must,
For which I must not plead, but that I am
At warre, twixt will, and will not.

Ang. Well: the matter?

Isab. I have a brother is condemn'd to die,
I doe beseech you let it be his fault, 50
And not my brother.

Pro. [Aside] Heaven give thee moving graces.

Ang. Condemne the fault, and not the actor of it,
Why every fault's condemn'd ere it be done:
Mine were the verie Cipher of a Function
To fine the faults, whose fine stands in record,
And let goe by the Actor:

Isab. Oh just, but severe Law:
I had a brother then; heaven keepe your honour.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] Give't not ore so: to him againe, entreat him, | 60

Kneele downe before him, hang upon his gowne,
You are too cold: if you should need a pin,
You could not with more tame a tongue desire it:
To him, I say.

Isab. Must he needs die?

Ang. Maiden, no remedie.

Isab. Yes: I doe thinke that you might pardon him,
And neither heaven, nor man grieve at the mercy.

Ang. I will not doe't.

Isab. But can you if you would? 70

Ang. Looke what I will not, that I cannot doe.

Isab. But might you doe't & do the world no wrong
If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse,
As mine is to him?

Ang. Hee's sentenc'd, tis too late.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] You are too cold.

Isab. Too late? why no: I that doe speak a word
May call it againe: well, belceve this
No ceremony that to great ones longs,
Not the Kings Crowne; nor the deputed sword, 80
The Marshalls Truncheon, nor the Judges Robe
Become them with one halfe so good a grace
As mercie does: If he had bin as you, and you as he,
You would have slipt like him, but he like you
Would not have beene so sterne.

Ang. Pray you be gone.

Isab. I would to heaven I had your potencie,
And you were Isabell: should it then be thus?
No: I would tell what 'twere to be a Judge,
And what a prisoner. 90

Luc. [Aside to Is.] I, touch him: there's the vaine.

Ang. Your Brother is a forfeit of the Law,
And you but waste your words.

Isab. Alas, alas:

Why all the soles that were, were forfeit once,
And he that might the vantage best have tooke,
Found out the remedie: how would you be,

79. longs: 'longs—THEOBALD.

83. As mercie does: separate l., new l. at If—CAPELL.

If he, which is the top of Judgement, should
 But judge you, as you are? Oh, thinke on that,
 And mercie then will breathe within your lips 100
 Like man new made.

Ang. Be you content, (faire Maid)
 It is the Law, not I, condemne your brother,
 Were he my kinsman, brother, or my sonne,
 It should be thus with him: he must die to morrow.

Isab. To morrow? oh, that's sbdaine,
 Spare him, spare him:
 Hee's not prepar'd for death; even for our kitchens
 We kill the fowle of season: shall we serve heaven
 With lesse respect then we doe minister 110
 To our grosse-selves? good, good my Lord, bethink you;
 Who is it that hath di'd for this offence?
 There's many have committed it.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] I, well said.

Ang. The Law hath not bin dead, thogh it hath slept
 Those many had not dar'd to doe that evill
 If the first, that did th' Edict infringe
 Had answer'd for his deed: Now 'tis awake,
 Takes note of what is done, and like a Prophet
 Lookes in a glasse that shewes what future evils 120
 Either now, or by remissenesse, new conceiv'd,
 And so in progresse to be hatc'hd, and borne,
 Are now to have no successive degrees,
 But here they live to ead.

Isab. Yet shew some pittie.

Ang. I shew it most of all, when I show Justice;
 For then I pittie those I doe not know;
 Which a dismis'd offence, would after gaule
 And doe him right, that answering one foule wrong

FOR MEASURE

[II. ii. 104-132]

Lives not to act another. Be satisfied; 130
Your Brother dies to morrow; be content.

Isab. So you must be the first that gives this sentence,
And hee, that suffers: Oh, it is excellent
'To have a Giants strength: but it is tyrannous
To use it like a Giant.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] That's well said.

Isab. Could great men thunder
As ~~Jove~~ himselfe do's, ~~Jove~~ would never be quiet,
For every pelting<sup>1</sup> petty Officer <sup>1</sup>paltry 140
Would use his heaven for thunder;
Nothing but thunder: Mercifull heaven,
Thou rather with thy sharpe and sulphurous bolt
Splits the un-wedgable and gnarled Oke,
Then the soft Mertill: But man, proud man,
Drest in a little briefe authoritie,
Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
(His glassie Essence) like an angry Ape
Plaies such phantastique tricks before high heaven,
As makes the Angels weepe: who with our spleenes,
Would all themselves laugh mortall. 150

Luc. [Aside to Is.] Oh, to him, to him wench: he will relent, |
Hee's comming: I perceive't.

Pro. [Aside] Pray heaven she win him.

Isab. We cannot weigh our brother with our selfe,
Great men may jest with Saints: tis wit in them,
But in the lesse fowle prophanation.

Luc. Thou'rt i'th right (Girle) more o'that.

Isab. That<sup>o</sup> in the Captaine's but a chollericke word,
Which in the Souldier is flat blasphemie. 159

Luc. [Aside to Is.] Art avis'd o'that? more on't.

138. never: ne'er (nere-2-3F.)-4F.

143. Splits: Split't-2-4F.

149. makes: make-STEEVENS.

Ang. Why doe you put these sayings upon me?

Isab. Because Authoritie, though it erre like others,
Hath yet a kinde of medicine in it selfe
That skins the vice o'th top; goe to your bosome,
Knock there, and aske your heart what it doth know
That's like my brothers fault: if it confesse
A naturall guiltinesse, such as is his,
Let it not sound a thought upon your tongue
Against my brothers life.

Ang. [Aside] Shee speakes, and 'tis such sence 170
That my Sence breeds with it; fare you well.

Isab. Gentle my Lord, turne backe.

Ang. I will bethinke me: come againe to morrow.

Isa. Hark, how Ile bribe you: good my Lord turn back.

Ang. How? bribe me?

Is. I, with such gifts that heaven shall share with you.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] You had mar'd all else.

Isab. Not with fond Sickles of the tested-gold,
Or Stones, whose rate are either rich, or poore
As fancie values them: but with true prayers, 180
That shall be up at heaven, and enter there
Ere Sunne rise: prayers from preserved soules,
From fasting Maides, whose mindes are dedicate
To nothing temporall.

Ang. Well: come to me to morrow.

Luc. [Aside to Is.] Goe to: 'tis well; away.

Isab. Heaven keepe your honour safe.

Ang. [Aside] Amen.

For I am that way going to temptation,
Where prayers crosse. 190

Isab. At what hower to morrow,
Shall I attend your Lordship?

Ang. At any time 'fore-noone.

Isab. 'Save your Honour.

[Exeunt Isabella, Lucio, and Provost.]

Ang. From thee: even from thy vertue.

What's this? what's this? is this her fault, or mine?

The Tempter, or the Tempted, who sins most? ha?

Not she: nor doth she tempt: but it is I,

That, lying by the Violet in the Sunne,

Doe as the Carrion<sup>do's</sup>, not as the flowre, 200

Corrupt with vertuous season: Can it be,

That Modesty may more betray our Sence

Then womans lightnesse? having waste ground enough,

Shall we desire to raze the Sanctuary

And pitch our evils there? oh fie, fie, fie:

What dost thou? or what art thou Angelo?

Dost thou desire her fowly, for those things

That make her good? oh, let her brother live:

Theeves for their robbery have authority,

When Judges steale themselves: what, doe I love her, 210

That I desire to heare her speake againe?

And feast upon her eyes? what is't I dreame on?

Oh cunning enemy, that to catch a Saint,

With Saints dost bait thy hooke: most dangerous

Is that temptation, that doth goad us on

To sinne, in loving vertue: never could the Strumpet

With all her double vigor, Art, and Nature

Once stir my temper: but this vertuous Maid

Subdues me quite: Ever till now 219

When men were fond, I smild, and wondred how. Exit.

Scena Tertia.[A room in a prison.]Enter [severally] Duke [disguised as a friar] and Provost. |Duke. Haile to you, Provost, so I thinke you are.Pro. I am the Provoſt: whats your will, good Frier?

Duke. Bound by my charity, and my bleſt order,
 I come to viſite the afflicted ſpirits
 Here in the priſon: doe me the common right
 To let me ſee them: and to make me knowe
 The nature of their crimes, that I may miniſter
 To them accordingly. 10

Pro. I would do more then that, if more were needfull*Enter Juliet.*

Looke here comes one: a Gentlewoman of mine,
 Who falling in the flawes of her owne youth,
 Hath bliſterd her report: She is with childe,
 And he that got it, ſentenc'd: a yong man,
 More fit to doe another ſuch offence,
 Then dye for this.

Duk. When muſt he dye?Pro. As I do thinke to morrow. 20

I have provided for you, ſtay a while
 And you ſhall be conducted.

Duk. Repent you (faire one) of the ſin you carry?Jul. I doe; and beare the ſhame moſt patiently.

Du. Ile teach you how you ſhal araign your conſcience
 And try your penitence, if it be ſound,
 Or hollowly put on.

Jul. Ile gladly learne.

Duk. Love you the man that wrong'd you?

Jul. Yes, as I love the woman that wrong'd him. 30

Duk. So then it seemes your most offence full act
Was mutually committed.

Jul. Mutually.

Duk. Then was your sin of heavier kinde then his.

Jul. I doe confesse it, and repent it (Father.)

Duk. 'Tis meet so (daughter) but least you do repent
As that the sin hath brought you to this shame,
Which sorrow is alwaies toward our selves, not heaven,
Showing we would not spare heaven, as we love it,
But as we stand in feare. 40

Jul. I doe repent me, as it is an cvill,
And take the shame with joy.

Duke. There rest:
Your partner (as I heare) must die to morrow,
And I am going with instruction to him:
Grace goe with you, Benedicite. Exit.

Jul. Must die to morrow? oh injurious Love
That respits me a life, whose very comfort
Is still a dying horror.

Pro. 'Tis pittie of him. Excunt. 50

Scena Quarta.

[A room in Angelo's house.]

Enter Angelo.

An. When I would pray, & think, I thinke, and pray
To severall subjects: heaven hath my empty words,
Whilst my Invention, hearing not my 'Tongue,
Anchors on Isabell: heaven in my mouth,
As if I did but onely chew his name,

40. feare.: fear,—CAPELL.

And in my heart the strong and swelling evill
 Of my conception: the state whereon I studied
 Is like a good thing, being often read 10
 Growne feard, and tedious: yea, my Gravitie
 Wherein (let no man heare me) I take pride,
 Could I, with boote, change for an idle plume
 Which the ayre beats for vaine: oh place, oh forme,
 How often dost thou with thy case, thy habit
 Wrench awe from fooles, and tye the wiser soules
 To thy false seeming? Blood, thou art blood,
 Let's write good Angell on the Devills horne
 'Tis not the Devills Crest: how now? who's there?

Enter Servant. 20

Ser. One Isabell, a Sister, desires accesse to you.

Ang. Teach her the way: oh, heavens
 Why doe's my bloud thus muster to my heart,
 Making both it unable for it selfe,
 And dispossessing all my other parts
 Of necessary fitnessse? <sup>1 common people.</sup>
 So play the foolish throngs with one that swoonds,
 Come all to help him, and so stop the ayre
 By which hee should revive: and even so
 The generall<sup>1</sup> subject to a wel-wisht King 30
 Quit their owne part, and in obsequious fondnesse
 Crowd to his presence, where their un-taught love
 Must needs appear offence: how now faire Maid.

Enter Isabella.

Isab. I am come to know your pleasure.

An. That you might know it, wold much better please me, |
 Then to demand what 'tis: your Brother cannot live.

27. swoonds: swoons-2Rowx.

Isab. Even so: heaven keepe your Honor.

Ang. Yet may he live a while: and it may be
As long as you, or I: yet he must die. 40

Isab. Under your Sentence?

Ang. Yea.

Isab. When, I beseech you: that in his Reprieve (Longer, or shorter) he may be so fitted
That his soule sicken not.

Ang. Ha? fie, these filthy vices: It were as good
To pardon him, that hath from nature stolne
A man already made, as to remit
Their sawcie sweetnes, that do coyne heavens Image
In stamps that are forbid: 'tis all as easie, 50
Falsely to take away a life true made,
As to put mettle in restrained meanes
To make a false one.

Isab. 'Tis set downe so in heaven, but not in earth.

Ang. Say you so: then I shall poze you quickly.
Which had you rather, that the most just Law
Now tooke your brothers life, and to redeeme him
Give up your body to such sweet uncleannesse
As she that he hath staind?

Isab. Sir, beleeeve this. 60
I had rather give my body, then my soule.

Ang. I talke not of your soule: our compel'd sins
Stand more for number, then for accompt.

Isab. How say you?

Ang. Nay Ile not warrant that: for I can speake Against the thing I say: Answer to this,
I (now the voyce of the recorded Law)
Pronounce a sentence on your Brothers life,
Might there not be a charitie in sinne,
To save this Brothers life? 70

52. mettle: metal—THEOBALD.

Isab. Please you to doo't,
He take it as a perill to my soule,
It is no sinne at all, but charitie.

Ang. Pleas'd you to doo't, at perill of your soule
Were equall poize of sinne, and charitie.

Isab. That I do beg his life, if it be sinne
Heaven let me beare it: you granting of my suit,
If that be sin, He make it my Morne-praier,
To have it added to the faults of mine,
And nothing of your answere. 80

Ang. Nay, but heare me,
Your sence pursues not mine: either you are ignorant,
Or seeme so crafty; and that's not good.

Isab. Let be ignorant, and in nothing good,
But graciously to know I am no better.

Ang. Thus wisdom wishes to appeare most bright,
When it doth taxe it selfe: As these blacke Masques
Proclaime an en-shield<sup>1</sup> beauty ten times louder
Then beauty could displaied: But marke me, <sup>1</sup> covered
To be received plaine, He speake more grosse: 90
Your Brother is to dye.

Isab. So.

Ang. And his offence is so, as it appeares,
Accountant to the Law, upon that paine.<sup>2</sup> <sup>2</sup> penalty

Isab. True.

Ang. Admit no other way to save his life
(As I subscribe not that, nor any other,
But in the losse of question) that you, his Sister,
Finding your selfe desir'd of such a person, 99
Whose credit with the Judge, or owne great place,
Could fetch your Brother from the Manacles
Of the all-building-Law: and that there were
No earthly meane to save him, but that either

83. crafty: craftily—Rowe.

84. Let be: Let me be—2-4F.

You must lay downe the treasures of your body,
 To this supposed, or else to let him suffer:
 What would you doe?

Isab. As much for my poore Brother, as my selfe;
 That is: were I under the tearmes of death,
 Th'impression of keene whips, I'd weare as Rubies,
 And strip my selfe to death, as to a bed, 110
 That longing have bin sicke for, ore I'd yeeld
 My body up to shame.

Ang. Then must your brother die.

Isa. And 'twere the cheaper way:
 Better it were a brother dide at once,
 Then that a sister, by redeeming him
 Should die for ever.

Ang. Were not you then as cruell as the Sentence,
 That you have slander'd so?

Isa. Ignomie in ransome, and free pardon 120
 Are of two houses: lawfull mercie,
 Is nothing kin to fowle redemption.

Ang. You seem'd of late to make the Law a tirant,
 And rather prov'd the sliding of your brother
 A merriment, then a vice.

Isa. Oh pardon me my Lord, it oft fals out
 To have, what we would have,
 We speake not what we meane;
 I something do excuse the thing I hate,
 For his advantage that I dearly love. 130

Ang. We are all fraile.

Isa. Else let my brother die,
 If not a fedarie but onely he Owe,<sup>1</sup> and succeed thy weaknesse. 1 own

Ang. Nay, women are fraile too.

Isa. I, as the glasses where they view themselves,

Which are as easie broke as they make formes:
 Women? Helpe heaven; men their creation marre
 In profiting by them: Nay, call us ten times fraile,
 For we are soft, as our complexions are, 140
 And credulous to false prints.

Ang. I thinke it well:

And from this testimonie of your owne sex
 (Since I suppose we are made to be no stronger
 Then faults may shake our frames) let me be bold;
 I do arrest your words. Be that you are,
 That is a woman; if you be more, you'r none.
 If you be one (as you are well exprest
 By all externall warrants) shew it now,
 By putting on the destin'd Liverie. 150

Isa. I have no tongue but one; gentle my Lord,
 Let me entreate you speake the former language.

Ang. Plainlie conceive I love you.

Isa. My brother did love Juliet,
 And you tell me that he shall die for't.

Ang. He shall not Isabell if you give me love.

Isa. I know your vertue hath a licence in't,
 Which seemes a little fouler then it is,
 To plucke on others.

Ang. Beleeve me on mine Honor, 160
 My words expresse my purpose.

Isa. Ha? Little honor, to be much beleev'd,
 And most pernicious purpose: Seeming, seeming.
 I will proclaime thee Angelo, looke for't.
 Signe me a present pardon for my brother,
 Or with an out-stretcht throate Ile tell the world aloud
 What man thou art.

Ang. Who will beleeve thee Isabell?
 My unsoild name, th'austereenesse of my life,
 155. for't: for it—PORR.

My vouch against you, and my place i'th State, 170
 Will so your accusation over-weigh,
 That you shall stifle in your owne report,
 And smell of calunnie. I have begun,
 And now I give my sensuall race, the reine,
 Fit thy consent to my sharpe appetite,
 Lay by all nicetic, and proluxious blushes
 That banish what they sue for: Redeeme thy brother,
 By yeelding up thy hodie to my will,
 Or else he must not onelic die the death,
 But thy unkindnesse shall his death draw out 180
 To lingring sufferance: Answer me to morrow,
 Or by the affection that now guides me most,
 Ile prove a Tirant to him. As for you,
 Say what you can; my false, ore-weighs your true. Exit
Isa. To whom should I complaine? Did I tell this,
 Who would beleeve me? O perillous mouthes
 That beare in them, one and the selfe same tongue,
 Either of condemnation, or approofe,<sup>1</sup> <sup>1 approval</sup>
 Bidding the Law make curtsie to their will,
 Hooking both right and wrong to th'appetite, 190
 To follow as it drawes. Ile to my brother,
 Though he hath falne by prompture of the blood,
 Yet hath he in him such a minde of Honor,
 That had he twentie heads to tender downe
 On twentie bloodie blockes, hee'd yeeld them up,
 Before his sister should her bodie stoope
 To such abhord pollution.
 Then Isabell live chaste, and brother die;
 "More then our Brother, is our Chastitie.
 Ile tell him yet of Angelo's request, 200
 And fit his minde to death, for his soules rest. Exit.

172. reparr: report-2-4F.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.[A room in the prison.]Enter Duke [disguised as before], Claudio, and Provost.Du. So then you hope of pardon from Lord Angelo?Glu. The miserable have no other medicine
But onely hope: I 'have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die.Duke. Be absolute for death: either death or life
Shall thereby be the sweeter. Reason thus with life:
If I do loose thee, I do loose a thing 9
That none but fooles would keepe: a breath thou art,
Servile to all the skyie-influences,
That dost this habitation where thou keepst
Hourely afflict: Meerely, thou art deaths foole,
For him thou labourst by thy flight to shun,
And yet runst toward him still. Thou art not noble,
For all th'accommodations that thou bearest,
Are nurst by basenesse: Thou'rt by no meanes valiant,
For thou dost feare the soft and tender forke
Of a poore worme: thy best of rest is sleepe,
And that thou oft provoakst, yet grosselie fearest 20
Thy death, which is no more. Thou art not thy selfe,
For thou exists on manie a thousand graines
That issue out of dust. Happie thou art not,
For what thou hast not, still thou striv'st to get,
And what thou hast forgetst. Thou art not certaine,
For thy complexion shifts to strange effects,
After the Moone: If thou art rich, thou'rt poore,
For like an Asse, whose backe with Ingots bowes;5. But onely hope: separate l., new l. at 1—CAPELL. I 'have: I've —CAPELL.22. exists: exist'et—THEOBALD.

Thou bearest thy heaue riches but a iournie,
 And death unloads thee; Friend hast thou none. 30
 For thine owne bowels which do call thee, sire
 The meere effusion of thy proper loines
 Do curse the Gowt, Sapego, and the Rheume
 For ending thee no sooner. Thou hast nor youth, nor age
 But as it were an after-dinners sleepe
 Dreaming on both, for all thy blessed youth
 Becomes as aged. and doth begge the almes
 Of palsied-Eld: and when thou art old, and rich
 Thou hast neither heate, affection, limbe, nor beautie
 To make thy riches pleasant: what's yet in this 40
 That beares the name of life? Yet in this life
 Lie hid moe thousand deaths; yet death we feare
 That makes these oddes, all even.

Cla. I humblie thanke you.

'To sue to live, I finde I seeke to die,
 And seeking death, finde life: Let it come on.

Enter Isabella.

Isab. What hoa? Peace heere; Grace, and good com-panie.

Pro. Who's there? Come in, the wish deserves a welcome. 51

Duke. Deere sir, ere long Ile visit you againe.

Cla. Most holie Sir, I thanke you.

Isa. My businesse is a word or two with Claudio.

Pro. And verie welcom: looke Signior, here's your sister.

Duke. Provost, a word with you.

Pro. As manie as you please.

33. Sapego: serpigo—Rowe.

Duke. Bring them to heare me speak, where I may be conceal'd. [Exeunt Duke and Provost.] 60

Gla. Now sister, what's the comfort?

Isa. Why,

As all comforts are: most good, most good indeede,
Lord Angelo having affaires to heaven
Intends you for his swift Ambassador,
Where you shall be an everlasting Leiger;<sup>1</sup> <sup>1 resident</sup>
Therefore your best appointment<sup>2</sup> make with speed,
To Morrow you set on. <sup>2 preparation</sup>

Gla. Is there no remedie?

Isa. None, but such remedie, as to saw a head 70
To cleave a heart in twaine:

Gla. But is there anie?

Isa. Yes brother, you may live;
There is a divellish mercie in the Judge,
If you'l implore it, that will free your life,
But fetter you till death.

Gla. Perpetuall durance?

Isa. I just, perpetuall durance, a restraint
Through all the worlds vastiditie you had
To a determin'd scope. 80

Gla. But in what nature?

Isa. In such a one, as you consenting too't,
Would barke your honor from that trunk you beare,
And leave you naked.

Gla. Let me know the point.

Isa. Oh, I do feare thee Claudio, and I quake,
Least thou a feavorous life shouldst entertaine,
And six or seven winters more respect
Then a perpetuall Honor. Dar'st thou die?
The sence of death is most in apprehension, 90

And the poore Beetle that we treade upon
In corporall sufferance, finds a pang as great,
As when a Giant dies.

Cla. Why give you me this shame?
Thinke you I can a resolution fetch
From flowrie tendernesse? If I must die,
I will encounter darknesse as a bride,
And hugge it in mine armes.

Isa. There wake my brother: there my fathers grave
Did utter forth a voice. Yes, thou must die: 100
Thou art too noble, to conserve a life
In base appli-aces. This outward sainted Deputie,
Whose settled visage, and deliberate word
Nips youth i'th head, and follies doth emmew
As Falcon doth the Fowle, is yet a divell:
His filth within being cast, he would appeare
A pond, as deepe as hell.

Cla. The prenzie,<sup>1</sup> Angelo? <sup>1</sup> prim

Isa. Oh 'tis the cunning Liverie of hell,
The damnest bodie to invest, and cover 110
In prenzie gardes;<sup>2</sup> dost thou thinke Claudio,
If I would yeeld him my virginie <sup>2</sup> trappings
Thou might'st be freed?

Cla. Oh heavens, it cannot be.

Isa. Yes, he would giv't thee; from this rank offence
So to offend him still. This night's the time
That I should do what I abhorre to name,
Or else thou diest to morrow.

Cla. Thou shalt not do't.

Isa. O, were it but my life, 120
I'de throw it downe for your deliverance
As frankly as a pin.

Cla. Thankes deere Isabell.

Isa. Be readie Claudio, for your death to morrow.

Clau. Yes. Has he affections in him,
That thus can make him bite the Law by th'nose,
When he would force it? Sure it is no sinne,
Or of the deadly seven it is the least.

Isa. Which is the least?

Clau. If it were damnable, he being so wise, 130
Why would he for the momentarie trickes
Be perdurable fin'de? Oh Isabell.

Isa. What saies my brother?

Clau. Death is a fearefull thing.

Isa. And shamed life, a hatefull.

Clau. I, but to die, and go we know not where,
To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot,
This sensible warme motion, to become
A kneaded clod; And the delighted spirit
To bath in fierie floods, or to recide 140
In thrilling Region of thicke-ribbed Ice,
To be imprison'd in the viewlesse windes
And blowne with restlesse violence round about
The pendant world: or to be worse then worst
Of those, that lawlesse and incertaine thought,
Imagine howling, 'tis too horrible.
The weariest, and most loathed worldly life
That Age, Ache, perjury, and imprisonment
Can lay on nature, is a Paradise
To what we feare of death. 150

Isa. Alas, alas.

Clau. Sweet Sister, let me live.
What sinne you do, to save a brothers life,
Nature dispenses with the deede so farre,
That it becomes a vertue.

Isa. Oh you beast,
Oh faithlesse Coward, oh dishonest wretch,

148. perjury: penury-2-4F.

Wilt thou be made a man, out of my vice?
 'Is't not a kinde of Incest, to take life 159
 From thine owne sisters shame? What should I thinke, Heaven shield my Mother plaid my Father faire:
 For such a warped slip of wildernesse<sup>1</sup> <sup>1 wildness</sup>
 Nere issu'd from his blood. Take my defiance,
 Die, perish: Might but my bending downe
 Repreeve thee from thy fate, it should proceede.
 Ile pray a thousand 'praiers for thy death,
 No word to save thee.

Cla. Nay heare me Isabell.

Isa. Oh fie, fie, fie:

Thy sinn's not accidentall, but a Trade; 170
 Mercy to thee would prove it selfe a Bawd,
 'Tis best that thou diest quickly.

Cla. Oh heare me Isabella.

[Re-enter Duke.]

Duk. Vouchsafe a word, yong sister, but one word.

Isa. What is your Will.

Duk. Might you dispense with your leysure, I would by and by have some speech with you: the satisfaction I would require, is likewise your owne benefit. 178

Isa. I have no superfluous leysure, my stay must be stolen out of other affaires: but I will attend you a while.

[Walks apart.]

Duke. Son, I have over-heard what hath past between you & your sister. Angelo had never the purpose to corrupt her; onely he hath made an assay of her vertue, to practise his judgement with the disposition of natures.
 She (having the truth of honour in her) hath made him that gracious deniall, which he is most glad to receive: I am Confessor to Angelo, and I know this to be true, therfore prepare your selfe to death: do not satisfie your resolution with hopes that are fallible, to morrow you must die, goe to your knees, and make ready. 190

Gla. Let me ask my sister pardon, I am so out of love with life, that I will sue to be rid of it.

Duke. Hold you there: farewell: [Exit Claudio.]
Provost, a word | with you.

Pro. What's your will (father?)

Duk. That now you are come, you will be gone: leave me a while with the Maid, my minde promises with my habit, no losse shall touch her by my company.

Pro. In good time. Exit. 199

[Isabella comes forward.]

Duk. The hand that hath made you faire, hath made you good: the goodnes that is cheape in beauty, makes beauty briefe in goodnes; but grace being the soule of your complexion, shall keepe the body of it ever faire: the assault that Angelo hath made to you, Fortune hath convoid to my understanding; and but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I should wonder at Angelo: how will you doe to content this Substitute, and to save your Brother? 208

Isab. I am now going to resolve him: I had rather my brother die by the Law, then my sonne should be unlawfullie borne. But (oh) how much is the good Duke deceiv'd in Angelo: if ever he returne, and I can speake to him, I will open my Mps in vaine, or discover his government.

Duke. That shall not be much amisse: yet, as the matter now stands, he will avoid your accusation: he made triall of you onelic. Therefore fasten your care on my advisings, to the love I have in doing good; a remedie

218. advisings, to .. good; a: advisings: to .. good &—POPE.

presents it selfe. I doe make my selfe beleeeve that you may most uprightously do a poor wronged Lady a merited benefit; redeem your brother from theangry Law; doe no staine to your owne gracious person, and much please the absent Duke, if peradventure he shall ever retorne to have hearing of this businesse. 224

Isab. Let me heare you speake farther; I have spirit to do any thing that appeares not fowle in the truth of my spirit.

Duke. Vertue is bold, and goodnes never fearefull: Have you not heard speake of Mariana the sister of Fredericke the great Souldier, who miscarried at Sea? 230

Isa. I have heard of the Lady, and good words went with her name.

Duke. Shee should this Angelo have married: was affianced to her oath, and the nuptiall appointed: between which time of the contract, and limit of the solemnitie, her brother Fredericke was wrackt at Sea, having in that perished vessell, the dowry of his sister: but marke how heavily this befell to the poore Gentlewoman, there she lost a noble and renowned brother, in his love toward her, ever most kinde and naturall: with him the portion and sinew of her fortune, her marriage dowry: with both, her combynate<sup>1</sup>-husband, this well-seeming Angelo. <sup>1</sup>affianced 243

Isab. Can this be so? did Angelo so leave her?

Duke. Left her in her teares, & dried not one of them with his comfort: swallowed his vovves whole, pretending in her, discoveries of dishonor: in few, bestow'd her on her owne lamentation, which she yet weares for his sake: and he, a marble to her teares, is washed with them, but relents not. 250

234. her oath: her by oath—2-4F.

Isab. What a merit were it in death to take this poore maid from the world? what corruption in this life, that it will let this man live? But how out of this can shee a-vaille?

Duke. It is a rupture that you may easily heale: and the cure of it not onely saves your brother, but keepes you from dishonor in doing it.

Isab. Shew me how (good Father.) 258

Duk. This fore-named Maid hath yet in her the continuance of her first affection: his unjust unkindnesse (that in all reason should have quenched her love) hath (like an impediment in the Current) made it more violent and unruly: Goe you to Angelo, answere his requiring with a plausible obedience, agree with his demands to the point: onely referre your selfe to this advantage; first, that your stay with him may not be long: that the time may have all shadow, and silence in it: and the place answere to convenience: this being granted in course, and now followes all: wee shall advise this wronged maid to steed up your appointment, goe in your place: if the encounter acknowledge it selfe heereafter, it may compell him to her recompence; and heere, by this is your brother saved, your honor untainted, the poore Mariana advantaged, and the corrupt Deputy scaled. The Maid will I frame, and make fit for his attempt: if you thinke well to carry this as you may, the doublenes of the benefit defends the deceit from reproofe. What thinke you of it?

Isab. The image of it gives me content already, and I trust it will grow to a most prosperous perfection. 280

Duk. It lies much in your holding up: haste you speedily to Angelo, if for this night he intreat you to his bed, give him promise of satisfaction: I will presently to S. Lukes, there at the moated-Grange recides this dejected Mariana; at that place call upon me, and dispatch with Angelo, that it may be quickly.

Isab. I thank you for this comfort: fare you well good father. Exit.

[Scene ii. The street before the prison.]

[Enter on one side, Duke, disguised as before; on the other] Enter Elbow, Clowne [Pompey], Officers.

Elb. Nay, if there be no remedy for it, but that you will needes buy and sell men and women like beasts, we shall have all the world drinke browne & white bastard.<sup>1</sup>

Clow. Twas never merry world since of two usuries the merriest was put downe, and the worser allow'd by order of Law; a fur'd gowne to keepe him warme; and furd with Foxe and Lamb-skins too, to signifie, that craft being richer then Innocency, stands for the facing. 10

Elb. Come your way sir: 'blesse you good Father Frier.

Duk. And you good Brother Father; what offence hath this man made you, Sir?

Elb. Marry Sir, he hath offended the Law; and Sir, we take him to be a Theefe too Sir: for wee have found upon him Sir, a strange Pick-lock, which we have sent to the Deputie.

Duke. Fie, sirrah, a Bawd, a wicked bawd,
The evill that thou causest to be done, 20
That is thy meanes to live. Do thou but thinke
What 'tis to cram a maw, or cloath a backe

B. Low; a: law a—HAMMER.

From such a filthie vice: say to thy selfe,
 From their abhominable and beastly touches
 I drinke, I eate away my selfe, and live:
 Canst thou beleeeve thy living is a life,
 So stinkingly depending? Go mend, go mend.

Clo. Indeed, it do's stinke in some sort, Sir:
 But yet Sir I would prove. 29

Duke. Nay, if the divell have given thee proofs for sin
 Thou wilt prove his. Take him to prison Officer:
 Correction, and Instruction must both worke
 Ere this rude beast will profit.

Elb. He must before the Deputy Sir, he ha's given him warning: the Deputy cannot abide a Whore-master: if he be a Whore-monger, and comes before him, he were as good go a mile on his errand.

Duke. That we were all, as some would seeme to bee
 From our faults, as faults from seeming free.

Enter Lucio. 40

Elb. His necke will come to your wast, a Cord sir.

Clo. I spy comfort, I cry baile: Here's a Gentleman, and a friend of mine.

Luc. How now noble Pompey? What, at the wheels of Cæsar? Art thou led in triumph? What is there none of Pigmaliions Images newly made woman to bee had now, for putting the hand in the pocket, and extracting clutch'd? What reply? Ha? What saist thou to this Tune, Matter, and Method? Is't not drown'd i'th last raine? Ha? What saist thou Trot? Is the world as it was Man? Which is the way? Is it sad, and few words?
 Or how? The tricke of it? 52

25. away: array—THEOBALD.

28-9. prove—PORZ.

48. clutch'd: it clutched—2ROWZ.

Duke. Still thus, and thus: still worse?

Luc. How doth my deere Morsell, thy Mistris? Procures she still? Ha?

Clo. Troth sir, shee hath eaten up all her beefe, and she is her selfe in the tub.

Luc. Why 'tis good: It is the right of it: it must be so. Ever your fresh Whore, and your pouder'd Baud, an unshun'd consequence, it must be so. Art going to prison Pompey? 61

Clo. Ycs taitli sir.

Luc. Why 'tis not amisse Pompey: farewell: goe say I sent thee hether: for debt Pompey? Or how?

Elb. For being a baud, for being a baud.

Luc. Well, then imprison him: If imprisonment be the due of a baud, why 'tis his right. Baud is no doubtlesse, and of antiquity too: Baud borne. Farwell good Pompey: Commend me to the prison Pompey, you will turne good husband now Pompey, you will keepe the house. 71

Clo. I hope Sir, your good Worship will be my baile?

Luc. No indeed wil I not Pompey, it is not the wear: I will pray (Pompey) to encrease your bondage if you take it not patiently: Why, your mettle is the more: Adieu trustie Pompey.

Blesse you Friar.

Duke. And you.

Luc. Do's Bridget paine still, Pompey? Ha?

Elb. Come your waies sir, come. 80

Clo. You will not baile me then Sir?

Luc. Then Pompey, nor now: what newes abroad Frier? What newes?

Elb. Come your waies sir, come.

74-5. bondage if .. patiently: Why: bondage: if .. patiently, why-THEOBALD. 76-7. prosc-Pope.

Luc. Goe to kennell (Pompey) goe:

[Ex. El., Pom., & Off.]

What newes Frier of the Duke?

Duke. I know none: can you tell me of any?

Luc. Some say he is with the Emperour of Russia: other some, he is in Rome: but where is he thinke you?

Duke. I know not where: but wheresoever, I wish him well. 91

Luc. It was a mad fantastickall trick of him to steale from the State, and usurpe the beggerie hee was never borne to: Lord Angelo Dukes it well in his absence: he puts transgression too't.

Duke. He do's well in't.

Luc. A little more lenitie to Lecherie would doe no harme in him: Something too crabbed that way, Frier.

Duk. It is too general a vice, and severitie must cure it.

Luc. Yes in good sooth, the vice is of a great kindred; it is well allied, but it is impossible to extirpe it quite, Frier, till eating and drinking be put downe. They say this Angelo was not made by Man and Woman, after this downe-right way of Creation: is it true, thinke you? 105

Duke. How should he be made then?

Luc. Some report, a Sea-maid spawn'd him. Some, that he was begot betweene two Stock-fishes. But it is certaine, that when he makes water, his Urine is congeal'd ice, that I know to be true: and he is a motion generative, that's infallible. 111

Duke. You are pleasant sir, and speake apace.

Luc. Why, what a ruthlesse thing is this in him, for the rebellion of a Cod-pence, to take away the life of a man? Would the Duke that is absent have done this? Ere he would have hang'd a man for the getting a hundred Bastards, he would have paid for the Nursing a thousand. He had some feeling of the sport, hee knew the service, and that instructed him to mercie. 119

Duke. I never heard the absent Duke much detected<sup>1</sup> for Women, he was not enclin'd that way. <sup>1</sup> accused

Luc. Oh Sir, you are deceiv'd.

Duke. 'Tis not possible.

Luc. Who, not the Duke? Yes, your beggar of fifty: and his use was, to put a ducket in her Clack-dish; the Duke had Crochets in him. Hee would be drunke too, that let me informe you.

Duke. You do him wrong, surely.

Luc. Sir, ~~A~~ was an inward<sup>2</sup> of his: a shie fellow was the Duke, and I beleeve I know the cause of his withdrawing. <sup>2</sup> intimate 131

Duke. What (I prethee) might be the cause?

Luc. No, pardon: 'Tis a secret must bee lockt within the teeth and the lippes: but this I can let you understand, the greater file of the subject held the Duke to be wise.

Duke. Wise? Why no question but he was. 137

Luc. A very superficial, ignorant, unweighing fellow

Duke. Either this is Envie in you, Folly, or mistaking: The very streame of his life, and the businesse he hath helmed,<sup>3</sup> must uppon a warranted neede, give him a better proclamation. Let him be but testimonied in his owne bringings forth, and hee shall appeare to the envious, a Scholler, a Statesman, and a Soldier: therefore you speake unskilfully: or, if your knowledge bee more, it is much darkned in your malice. <sup>3</sup> steered

Luc. Sir, I know him, and I love him.

Duke. Love talkes with better knowledge, & knowledge with deare love.

Luc. Come Sir, I know what I know. 150

149. deare: dearer—HAMMER.

Duke. I can hardly beleeeve that, since you know not what you speake. But if ever the Duke returne (as our praiera are he may) let mee desire you to make your answer before him: if it bee honest you have spoke, you have courage to maintaine it; I am bound to call uppon you, and I pray you your name?

Luc. Sir my name is Lucio, wel known to the Duke.

Duke. He shall know you better Sir, if I may live to report you.

Luc. I feare you not. 160

Duke. O, you hope the Duke will returne no more: or you imagine me to unhurtfull an opposit<sup>on</sup> but indeed I can doe you little harme: You'll for-sweare this againe?

Luc.<sup>a</sup> Ile be hang'd first: Thou art deceiv'd in mee Friar. But no more of this: Canst thou tell if Claudio die to morrow, or no?

Duke. Why should he die Sir? <sup>1 funnel</sup> 168

Luc.<sup>a</sup> Why? For filling a bottle with a 'Tunne-dish:<sup>1</sup> I would the Duke we talke of were return'd againe: this ungenitur'd Agent will un-people the Province with Continencie. Sparrowes must not build in his house-eeves, because they are lecherous: The Duke yet would have darke deeds darkelie answered, hee would never bring them to light: would hee were return'd. Marrie this Claudio is condemned for untrussing. Farwell good Friar, I prethee pray for me: The Duke (I say to thee againe) would eate Mutton on Fridaies. He's now past it, yet (and I say to thee) hee would mouth with a beggar, though she smelt browne-bread and Garlicke: say that I said so: Farewell. Exit. 181

Duke. No might, nor greatnesse in mortality
Can censure scape: Back-wounding calummie

178. now: not-HANMER.

The whitest vertue strikes. What King so strong,
 Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tong?
 But who comes heere?

Enter Escalus, Provost, and [Off. with] Bawd
[Mistress Overdone].

Esc. Go, away with her to prison.

Bawd. Good my Lord be good to mee, your Honor is accounted a mercifull man: good my Lord. 190

Esc. Double, and trebble admonition, and still forfeite in the same kinde? This would make mercy sweare and play the Tyrant.

Pro. A Bawd of eleven yeares continuance, may it please your Honor.

Bawd. My Lord, this is one Lucio's information against me, Mistris Kate Keepe-downe was with childe by him in the Dukes time, he promis'd her marriage: his Childe is a yeere and a quarter olde come Philip and Jacob: I have kept it my selfe; and see how hee goes about to abuse me. 201

Esc. That fellow is a fellow of much License:<sup>1</sup> Let him be call'd before us. Away with her to prison: Goe too, no more words. [Ex. Off. with Overdone.] Provost, my Brother Angelo will | not be alter'd, Claudio must die to morrow: Let him be | furnish'd with Divines, and have all charitable prepara- | tion. If my brother wrought by my pitie, it should not | be so with him. | <sup>1</sup> looseness

Pro. So please you, this Friar hath beene with him, and advis'd him for th'entertainment of death. 210

Esc. Good'even, good Father.

Duke. Blisse, and goodnesse on you.

Esc. Of whence are you?

Duke. Not of this Countrie, though my chance is now

To use it for my time: I am a brother
Of gracious Order, late come from the Sea,
In speciall businesse from his Holinesse.

Esc. What newes abroad i'th World? 218

Duke. None, but that there is so great a Feavor on goodnesse, that the dissolution of it must cure it. Noveltie is onely in request, and as it is as dangerous to be aged in any kinde of course, as it is vertuous to be constant in any undertaking. There is scarce truth enough alive to make Societies secure, but Securitie enough to make Fellowships accurst: Much upon this riddle runs the wisdom of the world: This newes is old enough, yet it is everie daies newes. I pray you Sir, of what disposition was the Duke?

Esc. One, that above all other strifes,
Contended especially to know himselfe. „230

Duke. What pleasure was he given to?

Esc. Rather rejoycing to see another merry, then merrie at anie thing which profest to make him rejoyce.
A Gentleman of all temperance. But leave wee him to his events, with a praier they may prove prosperous, &
let me desire to know, how you finde Claudio prepar'd?
I am made to understand, that you have lent him visitation. 238

Duke. He professes to have received no sinister measure from his Judge, but most willingly humbles himselfe to the determination of Justice: yet had he framed to himselfe (by the instruction of his frailty) manie deceyving promises of life, which I (by my good leisure) have discredited to him, and now is he resolv'd to die.

Esc. You have paid the heavens your Function, and the prisoner the verie debt of your Calling. I have la-bour'd for the poore Gentleman, to the extreamest shore of my modestie, but my brother-Justice have I found so severe, that he hath forc'd me to tell him, hee is indeede

Justice. 250

Duke. If his owne life,
Answer the straitnesse of his proceeding,
It shall become him well: wherein if he chance to faile
he hath sentenc'd himselfe.

Esc. I am going to visit the prisoner, Fare you well.

Duke. Peace be with you. [Ex. Escalus & Provost.]
He who the sword of Heaven will beare,
Should be as holy, as seveare:
Patterne in himselfe to know,
Grace to stand, and Vertue go: 260
More, nor lesse to others paying,
Then by selfe-offences weighing.
Shame to him, whose cruell striking,
Kils for faults of his owne liking:
Twice trebble shame on Angelo,
To weede my vice, and let his grow.
Oh, what may Man within him hide,
Though Angel on the outward side?
How may likenesse made in crimes,
Making practise on the Times, 270
To draw with ydle Spiders strings
Most ponderous and substantiall things?
Craft against vice, I must applie.
With Angelo to night shall lye
His old betroathed (but despised):
So disguise shall by th'disguised
Pay with falshood, false exacting,
And performe an olde contracting. Exit

Actus Quartus. Scœna Prima.[The moated grange at St. Luke's.]Enter Mariana, and Boy singing.

Song. *Take, oh take those lips away,
 that so sweetly were forsworne,
 And those eyes: the breake of day lights that doe mislead the Morne;
 But my kisses bring againe, bring againe,
 Seales of love, but seal'd in vaine, seal'd in vaine.*

Enter Duke [disguised as before].

Mar. Breake off thy song, and haste thee quick away,
 Here comes a man of comfort, whose advice 11
 Hath often still'd my brawling discontent. [Exit Boy.]
 I cry you mercie, Sir, and well could wish
 You had not found me here so musicall.
 Let me excuse me, and beleeve me so,
 My mirth it much displeas'd, but pleas'd my woe.

Duk. 'Tis good; though Musick oft hath such a charme
 To make bad, good; and good provoake to harme.
 I pray you tell me, hath any body enquir'd for mee here to day; much upon this time have I promis'd here to meete. 21

Mar. You have not bin enquir'd after: I have sat here all day.

Enter Isabell.

Duk. I doe constantly beleeve you: the time is come even now. I shall crave your forbearance a little, may be
 I will call upon you anone for some advantage to your selfe.

24. Isabell: Isabella—CAPPELL.

Mar. I am alwayes bound to you. Exit.

Duk. Very well met, and well come: 30
What is the newes from this good Deputie?

Isab. He hath a Garden circummur'd with Bricke,
Whose westerne side is with a Vineyard back't;
And to that Vineyard is a planched<sup>1</sup> gate, <sup>1 plank</sup>
That makes his opening with this bigger Key:
This other doth command a little doore,
Which from the Vineyard to the Garden leades,
There have I made my promise, upon the Heavy midle of the night, to call upon him.

Duk. But shall you on your knowledge find this way?

Isab. I have t'ane a due, and wary note upon't, 41
With whispering, and most guiltie diligence,
In action all of precept, he did show me
The way twice ore.

Duk. Are there no other tokens
Betweene you 'greed, concerning her observance?

Isab. No: none but onely a repaire ith' darke,
And that I have possest him, my most stay
Can be but brieve: for I have made him know,
I have a Servant comes with me along 50
That staies upon me; whose perswasion is,
I come about my Brother.

Duk. 'Tis well borne up.
I have not yet made knowne to Mariana

Enter Mariana.

A word of this; what hoa, within; come forth,
I pray you be acquainted with this Maid,
She comes to doe you good.

Isab. I doe desire the like. 59

38-9. 3 ll. ending promise, night, him-CAMBRIDGE.

Duk. Do you perswade your selfe that I respect you?

Mar. Good Frier, I know you do, and have found it.

Duke. Take then this your companion by the hand
Who hath a storie readie for your eare:
I shall attend your leisure, but make haste
The vaporous night approaches.

Mar. Wilt please you walke aside. Exit.

Duke. Oh Place, and greatnes: millions of false eies
Are stucke upon thee: volumes of report
Run with these false, and most contrarious Quest
Upon thy doings: thousand escapes<sup>1</sup> of wit <sup>1</sup>sallies 70
Make thee the father of their idle dreame,
And racke thee in their fancies. Welcome, how agreed?

Enter Mariana and Isabella.

Isab. Shee'll take the enterprize upon her father,
If you advise it.

Duke. It is not my consent,
But my entreaty too.

Isa. Little have you to say
When you depart from him, but soft and low,
Remember now my brother. 80

Mar. Feare me not.

Duk. Nor gentle daughter, feare you not at all:
He is your husband on a pre-contract:
To bring you thus together 'tis no sinne,
Sith that the Justice of your title to him
Doth flourish<sup>2</sup> the deceit. Come, let us goe, <sup>2</sup>justify
Our Corne's to reape, for yet our Tithes to sow. Excunt.

Scena Secunda.[A room in the prison.]Enter Provost and Clowne [Pompey].Pro. Come hither sirha; can you cut off a mans head?Clo. If the man be a Bachelor Sir, I can:*But is he be a married man, he's his wives head,
And I can never cut off a womans head.Pro.* Come sir, leave me your snatches, and yeeld mee a direct answere. To morrow morning are to die Clau- dio and Barnardine: heere is in our prison a common executioner, who in his office lacks a helper, if you will take it on you to assist him, it shall redeeme you from your Gyves: if not, you shall have your full time of imprisonment, and your deliverance with an unpittied whipping; for you have beene a notorious bawd. 14*Clo.* Sir, I have beene an unlawfull bawd, time out of minde, but yet I will bee content to be a lawfull hangman: I would bee glad to receive some instruction from my fellow partner.Pro. What hoa, Abborson: where's Abborson there?Enter Abborson.

20

Abb. Doe you call sir?Pro. Sirha, here's a fellow will helpe you to morrow in your execution: if you thinke it meet, compound with him by the yeere, and let him abide here with you, if not, use him for the present, and dismisce him, hee cannot plead his estimation with you: he hath beene a Bawd.Abb. A Bawd Sir? fie upon him, he will discredit our mysterie.

Pro. Goe too Sir, you waigh equallie: a feather will turne the Scale. Exit. 30

Clo. Pray sir, by your good favor: for surely sir, a good favor<sup>1</sup> you have, but that you have a hanging look: Doe you call sir, your occupation a Myserie? <sup>1</sup>face

Abb. I Sir, a Misterie.

Clo. Painting Sir, I have heard say, is a Misterie; and your Whores sir, being members of my occupation, using painting, do prove my Occupation, a Misterie: but what Misterie there should be in hanging, if I should be hang'd, I cannot imagine.

Abb. Sir, it is a Misterie. 40

Clo. Prooffe.

Abb. Everie true mans apparrell fits your Theefe.

CA. If it be too little for your theefe, your true man thinks it bigge enough. If it bee too bigge for your Theefe, your Theefe thinks it little enough. So everie true mans apparrell fits your Theefe.

Enter Provost.

Pro. Are you agreed?

Clo. Sir, I will serve him: For I do finde your Hangman is a more penitent Trade then your Bawd: he doth oftner aske forgivenessse. 51

Pro. You sirrah, provide your blocke and your Axe to morrow, foure a clocke.

Abb. Come on (Bawd) I will instruct thee in my Trade: follow.

Clo. I do desire to learne sir: and I hope, if you have occasion to use me for your owne turne, you shall finde me y<sup>r</sup>are.<sup>2</sup> For truly sir, for your kindnesse, I owe you a good turne. <sup>2</sup>ready Exit

43. Clo.: out-CAPELL.

58. y<sup>r</sup>are: yare-THEOBALD.

Pro. Call hether Barnardine and Claudio: 60
 Th'one has my pitie; not a jot the other,
 Being a Murtherer, though he were my brother.

Enter Claudio.

Looke, here's the Warrant Claudio, for thy death,
 'Tis now dead midnight, and by eight to morrow
 Thou must be made immortall. Where's Barnardine?

Cla. As fast lock'd up in sleepe, as guiltlesse labour,
 When it lies starkely<sup>1</sup> in the Travellers bones, <sup>1</sup>stiffly
 He will not wake.

Pro. Who can do good on him? 70
 Well, go, prepare your selfe. [Knocking within.] But harke, what noise? |

Heaven give your spirits comfort: by, and by,
 [Exit Claudio.]

I hope it is some pardon, or repreeve
 For the most gentle Claudio. Welcome Father.

Enter Duke [disguised as before].

Duke. The best, and wholsomst spirits of the night,
 Invellop you, good Provost: who call'd heere of late?

Pro. None since the Curphew rung.

Duke. Not Isabell?

Pro. No. 80

Duke. They will then<sup>e</sup>er't be long.

Pro. What comfort is for Claudio?

Duke. There's some in hope.

Pro. It is a bitter Deputie.

Duke. Not so, not so: his life is paralcl'd
 Even with the stroke and line of his great Justice:
 He doth with holie abstinence subdue
 That in himselfe, which he spurres on his powre

To qualifie in others: were he meal'd <sup>1</sup> with that
 Which he corrects, then were he tirrannous, 90
 But this being so, he's just. [Knocking within.] Now are they come. | [Exit Prov.]
 This is a gentle Provost, sildome when <sup>1</sup> spotted
 The steeled Gaoler is the friend of men:
 [Knocking within.]
 How now? what noise? That spirit's possest with hast,
 That wounds th'unsisting <sup>2</sup> Posterne with these strokes.

[Re-enter Provost.]

Pro. There he must stay until the Officer
 Arise to let him in: he is call'd up. <sup>2</sup> unyielding

Duke. Have you no countermand for Claudio yet?
 But he must die to morrow?

Pro. None Sir, none. 100

Duke. As neere the dawning Provost, as 't is,
 You shall heare more ere Morning.

Pra. Happely
 You something know: yet I beleeve there comes
 No countermand: no such example have we:
 Besides, upon the verie siege<sup>3</sup> of Justice, <sup>3</sup> seat
 Lord Angelo hath to the publike care
 Profest the contrarie.

Enter a Messenger.

Duke. This is his Lords<sup>a</sup> man. 110

Pro. And heere comes Claudio's pardon.

Mess. [Giving a paper] My Lord hath sent you this note, |
 And by mee this further charge;

103. Happely: Happily-3-4F.

100. Duke: out-KNIGHT Lords lordship's-2Rowe.

111. Pro.: given to Duke-KNIGHT 112-16 prose-Pore.

That you swerve not from the smallest Article of it,
Neither in time, matter, or other circumstance.

Good morrow: for as I take it, it is almost day.

[Exit Mess.]

Pro. I shall obey him.

Duke. [Aside] This is his Pardon purchas'd by such sin, |

For which the Pardoner himselfe is in:

Hence hath offence his quicke celeritie, 120

When it is borne in high Authority.

When Vice makes Mercie; Mercie's so extended,

That for the faults love, is th'offender friended.

Now Sir, what newes?

Pro. I told you:

Lord Angelo (be-like) thinking me remisse

In mine Office, awakens mee

With this unwonted putting on,<sup>1</sup> methinks strangely:

For he hath not us'd it before. <sup>1</sup>insistence

Duk. Pray you let's heare. 130

The Letter.

*Whatsoever you may beare to the contrary, let Claudio be ex- | ecuted by foure of the clocke, and in the afternoone
Bernar- | dine: For my better satisfaction, let mee have Claudios | head sent me by five. Let this be duely performed with a | thought that more depends on it, then we must yet deliver. | Thus faile not to doe your Office,
as you will answere it at | your perill.*

What say you to this Sir?

Duke. What is that Barnardine, who is to be executed in th'afternoone? 141

125-9. prose-POPZ.

Pro. A Bohemian borne: But here nurst up & bred,
One that is a prisoner nine yeeres old.

Duke. How came it, that the absent Duke had not either deliver'd him to his libertie, or executed him? I have heard it was ever his manner to do so.

Pro. His friends still wrought Repreeves for him:
And indeed his fact till now in the government of Lord
Angelo, came not to an undoubtfull prooffe.

Duke. It is now apparant? 150

Pro. Most manifest, and not denied by himselfe.

Duke. Hath he borne himselfe penitently in prison?
How seemes he to be touch'd?

Pro. A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully, but as a drunken sleepe, carelesse, wreacklesse, and fearlesse of what's past, present, or to come: insensible of mortality, and desperately mortall.

Duke. He wants advice. 158

Pro. He wil heare none: he hath evermore had the liberty of the prison: give him leave to escape hence, hee would not. Drunke many times a day, if not many daies entirely drunke. We have verie oft awak'd him, as if to carrie him to execution, and shew'd him a seeming warrant for it, it hath not moved him at all.

Duke. More of him anon: There is written in your brow Provost, honesty and constancie; if I reade it not truly, my ancient skill beguiles me: but in the boldnes of my cunning, I will lay my selfe in hazard: Claudio, whom heere you have warrant to execute, is no greater forfeit to the Law, then Angelo who hath sentenc'd him.
To make you understand this in a manifested effect, I crave but foure daies respite: for the which, you are to do me both a present, and a dangerous courtesie. 173

Pro. Pray Sir, in what?

Duke. In the delaying death.

Pro. Alacke, how may I do it? Having the houre limited, and an expresse command, under penaltie, to deliver his head in the view of Angelo? I may make my case as Claudio's, to crosse this in the smallest.

Duke. By the vow of mine Order, I warrant you,
If my instructions may be your guide, 181
Let this Barnardine be this morning executed,
And his head borne to Angelo.

Pro. Angelo hath seene them both,
And will discover the favour.

Duke. Oh, death's a great disguiser, and you may adde to it; Shave the head, and tie the heard, and say it was the desire of the penitent to be so bar'de before his death: you know the course is common. If any thing fall to you upon this, more then thanks and good fortune, by the Saint whom I professe, I will plead against it with my life. 192

Pro. Pardon me, good Father, it is against my oath.

Duke. Were you sworne to the Duke, or to the Deputie?

Pro. To him, and to his Substitutes.

Duke. You will thinke you have made no offence, if the Duke avouch the justice of your dealing?

Pro. But what likelihood is in that? 199

Duke. Not a resemblance, but a certainty; yet since I see you fearfull, that neither my coate, integrity, nor perswasion, can with ease attempt you, I wil go further then I meant, to plucke all feares out of you. Looke you Sir, heere is the hand and Scale of the Duke: you know the Charracter I doubt not, and the Signet is not strange to you?

Pro. I know them both.

207

Duke. The Contents of this, is the returne of the Duke; you shall anon over-reade it at your pleasure: where you shall finde within these two daies, he wil be heere. This is a thing that Angelo knowes not, for hee this very day receives letters of strange tenor, perchance of the Dukes death, perchance entering into some Monasterie, but by chance nothing of what is writ. Looke, th'unfolding Starre calles up the Shepheard; put not your selfe into amazement, how these things should be; all difficulties are but easie when they are knowne. Call your executioner, and off with Barnardine's head: I will give him a present shrift, and advise him for a better place. Yet you are amaz'd, but this shall absolutely resolve you: Come away, it is almost cleere dawne. Exit.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Clowne [Pompey].

Cl. I am as well acquainted heere, as I was in our house of profession: one would thinke it were Mistris Over-dons owne house, for heere be manie of her olde Customers. First, here's yong M<sup>r</sup> Rash, hee's in for a commoditie of browne paper, and olde Ginger, nine score and seventcene pounds, of which hee made five Markes readie money: marrie then, Ginger was not much in request, for the olde Women were all dead. Then is there heere one M<sup>r</sup> Caper, at the suite of Master Three-Pile the Mercer, for some foure suites of Peach-colour'd Satten, which now peaches him a beggar. Then have we heere, yong Dixie, and yong M<sup>r</sup> Despew, and M<sup>r</sup> Copperspurre, and M<sup>r</sup> Starve-Lackey the Rapier and dagger man, and yong Drop-beire that kild lustie Pudding, and M<sup>r</sup> Forthlight the Tilter, and brave M<sup>r</sup> Shootie the great Traveller, and wilde Halfe-Canne that stabb'd Pots, and I thinke fortie more, all great doers in our Trade, and are now for the Lords sake. 20

Enter Abborsen.

Abb. Sirrah, bring Barnardine hether.

Clo. M<sup>r</sup> Barnardine, you must rise and be hang'd, M<sup>r</sup> Barnardine.

Abb. What ho Barnardine.

Barnardine within.

Bar. A pox o' your throats: who makes that noyse there? What are you?

Clo. Your friends Sir, the Hangman:
You must be so good Sir to rise, and be put to death.

Bar. Away you Rogue, away, I am sleeptic. 31

Abb. Tell him he must awake,
And that quickly too.

Clo. Pray Master Barnardine, awake till you are executed, and sleepe afterwards.

Ab. Go in to him, and fetch him out.

Clo. He is comming Sir, he is comming: I heare his Straw rattle.

Enter Barnardine.

Abb. Is the Axe upon the block, sirrah? 40

Clo. Verie readie Sir.

Bar. How now Abhorsen?
What's the newes with you?

Abb. Truly Sir, I would desire you to clap into your prayers: for looke you, the Warrants come.

Bar. You Rogue, I have bin drinking all night,
I am not fitted for't.

Clo. Oh, the better Sir: for he that drinkes all night, and is hanged betimes in the morning, may sleepe the sounder all the next day. 50

Enter Duke [disguised as before].

Abb. Looke you Sir, heere comes your ghostly Father: do we jest now thinke you? *

Duke. Sir, induced by my charitie, and hearing how hastily you are to depart, I am come to advise you,
Comfort you, and pray with you.

Bar. Friar, not I: I have bin drinking hard all night, and I will have more time to prepare mee, or they shall beat out my braines with billets: I will not consent to die this day, that's certaine. 60

Duke. Oh sir, you must: and therefore I beseech you
Looke forward on the journie you shall go.

Bar. I sweare I will not die to day for anie mans perswasion.

Duke. But heare you:

Bar. Not a word: if you have anie thing to say to me, come to my Ward: for thence will not I to day.

Exit

Enter Provost.

Duke. Unfit to live, or die: oh gravell heart. 70
After him (Fellowes) bring him to the blocke.

[Exit Abborsen and Pompey.]

Pro. Now Sir, how do you finde the prisoner?

Duke. A creature unpre-par'd, unmeet for death,
And to transport him in the minde he is,
Were damnable.

Pro. Heere in the prison, Father,
 There died this morning of a cruell Feavor,
 One Ragozine, a most notorious Pirate,
 A man of Claudio's yeares: his beard, and head
 Just of his colour. What if we do omit 80
 This Reprobate, til he were wel enclin'd,
 And satisfie the Deputie with the visage
 Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?

Duke. Oh, 'tis an accident that Heaven provides:
 Dispatch it presently, the houre drawes on Prefix by Angelo: See this be done,
 And sent according to command, whiles I
 Perswade this rude wretch willingly to die.

Pro. This shall be done (good Father) presently:
 But Barnardine must die this afternoone, 90
 And how shall we continue Claudio,
 To save me from the danger that might come,
 If he were knowne alive?

Duke. Let this be done,
 Put them in secret holds, both Barnardine and Claudio,
 Ere twice the Sun hath made his journall greeting
 To yond generation, you shal finde
 Your safetie manifested.

Pro. I am your free dependant. Exit.

Duke. Quicke, dispatch, and send the head to Angelo
 Now wil I write Letters to Angelo, 101
 (The Provost he shal beare shem) whose contents
 Shal witnesse to him I am neere at home:
 And that by great Injunctions I am bound
 To enter publikely: him Ile desire
 To meet me at the consecrated Fount,
 A League below the Citie: and from thence,

By cold gradation, and weale-ballanc'd forme.
We shal proceed with Angelo.

Enter Provost.

110

Pro. Heere is the head, Ile carrie it my selfe.

Duke. Convenient is it: Make a swift returne,
For I would commune with you of such things,
That want no care but yours.

Pro. Ile make all speede.

Exit

Isabell within.

Isa. Peace hoa, be heere.

Duke. The tongue of Isabell. She's come to know,
If yet her brothers pardon be come hither:
But I will keepe her ignorant of her good,
To make her heavenly comforts of dispaire,
When it is least expected.

120

Enter Isabella.

Isa. Hoa, by your leave.

Duke. Good morning to you, faire, and gracious daughter.

Isa. The better given me by so holy a man,
Hath yet the Deputie sent my brothers pardon?

Duke. He hath releasd him, Isabell, from the world,
His head is off, and sent to Angelo.

130

Isa. Nay, but it is not so.

Duke. It is no other,
Shew your wisdoms daughter in your close patience.

Isa. Oh, I wil to him, and plucke out his eies.

Duk. You shal not be admitted to his sight.

Isa. Unhappie Claudio, wretched Isabell, Injurious world, most damned Angelo.

Duke. This nor hurts him, nor profits you a jot,
 Forbeare it therefore, give your cause to heaven,
 Marke what I say, which you shal finde 140
 By every sillable a faithful veritie.

The Duke comes home to morrow: nay drie your eyes,
 One of our Covent, and his Confessor
 Gives me this instance: Already he hath carried
 Notice to Escalus and Angelo,
 Who do prepare to meete him at the gates,
 There to give up their powre: If you can pace your wis-
 dome, |

In that good path that I would wish it go, <sup>1</sup> will
 And you shal have your bosome<sup>1</sup> on this wretch,
 Grace of the Duke, revenges to your heart, 150
 And general Honor.

Isa. I am directed by you.

Duk. This Letter then to Friar Peter give,
 'Tis that he sent me of the Dukes returne:
 Say, by this token, I desire his companie
 At Mariana's house to night. Her cause, and yours
 Ile perfect<sup>2</sup> him withall, and he shal bring you <sup>2</sup> instruct Before the Duke; and to the head of Angelo
 Accuse him home and home. For my poore selfe,
 I am combined<sup>3</sup> by a sacred Vow, <sup>3</sup> bound 160
 And shall be absent. Wend you with this Letter:
 Command these fretting waters from your eies
 With a light heart; trust not my holie Order
 If I pervert your course: whose heere?

Enter Lucio.

Luc. Good even;
 Prier, where's the Provost?

Duke. Not within Sir. 168

Luc. Oh prettie Isabella, I am pale at mine heart, to 164. whon: who's-2-4F.

166-7. prose-Dyce.

see thine eyes so red: thou must be patient; I am faine to dine and sup with water and bran: I dare not for my head fill my belly. One fruitful Meale would set mee too't: but they say the Duke will be heere to Morrow. By my troth Isabell I lov'd thy brother, if the olde fantastical Duke of darke corners had bene at home, he had lived. [Exit Isabella.]

Duke. Sir, the Duke is marveilous little beholding to your reports, but the best is, he lives not in them.

Luc. Friar, thou knowest not the Duke so wel as I do: he's a better woodman then thou ak'st him for.

Duke. Well: you'l answer this one day. Fare ye well.

Luc. Nay tarrie, Ile go along with thee, 182
I can tel thee pretty tales of the Duke.

Duke. You have told me too many of him already sir if they be true: if not true, none were enough.

Lucio. I was once before him for getting a Wench with childe.

Duke. Did you such a thing?

Luc. Yes marrie did I; but I was faine to forswear it, They would else have married me to the rotten Medler.

Duke. Sir your company is fairer then honest, rest you well. 192

Lucio. By my troth Ile go with thee to the lanes end: if baudy talke offend you, we'el have very litle of it: nay, Friar, I am a kind of Burre, I shal sticke. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

[A room in Angelo's bouse.]

Enter Angelo & Escalus.

Esc. Every Letter he hath writ, hath disvouch'd other.

An. In most uneven and distracted manner, his actions show much like to madnesse, pray heaven his wisdom be not tainted: and why meet him at the gates and reliver ou r authorities there?

Esc. I ghesse not. 8

Ang. And why should wee proclaime it in an howre before his entring, that if any crave redresse of injustice, they should exhibit their petitions in the street?

Esc. He shoves his reason for that: to have a dispatch of Complaints, and to deliver us from devices heereafter, which shall then have no power to stand against us.

Ang. Well: I beseech you let it bee proclaim'd be-times i'th' morne, Ile call you at your house: give notice to such men of sort and suite as are to meete him.

Esc. I shall sir: fareyouwell. • Exit.

Ang. Good night. 20

This deede unshapes me quite, makes me unpregnant<sup>1</sup>
And dull to all proceedings. A deflowred maid,
And by an eminent body, that enforc'd<sup>1</sup> inexpert
The Law against it? But that her tender shame
Will not proclaime against her maiden losse,
How might she tongue me? yet reason dares her no,
For my Authority beares of a credent<sup>2</sup> bulke, <sup>2</sup> trusted
That no particular scandall once can touch
But it confounds the breather. He should have liv'd,
Save that his riotous youth with dangerous sence 30
Might in the times to com<sup>e</sup> have ta'ne revenge
By so receiving a dishonor'd life
With ransome of such shame: would yet he had lived.
Alack, when once our grace we have forgot,
Nothing goes right, we would, and we would not. Exit.

6-7. reliver: redeliver—CAPELL.

Scena Quinta.[Fields without the town.]Enter Duke [in his own habit] and Frier Peter.Duke. These Letters at fit time deliver me, [Giving letters.]

The Provost knowes our purpose and our plot,
 The matter being a foote, keepe your instruction
 And hold you ever to our speciall drift,
 Though sometimes you doe blench from this to that
 As cause doth minister: Goe call at Flavia's house,
 And tell him where I stay: give the like notice
 To Valencius, Rowland, and to Crassus, 10
 And bid them bring the Trumpets to the gate:
 But send me Flavius first.

Peter. It shall be speeded well. [Exit.]Enter Varrius.

Duke. I thank thee Varrius, thou hast made good hast,
 Come, we will walke: There's other of our friends
 Will greet us heere anon: my gentle Varrius. Exeunt.

Scena Sexta.[Street near the city gate.]Enter Isabella and Mariana.

Isab. To speak so indirectly I am loath,
 I would say the truth, but to accuse him<sup>s</sup> so
 That is your part, yet I am advis'd to doe it;
 He saies, to vaile full purpose.

8. Flavia's: Flavius'-Rowe.

Mar. Be rul'd by him.

Isab. Besides he tells me, that if peradventure
 he speake against me on the adverse side,
 I should not thinke it strange, for 'tis a physicke 10
 That's bitter, to sweet end.

Enter Peter.

Mar. I would Frier Peter

Isab. On peace, the Frier is come.

Peter. Com I have found you out a stand most fit,
 Where you may have such vantage on the Duke
 He shall not passe you:
 Twice have the Trumpets sounded.
 The generous, and gravest Citizens
 Have hent the gates, and very neere upon 20
 The Duke is entring:
 Therefore hence away. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scœna Prima.

[The city gate.]

[Mariana veiled, Isabella, and Friar Peter at their stand.]

Enter Duke, Varrius, Lords, Angelo, Esculus, Lucio, [Provost, Officers, and] Citizens at severall doores.

Duk. My very worthy Cosen, fairely met,
 Our old, and faithfull friend, we are glad to see you.

Ang. Esc. Happy returne be to your royall grace.

Duk. Many and hartly thankings to you both:
 We have made enquiry of you, and we heare
 Such goodnesse of your Justice, that our soule

17-18. 1 l.—Pope.

2. Esculus: Escalus—2-4F.

21-2. 1 l.—Pope.

6. your: your—2-4F.

Cannot but yeeld you forth to publike thanks 10
Forerunning more requitall.

Ang. You make my bonds still greater.

Duk. Oh your desert speaks loud, & I should wrong it
To locke it in the wards of covert bosome
When it deserves with characters of brasse
A fortified residence 'gainst the tooth of time,
And razure of oblivion: Give we your hand
And let the Subject see, to make them know
That outward curtesies would faine proclaime
Favours that keepe within: Come Enslus, 20
You must walke by us, on our other hand:
And good supporters are you.

Enter Peter and Isabella.

Peter. Now is your time
Speake loud, and kneele before him.

Isab. Justice, O royall Duke, vaile<sup>1</sup> your regard
Upon a wrong'd (I would faine have said a Maid)
Oh worthy Prince, dishonor not your eye <sup>1</sup>let fall
By throwing it on any other object,
Till you have heard me, in my true complaint, 30
And given me Justice, Justice, Justice, Justice.

Duk. Relate your wrongs;
In what, by whom? be briefe:
Here is Lord Angelo shall give you Justice,
Reveale your selfe to him.

Isab. Oh worthy Duke,
You bid me seeke redemption of the divell,
Heare me your selfe: for that which I must speake
Must either punish me, not being helcev'd,
Or wring redresse from you: 40

17. we: me-3-4F.

32-3. 1 l.-POPE.

24-5. 1 l.-POPE.

40-1. 1 l.-POPE.

Heare me: oh heare me, heere.

Ang. My Lord, her wits I feare me are not firme:
She hath bin a suitor to me, for her Brother
Cut off by course of Justice.

Isab. By course of Justice.

Ang. And she will speake most bitterly, and strange.

Isab. Most strange: but yet most truely wil I speake,
That Angelo's forsworne, is it not strange?
That Angelo's a myrtherer, is't not strange?
That Angelo is an adulterous thiefe, 50
An hypocrite, a virgin violator,
Is it not strange? and strange?

Duke. Nay it is ten times stranger?

Isa. It is not truer he is Angelo,
Then this is all as true, as it is strange;
Nay, it is ten times true, for truth is truth
To th'end of reckning.

Duke. Away with her: poore soule
She speakes this in th'infirmity of sence.

Isa. Oh Prince, I conjure thee, as thou beleev'st 60
There is another comfort, then this world,
That thou neglect me not, with that opinion
That I am touch'd with madnesse: make not impossible
That which but seemes unlike, 'tis not impossible
But one, the wickedst caitiffe on the ground
May seeme as shie, as grave, as just, as absolute:
As Angelo, even so may Angelo <sup>1</sup>characteristics
In all his dressings, caracts,<sup>1</sup> titles, formes,
Be an arch-villaine: Beleeve it, royall Prince
If he be lesse, he's nothing, but he's more, 70
Had I more name for badnesse.

Duke. By mine honesty
If she be mad, as I beleeve no other,
Her madnesse hath the oddest frame of sence,

Such a dependancy of thing, on thing,
As ere I heard in madnesse.

Isab. Oh gracious Duke

Harpe not on that; nor do not banish reason
For inequality, but let your reason serve
To make the truth appeare, where it seemes hid, 80
And hide the false seemes true.

Duk. Many that are not mad
Have sure more lacke of reason:
What would you say?

Isab. I am the Sister of one ~~Claudio~~, Condemnd upon the Act of Fornication
To loose his head, condemn'd by Angelo,
I, (in probation of a Sisterhood)
Was sent to by my Brother; one Lucio
As then the Messenger. 90

Luc. That's I, and't like your Grace:
I came to her from Claudio, and desir'd her,
To try her gracious fortune with Lord Angelo,
For her poore Brothers pardon.

Isab. That's he indeede.

Duk. You were not hid to speake.

Luc. No, my good Lord,
Nor wish'd to hold my peace.

Duk. I wish you now then,
Pray you take note of it: and when you have 100
A businesse for your selfe: pray heaven you then
Be perfect.

Luc. I warrant your honor.

Duk. The warrant's for your selfe: take heede to't.

Isab. This Gentleman told somewhat of my Tale.

Luc. Right.

Duk. It may be right, but you are i'the wrong
To speake before your time: proceed,

Isab. I went

To this pernicious Caitiffe Deputie. 110

Duk. That's somewhat madly spoken.

Isab: Pardon it,

The phrase is to the matter.

Duke. Mended againe: the matter: proceed.

Isab. In brieft, to set the needlesse processe by:
How I perswaded, how I praid, and kneel'd,
How he refeld<sup>1</sup> me, and how I replide <sup>1 refused</sup>
(For this was of much length) the vild conclusion
I now begin with grieve, and shame to utter.
He would not, but by gift of my chaste body 120
To his concupiscible intemperate lust
Release my brother; and after much debatement,
My sisterly remorse, confutes mine honour,
And I did yeeld to him: But the next morne betimes,
His purpose surfetting, he sends a warrant
For my poore brothers head.

Duke. This is most likely.

Isab. Oh that it were as like as it is true.

Duk. By heaven (fond wretch) thou knowst not what thou speak'st, |

Or else thou art suborn'd against his honor 130

In hatefull practise: first his Integritie
Stands without blemish: next it imports no reason,
That with such vehemency he should pursue
Faults proper to himselfe: if he had so offended
He would have waigh'd thy brother by himselfe,
And not have cut him off: some one hath set you on:
Confesse the truth, and say by whose advice
Thou cam'st heere to complaine.

Isab. And is this all?

Then oh you blessed Ministers above 140
 Keepe me in patience, and with ripened time
 Unfold the evill, which is heere wrapt up
 In countenance: heaven shield your Grace from woe,
 As I thus wrong'd, hence unbeleeved goe.

Duke. I know you'ld faine be gone: An Officer:
 To prison with her: Shall we thus permit
 A blasting and a scandalous breath to fall,
 On him so neere us? This needs must be a practise;
 Who knew of your intent and coming hither?

Isa. One that I would were heere, Frier Lodowick.

Duk. A ghostly Father, belike: 151
 Who knowes that Lodowicke?

Luc. My Lord, I know him, 'tis a meddling Fryer,
 I doe not like the man: had he been Lay my Lord,
 For certaine words he spake against your Grace
 In your retirment, I had swing'd him soundly. *

Duke. Words against mee? this 'a good Fryer belike
 And to set on this wretched woman here
 Against our Substitute: Let this Fryer be found.

Luc. But yesternight my Lord, she and that Fryer
 I saw them at the prison: a sawcy Fryar, 161
 A very scurvy fellow.

Peter. Blessed be your Royall Grace:
 I have stood by my Lord, and I have heard
 Your royall eare abus'd: first hath this woman
 Most wrongfully accus'd your Substitute,
 Who is as free from touch, or soyle with her
 As she from one ungot.

Duke. We did beleewe no lesse.
 Know you that Frier Lodowick that she speakes of? 170

Peter. I know him for a man divine and holy,

Not scurvy, nor a temporary medler
 As he's reported by this Gentleman:
 And on my trust, a man that never yet
 Did (as he vouches) mis-report your Grace.

Luc. My Lord, most villanously, beleeve it.

Peter. Well: he in time may come to cleere himselfe;
 But at this instant he is sicke, my Lord:
 Of a strange Feavor: upon his meeke request
 Being come to knowledge, that there was complaint
 Intended 'gainst Lord Angelo, came I hether 181
 To speake as from his mouth, what he doth know
 Is true, and false: And what he with his oath
 And all probation will make up full cleare
 Whensoever he's convented:<sup>1</sup> First for this woman,
 To justifie this worthy Noble man <sup>1 summoned</sup>
 So vulgarly and personally accus'd,
 Her shall you heare disproved to her eyes,
 Till she her selfe confesse it.

Duk. Good Frier, let's heare it: 190
[Isabella carried off guarded; and Mariana comes forward.]

Doe you not smile at this, Lord Angelo?
 Oh heaven, the vanity of wretched fooles.
 Give us some seates, Come cosen Angelo,
 In this I'll be impartiall: be you Judge
 Of your owne Cause: Is this the Witnes Frier?

Enter Mariana.

First, let her shew your face, and after, speake.

Mur. Pardon my Lord, I will not shew my face
 Untill my husband bid me.

Duke. What, are you married? 200

197. your: her-2-4F.

Mar. No my Lord.

Duke. Are you a Maid?

Mar. No my Lord.

Duk. A Widow then?

Mar. Neither, my Lord.

Duk. Why you are nothing then: neither Maid, Widow, nor Wife?

Luc. My Lord, she may be a Puncke: for many of them, are neither Maid, Widow, nor Wife. 209

Duk. Silence that fellow: I would he had some cause to prattle for himselfe.

Luc. Well my Lord.

Mar. My Lord, I doe confesse I nere was married, And I confesse besides, I am no Maid, I have known my husband, yet my husband Knowes not, that ever he knew me.

Luc. He was drunk then, my Lord, it can be no better.

Duk. For the benefit of silence, would thou wert so to.

Luc. Well, my Lord.

Duk. This is no wisse for Lord Angelo. 220

Mar. Now I come to't, my Lord.

Shee that accuses him of Fornication,
In selfe-same manner, doth accuse my husband,
And charges him, my Lord, with such a time,
When I'le depose I had him in mine Armes
With all th'effect of Love.

Ang. Charges she mee then mee?

Mar. Not that I know.

Duk. No? you say your husband.

Mar. Why just, my Lord, and that is Angelo, 230
Who thinks he knowes, that he nere knew my body,
But knows, he thinks, that he knowes Isabels.

FOR MEASURE

[V. i. 205-233]

Ang. This is a strange abuse: Let's see thy face.

Mar. My husband bids me, now I will unmaske.

[Unveiling.]

This is that face, thou cruell Angelo
Which once thou sworst, was worth the looking on:
This is the hand, which with a vowd contract
Was fast belockt in thine: This is the body
That tooke away the match from Isabell,
And did supply thee at thy garden-house 240
In her Imagin'd person.

Duke. Know you this woman?

Luc. Carnallie she saies.

Duk Sirha, no more.

Luc. Enoug my Lord.

Ang. My Lord, I must confesse, I know this woman,
And five yeres since there was some speech of marriage
Betwxt my selfe, and her: which was broke off,
Partly for that her promis'd proportions
Came short of Composition: But in chiefe 250
For that her reputation was dis-valued
In leuitic: Since which time of five yeres
I never spake with her, saw her, nor heard from her
Upon my faith, and honor.

Mar. Noble Prince,

As ~~there~~ comes light from heaven, and words from breath, |

As there is sence in truth, and truth in vertue,
I am affianced this mans wife, as strongly
As words could make up vowes: And my good Lord,
But Tuesday night last gon, in's garden house, 260
He knew me as a wife. As this is true,
Let me in safety raise me from my knees,
Or else for ever be confixed here
A Marble Monument.

Ang. I did but smile till now,
 Now, good my Lord, give me the scope of Justice,
 My patience here is touch'd: I doe perceive
 These poore informall women, are no more
 But instruments of some more mightier member
 That sets them on. Let me have way, my Lord 270
 To finde this practise out.

Duke. I, with my heart,
 And punish them to your height of pleasure.
 Thou foolish Frier, and thou pernicious woman
 Compact with her that's gone: think~~st~~ thou, thy oathes,
 Though they would swear downe each particular Saint,
 Were testimonies against his worth, and credit
 That's seald in approbation? you, Lord Escalus
 Sit with my Cozen, lend him your kinde paines 279
 To finde out this abuse,<sup>1</sup> whence 'tis deriv'd. <sup>1</sup> deceit
 There is another Frier that set them on,
 Let him be sent for.

Peter. Would he were here, my Lord, for he indeed
 Hath set the women on to this Complaint;
 Your Provost knowes the place where he abides,
 And he may fetch him.

Duke. Goe, doe it instantly: [Exit Provost.]
 And you, my noble and well-warranted Cosen
 Whom it concernes to heare this matter forth,
 Doe with your injuries as seemes you best 290
 In any chastisement; I for<sup>e</sup> a while
 Will leave you; but stir not you till you have Well determin'd upon these Slanderers. Exit.

Esc. My Lord, wee'll doe it throughly: Signior Lucio, did not you say you knew that Frier Lodewick to be a dishonest person?

Luc. Cucullus non facit Monachum, honest in nothing but in his Clothes, and one that hath spoke most villanous speeches of the Duke. 299

Esc. We shall intreat you to abide heere till he come, and inforce them against him: we shall finde this Frier a notable fellow.

Luc. As any in Vienna, on my word.

Esc. Call that same Isabell here once againe, I would speake with her: pray you, my Lord, give mee leave to question, you shall see how Ile handle her.

Luc. Not better then he, by her owne report.

Esc. Say you?

Luc. Marry sir, I thinke, if you handled her privately She would sooner confesse, perchance publicly she'll be asham'd. 311

Enter Duke [in his friar's habit], Provost, Isabella.

Esc. I will goe darkely to worke with her.

Luc. That's the way: for women are light at midnight.

Esc. Come on Mistris, here's a Gentlewoman, Denies all that you have said.

Luc. My Lord, here comes the rascall I spoke of, Here ~~with~~ with the Provost.

Esc. In very good time: speake not you to him, till we call upon you. 321

Luc. Mum.

Esc. Come Sir, did you set these women on to slander Lord Angelo? they have confes'd you did.

Duk. 'Tis false.

Esc. How? Know you where you are?

Duk. Respect to your great place; and let the divell
Be sometime honour'd, for his burning throne.

Where is the Duke? 'tis he should heare me speake.

Esc. The Duke's in us: and we will heare you speake,
Looke you speake justly. 331

Duk. Boldly, at least. But oh poore soules,
Come you to seeke the Lamb here of the Fox;
Good night to your redresse: Is the Duke gone?
Then is your causé gone too: 'The Duke's unjust,
Thus to retort your manifest Appeale,
And put your triall in the villaines mouth,
Which here you come to accuse.

Luc. This is the rascall: this is he I spoke of. 339

Esc. Why thou unreverend, and unhallowed Fryer:
Is't not enough thou hast suborn'd these women,
To accuse this worthy man? but in foule mouth,
And in the witnesse of his proper eare,
To call him villaine; and then to glance from him,
To th' Duke himselfe, to taxe him with Injustice?
Take him hence; to th' racke with him: we'll towze<sup>1</sup> you
Joynt by joynt, but we will know his purpose: <sup>1</sup> tear
What? unjust?

Duk. Be not so hot: the Duke dare
No more stretch this finger of mine, then he 350
Dare racke his owne: his Subject am I not,
Nor here Provinciall: My businesse in this State
Made me a looker on here in Vienna,
Where I have seene corruption boyle and bubble,
Till it ore-run the Stew: Lawes, for all faults,
But faults so countenanc'd, that the strong Statutes
Stand like the forfeites in a Barbers shop,
As much in mocke, as marke.

Esc. Slander to th' State:

Away with him to prison. 360

Ang. What can you vouch against him Signior Lucio?
Is this the man that you did tell us of?

Luc. 'Tis he, my Lord: come hither goodman bald-pate, doe you know me?

Duk. I remember you Sir, by the sound of your voice,
I met you at the Prison, in the absençe of the Duke.

Luc. Oh, did you so? and do you remember what you said of the Duke.

Duk. Most notably Sir. 369

Luc. Do you so Sir: And was the Duke a flesh-monger, a foole, and a coward, as you then reported him to be?

Duk. You must (Sir) change persons with me, erø you make that my report: you indeede spoke so of him, and much more, much worse.

Luc. Oh thou damnable fellow: did not I plucke thee by the nose, for thy speeches?

Duk. I protest, I love the Duke, as I love my selfe.

Ang. Harke how the villaine would close now, after his treasonable abuses. 380

Esc. Such a fellow is not to be talk'd withall: Away with him to prison: Where is the Provost? away with him to prison: lay bolts enough upon him: let him speak no more: away with those Giglets<sup>1</sup> too, and with the other confederate companion. <sup>1</sup> pert girls

Duk. [To Provost] Stay Sir, stay a while.

Ang. What, resists he? helpe him Lucio.

Luc. Come sir, come sir, come sir: foh fir, why you bald-pated lying rascall: you must be hooded must you? show your knaves visage with a poxe to you: show your sheepe-biting face, and be hang'd an houre: will't not off?

[Pulls off the friar's hood and discovers the Duke.] 392

Duk. Thou art the first knave, that ere mad'st a Duke.

First Provost, let me bayle these gentle three:

Sneake not away Sir, for the Fryer, and you,

Must have a word anon: lay hold on him.

Luc. This may prove worse then hanging.

Duk. [To Esc.] What you have spoke, I pardon: sit you downe, |

We'll borrow place of him; Sir, by your leave:

[To Ang.] 400

Ha'st thou or word, or wit, or impudence,

That yet can doe thee office? If thou ha'st

Rely upon it, till my tale be heard,

And hold no longer out.

Ang. Oh, my dread Lord,

I should be guiltier then my guiltinesse,

To thinke I can be undiscerneable,

When I perceive your grace, like powre divinc,

Hath look'd upon my passes. Then good Prince,

No longer Session hold upon my shame,

But let my Triall, be mine owne Confession: 410

Immediate sentence then, and sequent death,

Is all the grace I beg.

Duk. Come hither Mariana,

Say: was't thou ere contract'd to this woman?

Ang. I was my Lord.

Duk. Goe take her hence, and marry her instantly.

Doe you the office (Fryer) which consummate,

Returne him here againe: goe with him Provost. Exit.

Esc. My Lord, I am more amaz'd at his dishonor,
Then at the strangenesse of it. 420

Duk. Come hither Isabell,

Your Frier is now your Prince: As I was then Advértysing,<sup>1</sup> and holy<sup>2</sup> to your businesse, <sup>1</sup> informing (Not changing heart with habit) I am still, <sup>2</sup> devoted Attuined at your service.

Isab. Oh give me pardon
 That I, your vassaile, have imploid, and pain'd
 Your unknowne Soveraigntie.

Duk. You are pardon'd Isabell:
 And now, decree Maide, be you as free to us. 430
 Your Brothers death I know sits at your heart:
 And you may marvaile, why I obscur'd my selfe,
 Labouring to save his life: and would not rather
 Make rash remonstrance of my hidden powre,
 Then let him so be lost: oh most kinde Maid,
 It was the swift celeritic of his death,
 Which I did thinke, with slower foot came on,
 That brain'd my purpose: but peace be with him,
 That life is better life past fearing death, 439
 Then that which lives to feare: make it your comfort,
 So happy is your Brother.

Enter Angelo, Maria, Peter, Provost.

Isab. I doe my Lord.

Duk. For this new-maried man, approaching here,
 Whose salt imagination yet hath wrong'd
 Your well defended honor: you must pardon
 For Mariana's sake: But as he adjudg'd your Brother,
 Being criminall, in double violation
 Of sacred Chastitie, and of promise-breach,
 Thereon dependant for your Brothers life, 450
 The very mercy of the Law cries out
 Most audible, even from his proper tongue.
 An Angelo for Claudio, death for death:

Haste still paies haste, and leasure, answers leasure;
 Like doth quit like, and Measure still for Measure:
 Then Angelo, thy fault's thus manifested;
 Which though thou would'st deny, denies thee vantage.
 We doe condemne thee to the very Blocke
 Where Claudio stoop'd to death, and with like haste.
 Away with him. 460

Mar. Oh my most gracious Lord,
 I hope you will not mocke me with a husband?

Duk. It is your husband mock't you with a husband,
 Consenting to the safe-guard of your honor,
 I thought your marriage fit: else Imputation,
 For that he knew you, might reproach your life,
 And choake your good to come: For his Possessions,
 Although by confutation they are ours;
 We doe en-state, and widow you with all,
 To buy you a better husband. 470

Mar. Oh my deere Lord,
 I crave no other, nor no better man.

Duke. Never crave him, we are definitive.

Mar: Gentle my Liege. [Kneeling.]

Duke. You doe but loose your labour.
 Away with him to death: [To Lucio] Now Sir, to
 you. |

Mar. Oh my good Lord, sweet Isabell, take my part,
 Lend me your knees, and all my life to come,
 I'll lend you all my life to doe you service.

Duke. Against all sence you doe importune her,
 Should she kneele downe, in mercie of this fact, 481
 Her Brothers ghost, his paved bed would breake,
 And take her hence in horror.

Mar. Isabell:

Sweet Isabel, doe yet but kneele by me,
 Hold up your hands, say nothing: I'll speake all,

They say best men are moulded out of faults,
And for the most, become much more the better
For being a little bad: So may my husband.

Oh Isabel: will you not lend a knee? 490

Duke. He dies for Claudio's death.

Isab. Most bounteous Sir. [Kneeling.]

Looke if it please you, on this man condemn'd,
As if my Brother liv'd: I partly thinke,
A due sinceritie governed his deedes,
Till he did looke on me: Since it is so,
Let him not die: my Brother had but Justice,
In that he did the thing for which he dide.
For Angelo, his Act did not ore-take his bad intent,
And must be buried but as an intent 500
That perish'd by the way: thoughts are no subjects
Intents, but meerely thoughts.

Mar. Meerely my Lord.

Duk. Your suite's unprofitable: stand up I say:
I have bethought me of another fault.

Provost, how came it Claudio was beheaded
At an unusuall howre?

Pro. It was commanded so. 508

Duke. Had you a speciall warrant for the deed?

Pro. No my good Lord: it was by private message.

Duk. For which I doe discharge you of your office,
Give up your keyes.

Pro. Pardon me, noble Lord,
I thought it was a fault, but knew it not,
Yet did repent me after more advice,
For testimony whereof, one in the prison
That should by private order else have dide,
I have reserv'd alive.

Duk. What's he?

Pro. His name is Barnardine. '520

Duke. I would thou hadst done so by Claudio:
Goe fetch him hither, let me looke upon him.

[Exit Provost.]

Esc. I am sorry, one so learned, and so wise
As you, Lord Angelo, have stil appear'd,
Should slip so grosselic, both in the heat of bloud
And lacke of temper'd judgement-afterward.

Ang. I am sorrie, that such sorrow I procure,
And so deepe sticks it in my penitent heart,
That I crave death more willingly then mercy,
'Tis my deserving, and I doe entreat it. 530

*Enter Barnardine and Provost, Claudio. [muffled],
Julietta. |*

Duke. Which is that Barnardine?

Pro. 'This my Lord.

Duke. There was a Friar told me of this man.
Sirha, thou art said to have a stubborne soule
That apprehends no further then this world,
And squar'st thy life according: Thou'rt condemn'd,
But for those earthly faults, I quit them all,
And pray thee take this mercie to provide
For better times to come: Frier advise him, 540
I leave him to your hand. 'What muffled fellow's that?

Pro. This is another prisoner that I sav'd,
Who should have di'd when Claudio lost his head,
As like almost to Claudio, as himselfe.

[Unmuffles Claudio]

Duke. [To Is.] If he be like your brother, for his sake
Is he pardon'd, and for your lovelie sake
Give me your hand, and say you will be mine,

He is my brother too: But fitter time for that:
 By this Lord Angelo perceives he's safe,
 Methinkes I see a quickning in his eye: 550
 Well Angelo, your evill quits you well.
 Looke that you love your wife: her worth, worth yours
 I finde an apt remission in my selfe:
 And yet heere's one in place I cannot pardon,
 You sirha, that knew me for a foole, a Coward,
 One all of Luxurie, an asse, a mad man:
 Wherein have I so deserv'd of you
 That you extoll me thus?

Luc. 'Faith my Lord, I spoke it but according to the trick: if you will hang me for it you may: but I had rather it would please you, I might be whipt. 561

Duke. Whipt first, sir, and hang'd after.
 Proclaime it Provost round about the Citie,
 If any woman wrong'd by this lewd fellow
 (As I have heard him sweare himselfe there's one whom he begot with childe) let her appeare,
 And he shall marry her: the nuptiall finish'd,
 Let him be whipt and hang'd.

Luc. I beseech your Highnesse doe not marry me to a Whore: your Highnesse said even now I made you a Duke, good my Lord do not recompence me, in making me a Cuckold. 572

Duke. Upon mine honor thou shalt marrie her.
 Thy slanders I forgive, and therewithall
 Remit thy other forfeits: take him to prison,
 And see our pleasure herein executed.

Luc. Marrying a punke my Lord, is pressing to death,
 Whipping and hanging.

Duke. Slandering a Prince deserves it.

[Exeunt Officers with Lucia.]

She Claudio that you wrong'd, looke you restore. 580

Joy to you Mariana, love her Angelo:
 I have confes'd her, and I know her vertue.
 Thanks good friend, Escalus, for thy much goodnesse,
 There's more behinde that is more gratefull.
 Thanks Provost for thy care, and secrecie,
 We shall imploy thee in a worthier place.
 Forgive him Angelo, that brought you home
 The head of Ragozine for Claudio's,
 Th'offence pardons it selfe. Deere Isabell,
 I have a motion much imports your good, . 590
 Whereto if you'll a willing eare incline;
 What's mine is yours, and what is yours is mine.
 So bring us to our Pallace, where wee'll show
 What's yet behinde, that meete you all should know.

INTRODUCTION

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

THE COMEDIE OF ERRORS is a good title for this play, which deals almost wholly with a puzzle of identities, arising from the likeness of twin brothers and twin servants.

The Duke of Ephesus condemns Ægeon, a Syracuse merchant, to death for trading in Ephesus. The prisoner states that his reason for being in a hostile city lies in a search he is making for the scattered members of his household. He had twin sons who in infancy, with their twin body-servants, had become separated by shipwreck. Their mother, Æmilia, had also been lost from them; and Ægeon, with one son, Antipholus, and a servant, Dromio, had dwelt together in Syracuse until Antipholus reached manhood, when the latter had set forth to seek his mother and brother. For seven years Ægeon had heard no tidings of any of them, and he narrates this story of a fruitless quest to the duke, who relents to the extent of granting him a day's grace to seek ransom.

It chances that Antipholus and Dromio of Syracuse are now visiting in Ephesus, and, further, that his brother and servant, Antipholus and Dromio of Ephesus, reside here. None of the parties knows of the whereabouts of the others, and the twin brothers and twin servants look so much alike that a comedy of errors arises which lasts throughout the play.

In Acts II and III the Ephesian Dromio and his master's wife, Adriana, both mistake Antipholus of Syracuse for the lord of the house, greatly to the surprise of the Syracusan and the anger of the Ephesian gentleman.

The confusion continues through Act IV. The two Dromios get more than one beating. Tradesmen also harass the Syracuse Antipholus, until he and his Dromio believe themselves bewitched and try to flee the city.

They take refuge (Act V) in a priory, where an abbess protects them. At this point Ægeon is led by to execution. The duke is stopped by Adriana, who asks the custody of her husband, whom she believes to be in the priory. Conflicting witnesses testify, until the final appearance of both the Antipholuses and both the Dromios explains the riddle to the general satisfaction. Ægeon is released, and adds to the joy of finding both his sons the delight of discovering that the abbess is his wife Æmilia.

SOURCES

The plot of 'The Comedie of Errors' was obtained, directly or indirectly, from the 'Menachmi' of Plautus, the only question being as to its directness. The two plots are very similar, both being farces of mistaken identity (see Date of Composition). The Latin version of the 'Menæchmi' was known in England before Shakespeare wrote his play, and a translation of it was published in 1595. The translation was by William Warner, and while its plot is simpler than that of the 'Comedie,' they have undeniable points in common which indicate that Shakespeare was familiar with either the Latin or the English version. The early printing of the 'Comedie' designated the two Antipholuses as 'Erotes' and 'Sereptus,' names similar to some employed by Plautus, while Adriana in the 'Comedie' uses the same word of contempt, 'stale' (Act II, scene i), which her counterpart uses in Warner's translation from Plautus. This translation was no doubt circulated in manuscript for some time before it was published. Shakespeare may have had access to it; Warner may have borrowed from Shakespeare; or both may have based their material directly upon the original Latin.

INTRODUCTION

In any case, Shakespeare makes use only of the chief situation, building thereon a complex play truly his own. He it is who creates the two Dromios, the principal mirth-provokers of the whole piece. The sentiment and pathos are likewise his, together with the story of old Ægeon and the latter's reunion with his long-lost wife.

The situation in the opening scene of Act III, where the rightful husband is excluded from his own door, while the wrongful one is within, resembles another comedy of Plautus, the 'Amphitruo.'

As to the title, 'Comedie of Errors,' Warner's argument speaks of 'much pleasant error.' Another older play, now lost, contained the word 'error.' In the 'Court Revels' for 1576-7, the following entry is found: 'The Historie of Error, shewn at Hampton Court on New Yeres daie at night, enacted by the children of Pawles (Pawles = St. Paul's).' The inference that this play had anything in common with Shakespeare's is only conjectural.

DURATION OF THE ACTION

The action is confined to a single day. In the morning, scene i, the old Ægeon is condemned to die on that same day, but is granted a reprieve until sunset. The final scene represents him as being led to execution. Other points verify this time limit. The unities of both time and place are observed according to classic models.

The period of the play is not a definite calculation. Ephesus is spoken of as containing an abbey. Christianity was established in Ephesus about the middle of the fourth century and lasted until the fourteenth. Any time during the latter quarter of that millennium might serve.

DATE OF COMPOSITION

'The Comedie of Errors' was played before 1598, for it is mentioned by Meres in that year. A still earlier date of 1594 is established by a reference to it in 'Gesta Grayorum,' which shows that 'a Comedy of Errors, like to Plautus his Menechmus, was played by the players' during the Christmas Revels at Gray's Inn in 1594.

Internal evidence points to an earlier year than 1594. In Act III, scene ii, there seems to be an allusion to the War of the League in France, which ended in 1593. The play has much in common with 'Loves Labour's Lost' and 'Two Gentlemen of Verona.' Its rhymed lines, word-play, and general method place it among the early plays, and about the year 1590 or 1591.

INTRODUCTION

EARLY EDITIONS

'The Comedie of Errors' found its first printing in the First Folio of 1623, where it occupied sixteen pages, from page 85 to page 100, inclusive. It was divided into acts, but not scenes, although the words 'Scena Prima' appear at the head of four of the acts. The Dramatis Personæ was omitted, but was afterward supplied by Rowe. The text of the Folio is fairly pure, the errors being usually committed by the printer. This is the shortest of all the plays.

I am not partiall to infringe our Lawes;
The enmity and discord which of late
Sprung from the rancorous outrage of your Duke, 10
To Merchants our well-dealing COUNTRYMEN,
Who wanting gilders to redeeme their lives,
Have seal'd his rigorous statutes with their bloods,
Excludes all pittie from our threatening looks:
For since the mortall and intestine jarres
Twixt thy seditious COUNTRYMEN and us,
It hath in solemne Synodes beene decreed,
Both by the Siracusians and our selves,
To admit no trafficke to our adverse townes:

Nay more, if any borne at Ephesus 20

OF ERRORS

[I. i. 48-80]

Had made provision for her following me,
 And soone, and safe, arrived where I was:
 There had she not beene long, but she became
 A joyfull mother of two goodly sonnes:
 And, which was strange, the one so like the other,
 As could not be distinguish'd but by names.
 That very howre, and in the selfe-same Inne,
 A meane woman was delivered
 Of such a burthen Male, twins both alike:
 Those, for their parents were exceeding poore,      60
 I bought, and brought up to attend my sonnes.
 My wife, not meanelly proud of two such boyes,
 Made daily motions for our home returne:
 Unwilling I agreed, alas, too soone wee came aboard.
 A league from Epidamium had we saild
 Before the Awaies winde-obeying deepe      <sup>1 indication</sup>
 Gave any Tragicke Instance<sup>1</sup> of our harme:
 But longer did we not retaine much hope;
 For what obscured light the heavens did grant,
 Did but convey unto our fearefull mindes      70
 A doubtfull warrant of immediate death,
 Which though my selfe would gladly have imbrac'd,
 Yet the incessant weepings of my wife,
 Weeping before for what she saw must come,
 And pitteous playnings of the prettie babes
 That mourn'd for fashion, ignorant what to feare,
 Forst me to seeke delays for them and me,
 And this it was: (for other meanes was none)
 The Sailors sought for safety by our boate,
 And left the ship then sinking ripe to us.      80
 My wife, more carefull for the latter borne,
 Had fastned him unto a small spare Mast,

58. meane: meane-DELIVS. 64. wee came aboard: 1 l.-POPE.

Such as sea-faring men provide for stormes:
 To him one of the other twins was bound,
 Whil'st I had beene like heedfull of the other.
 The children thus dispos'd, my wife and I,
 Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fixt,
 Fastned our selves at eyther end the mast,
 And floating straight, obedient to the streame,
 Was carried towards Corinth, as we thought. 90
 At length the sonne gazing upon the earth,
 Disperst those vapours that offended us,
 And by the benefit of his wished light
 The seas waxt calme, and we discovered
 Two shippes from farre, making amaine to us:
 Of Corinth that, of Epidurus this,
 But ere they came, oh let me say no more,
 Gather the sequell by that went before.

Duk. Nay forward old man, doe not breake off so,
 For we may pittie, though not pardon thee. 100

Merch. Oh had the gods done so, I had not now
 Worthily tearm'd them mercilesse to us:
 For ere the ships could meet by twice five leagues,
 We were encountred by a mighty rocke,
 Which being violently borne up,
 Our helpefull ship was splitted in the midst;
 So that in this unjust divorce of us,
 Fortune had left to both of us alike,
 What to delight in, what to borrow for,
 Her part, poore soule, seeming as burdened 110
 With lesser waight, but not with lesser woe,
 Was carried with more speed before the winde,
 And in our sight they three were taken up
 By Fishermen of Corinth, as we thought.

105. up: upon—Porz (up upon—2-4F.).

At length another ship had seiz'd on us,
 And knowing whom it was their hap to save,
 Gave healthfull welcome to their ship-wrackt guests,
 And would have reft the Fishers of their prey,
 Had not their backe beene very slow of saile;
 And therefore homeward did they bend their course.
 Thus have you heard me sever'd from my blisse, 121
 That by misfortunes was my life prolong'd,
 To tell sad stories of my owne mishaps.

Duke. And for the sake of them thou sorrowest for,
 Doe me the favour to dilate at full,
 What have befallne of them and they till now.

Merch. My yongest boy, and yet my eldest care,
 At eightene yeeres became inquisitive
 After his brother; and importun'd me
 That his attendant, so his case was like, 130
 Res<sup>t</sup> of his brother, but retain'd his name,
 Might beare him company in the quest of him:
 Whom whil'st I laboured of a love to see,
 I hazarded the losse of whom I lov'd.
 Five Sommers have I spent in farthest Greece,
 Roving cleane through the bounds of Asia,
 And coasting homeward, came to Ephesus:
 Hopelesse to finde, yet loth to leave unsought
 Or that, or any place that harbours men:
 But heere must end the story of my life, 140
 And happy were I in my timelie death,
 Could all my travells warrant me they live.

 And passed sentence may not be recal'd 150
 But to our honours great disparagement:
 Yet will I favour thee in what I can;
 Therefore Marchant, Ile limit thee this day
 To seeke thy helpe, by beneficiall helpe,
 Try all the friends thou hast in Ephesus,
 Beg thou, or borrow, to make up the summe,
 And live: if no, then thou art doom'd to die:
 Jaylor, take him to thy custodie.

Jaylor. I will my Lord.

Merch. Hopelesse and helpelesse doth Egean wend,
 But to procrastinate his livelesse end. Exeunt. 161

Enter Antipholis Erotas, a Marchant, and Dromio.

Mer. Therefore give out you are of Epidamium,
 Lest that your goods too soone be confiscate:
 This very day a Syracusan Marchant
 Is apprehended for a rivall here,
 And not being able to buy out his life,
 According to the statute of the towne,
 Dies ere the wearie sunne set in the West;
 There is your monie that I had to keepe.

Ant. Goe beare it to the Centaure, where we host,
 And stay there Dromio, till I come to thee; 11
 Within this houre it will be dinner time,

What now? How chance thou art return'd so soone.

43. unhappie a: a out-2-4F.

E. Dro. Return'd so soone, rather approacht too late:
 The Capon burnes, the Pig fals from the spit;
 The clocke hath stricken twelve upon the bell:
 My Mistris made it one upon my cheeke: 50
 She is so hot because the meate is colde:
 The meate is colde, because you come not home:
 You come not home, because you have no stomacke:
 You have no stomacke, having broke your fast:
 But we that know what 'tis to fast and pray,
 Are penitent for your default to day.

 Where have you left the mony that I gave you.

E. Dro. Oh sixe pence that I had a wensday last,
 To pay the Sadler for my Mistris crupper: 60
 The Saelder had it Sir, I kept it not.

Ant. I am not in a sportive humor now:
 Tell me, and dally not, where is the monie?
 We being strangers here, how dar'st thou trust
 So great a charge from thine owne custodie.

E. Dro. I pray you jest sir, as you sit at dinner:
 I from my Mistris come to you in post:
 If I returne I shall be post indeede.

For she will scoure your fault upon my pate:
 Me thinks your maw, like mine, should be your cooke,
 And strike you home without a messenger. 71

Ant. Come Dromio, come, these jests are out of season,
 Reserve them till a merrier houre then this:
 Where is the gold I gave in charge to thee?

E. Dro. To me sir? why you gave no gold to me?

Ant. Come on sir knave, have done your foolishnes,
 And tell me how thou hast dispos'd thy charge.

E. Dro. My charge was but to fetch you from the Mart

69. scoure: score-Rowe.70. cooke: clock-Pope.

Home to your house, the Phœnix sir, to dinner;
My Mistris and her sister staies for you. 80

Ant. Now as I am a Christian answer me,
In what safe place you have bestow'd my monie;
Or I shall breake that merrie sconce<sup>1</sup> of yours <sup>1</sup>bead
That stands on tricks, when I am undispos'd:
Where is the thousand Markes thou hadst of me?

E. Dro. I have some markes of yours upon my pate:
Some of my Mistris markes upon my shoulders:
But got a thousand markes betweene you both.
If I should pay your worship those againe,
Perchance you will not beare them patiently. 90

Ant. Thy Mistris markes? what Mistris slave hast thou?

E. Dro. Your worships wife, my Mistris at the Phœnix;
She that doth fast till you come home to dinner:
And praies<sup>2</sup> that you will hie you home to dinner.

Ant. What wilt thou flout me thus unto my face
Being forbid? There take you that sir knave.

E. Dro. What meane you sir, for God sake hold your hands: |
Nay, and you will not sir, Ile take my heeles.

Exeunt Dromio Ep.

Ant. Upon my life by some devise or other, 100
The villaine is ore-wrought<sup>2</sup> of all my monie. <sup>2</sup>cheated
They say this towne is full of cosnage:<sup>3</sup> <sup>3</sup>cheating
As nimble Juglers that deceive the eie:
Darke working Sorcerers that change the minde:
Soule-killing Witches, that deforme the bodie:
Disguised Cheaters, prating Mountebanks;
And manie such like liberties of sinne:

97. God: God's-HANMER.

101. ore-wrought: o'er-raught-HANMER.

If it prove so, I will be gone the sooner:
 Ile to the Centaur to goe seeke this slave,
 I greatly feare my monie is not safe. Exit. 110

Actus Secundus.

[Scene i. The house of Antipholus of Ephesus.]

*Enter Adriana, wife to Antipholus Sereptus, with

Adr. Neither my husband nor the slave return'd,
 That in such haste I sent to seeke his Master?
 Sure Luciana it is two a clocke.

Luc. Perhaps some Merchant hath invited him,
 And from the Mart he's somewhere gone to dinner:
 Good Sister let us dine, and never fret;
 A man is Master of his libertie: 10
 Time is their Master, and when they see time,
 They'll goe or come; if so, be patient Sister.

Adr. Why should their libertie then ours be more?

Luc. Because their businesse still lies out adore.

Adr. Looke when I serve him so, he takes it thus.

Luc. Oh, know he is the bridle of your will.

Adr. There's none but asses will be bridled so.

Luc. Why, headstrong liberty is lasht with woe:
 There's nothing situate under heavens eye,
 But hath his bound in earth, 'in sea, in skie. 20
 The beasts, the fishes, and the winged fowles
 Are their males subjects, and at their controules:
 Man more divinc, the Master of all these,
 Lord of the wide world, and wilde watry seas,

14. adore: o' door-CAPELL.

15. thus: ill-2-4F.

23. Man .. Master: Men .. masters-HANMER.

24. Lord: Lords-HANMER.

Indued with intellectuall sence and soules,
 Of more preheminance then fish and fowles,
 Are masters to their females, and their Lords:
 Then let your will attend on their accords.

Adri. This servitude makes you to keepe unwed.

Luci. Not this, but troubles of the marriage bed. 30

Adr. But were you wedded, you wold bear some sway

Luc. Ere I learne love, Ile practise to ohey.

Adr. How if your husband start some other where?

Luc. Till he come home againe, I would forbear.

Adr. Patience unmov'd, no marvel though she pause,
 They can be meeke, that have no other cause:

A wretched soule bruis'd with adversitie,

We bid be quiet when we heare it crie.

But were we burdned with like waight of paine,

As much, or more, we should our selves complaine: 40

So<sup>o</sup> thou that hast no unkinde mate to greeve thee,

With urging helpelesse patience would releeve me;

But if thou live to see like right bereft,

This foole-beg'd<sup>1</sup> patience in thee will be left.

Luci. Well, I will marry one day but to trie:

Heere comes your man, now is your husband nie.

<sup>1</sup> foolishly demanded

Enter Dromio Epb.

Adr. Say, is your tardie master now at hand?

E. Dro. Nay, hee's at too hands with mee, and that my two eares can witnesse. 50

Adr. Say, didst thou speake with him? knowst thou his minde? •

• E. Dro. I, I, he told his minde upon mine eare, Beshrew his hand, I scarce could understand it.

42. would: wouldst—Rowz. 49. too bands: two hands—2-4F.

Luc. Spake hee so doubtfully; thou couldst not feele his meaning.

E. Dro. Nay, hee strooke so plainly, I could too well feele his blowes; and withall so doubtfully, that I could scarce understand them.

Adri. But say, I prethee, is he comming home? 60
It seemes he hath great care to please his wife.

E. Dro. Why Mistresse, sure my Master is horne mad.

Adri. Horne mad, thou villaine?

E. Dro. I meane not Cuckold mad,
But sure he is starke mad:
When I desir'd him to come home to dinner,
He ask'd me for a hundred markes in gold:
'Tis dinner time quoth I: my gold, quoth he:
Your meat doth burne, quoth I: my gold quoth he:
Will you come, quoth I: my gold, quoth he; 70
Where is the thousand markes I gave thee villaine?
The Pigge quoth I, is burn'd: my gold, quoth he:
My mistresse, sir, quoth I: hang up thy Mistresse:
I know not thy mistresse, out on thy mistresse.

Luci. Quoth who?

E. Dr. Quoth my Master, I know quoth he, no house, no wife, no mistresse: so that my arrant due unto my tongue, I thanke him, I bare home upon my shoulders:
for in conclusion, he did beat me there. 79

Adri. Go back againe, thou slave, & fetch him home.

Dro. Goe hacke againe, and be new beaten home?
For Gods sake send some other messenger.

Adri. Backe slave, or I will breake thy pate a-crosse.

Dro. And he will blesse that crosse with other beating:
Betweene you, I shall have a holy head.

70. come: come home—HANMER.

67. hundred: thousand—2F.

76-9. I know, etc.: 4 five-accent ll.—POPE.

77. arrant: errand—4F.

Dro. Am I so round<sup>1</sup> with you, as you with me,
That like a foot-ball you doe spurne me thus:
You spurne me hence, and he will spurne me hither,
If I last in this service, you must case me in leather.

<sup>1</sup>plain-spoken [Exit.]

Luci. Fie how impatience lowreth in your face. 91

Adri. His company must do his minions grace,
-Whil'st I at home starve for a merrie looke:
He<sup>1</sup> homelie age th<sup>1</sup>alluring beauty tooke
From my poore cheekes<sup>2</sup> then he hath wasted it.
Are my discourses dull? Barren my wit,
If voluble and sharpe discourse be mar'd,
Unkindnesse blunts it more then marble hard.
Doe their gay vestments his affections haite?
That's not my fault, hee's master of my state. 100
What ruines are in me that can be found,
By him not ruin'd? Then is he the ground
Of my defeatures. My decayed faire, <sup>2</sup>stalking-horse
A sunnie looke of his, would soone repaire.
But, too unruly Deere, he breakes the pale,
And feedes from home; poore I am but his stalc.<sup>2</sup>

Luci. Selfe-harming Jealousie; fie beat it hence.

Ad. Unfeeling fools can with such wrongs dispencc:
I know his eye doth homage other-where,
Or else, what lets it but he would be here? 110
Sister, you know he promiſ'd me a chaine,
Would that alone, a love he would detaine,
So he would keepe faire quarter with his bed:
I see the Jewell best enamaled
Will loose his beautie. yet the gold bides still
That others touch, and often touching will,

112. a love: 'alone-2-4F

Where gold and no man that hath a name,
 By falshood and corruption doth it shame:
 Since that my beautie cannot please his eie,
 Ile weepe (what's left away) and weeping die. 120
Luci. How manie fond fooles serve mad Jelousie?
Exit.

[Scene ii. A public place.]

Enter Antipholis Eryotis.

Ant. The gold I gave to Dromio is laid up
 Safe at the Centaur, and the heedfull slave
 Is wandred forth in care to seeke me out
 By computation and mine hosts report.
 I could not speake with Dromio, since at first
 I sent him from the Mart<sup>r</sup> see here he comes.

Enter Dromio Siracusia.

How now sir, is your merrie humor alter'd?
 As you love stroakes, so jest with me againe: 10
 You know no Centaur? you receiv'd no gold?
 Your Mistresse sent to have me home to dinner?
 My house was at the Phoenix? Wast thou mad,
 That thus so madlic thou did didst answere me?

S. Dro. What answer sir? when spake I such a word?

E. Ant. Even now, even here, not halfe an howre since.

S. Dro. I did not see you since you sent me hence
 Home to the Centaur with the gold you gave me.

Ant. Villaine, thou didst denie the golds receipt,
 And toldst me of a Mistresse, and a dinner, 20
 For which I hope thou feltst I was displeas'd.

S. Dro: I am glad to see you in this merrie vaine;
 What meanes this jest, I pray you Master tell me?

117. Where: WEBB—THEOBALD.

14. did didst didst—2F.

Ant. Yea, dost thou jeere & flowt me in the teeth?
Thinkst thou I jest? hold, take thou that, & that.

Beats Dro.

S. Dr. Hold sir, for Godssake, now your jest is earnest,
Upon what bargaine do you give it me?

Antipb. Because that I familiarlie sometimes
Doe use you for my foole, and chat with you,
Your sawcinesse will jest upon my love, 30
~~And~~ make a Common of my serious howres,
When the sunne shines, let foolish gnats make sport,
But creepe in crannies, when he hides his beames:
If you will jest with me, know my aspect,
And fashion your demcanor to my looks,
Or I will beat this method in your sconce.

S. Dro. Sconce call you it? so you would leave battering, I had rather have it a head, and you use these blows long, I must get a sconce for my head, and Insconce it to, or else I shall seek my wit in my shoulders, but I pray
sir, why am I beaten? 41

Ant. Dost thou not know?

S. Dro. Nothing sir, but that I am beaten.

Ant. Shall I tell you why?

S. Dro. I sir, and wherefore; for they say, every why hath a wherefore.

Ant. Why first for flowting me, and then wherefore, for urging it the second tinfte to me.

S. Dro. Was there ever anie man thus beaten out of season, when in the why and the wherefore, is neither rime nor reason, Well sir, I thanke you. 51

Ant. Thanke me sir, for what?

S. Dro. Marry sir, for this something that you gave me for nothing.

38. and: an-Rowz.

48. new l. at For-Capell.

49-51. 2 rhymed ll. ending reason-Forz, 2Rowz.

Ant. Ile make you amends next, to give you nothing for something. But say sir, is it dinner time?

S. Dro. No sir, I thinke the meat wants that I have.

Ant. In good time sir: what's that?

S. Dro. Basting.

Ant. Well sir, then 'twill be dric. 60

S. Dro. If it be sir, I pray you eat none of it.

Ant. Your reason?

S. Dro. Lest it make you chollericke, and purchase <sup>me</sup> another drie basting.

Ant. Well sir, learne to jest in good time, there's a time for all things.

S. Dro. I durst have denied that before you were so chollæicke.

Anti. By what rule sir?

S. Dro. Marry sir, by a rule as plaine as the plaine bald pate of Father time himselve. 71

Ant. Let's heare it.

S. Dro. There's no time for a man to recover his haire that growes bald by nature.

Ant. May he not doe it by fine and recoverie?

S. Dro. Yes, to pay a fine for a perewig, and recover the lost haire of another man.

Ant. Why, is Time such a niggard of haire, being (as it is) so plentifull an excrement?<sup>1</sup> <sup>1 outgrowth</sup> 79

S. Dro. Because it is a blessing that hee bestowes on beasts, and what he hath scanted them in haire, hee hath given them in wit.

Ant. Why, but theres manie a man hath more haire then wit.

S. Dro. Not a man of those but he hath the wit to lose his haire.

81. them: men—2Pope.

Ant. Why thou dost conclude hairy men plain dealers without wit.

S. Dro. The plainer dealer, the sooner lost; yet he looseth it in a kinde of jollitie. 90

An. For what reason.

S. Dro. For two, and sound ones to.

An. Nay not sound I pray you.

S. Dro. Sure ones then.

An. Nay, not sure in a thing falsing.<sup>1</sup>

S. Dro. Certaine ones then. <sup>1 apt to be falsified</sup>

An. Name them.

S. Dro. The one to save the money that he spends in trying: the other, that at dinner they should not drop in his porrage. 100

An. You would all this time have prov'd, there is no time for all things.

S. Dro. Marry and did sir: namely, in no time to recover haire lost by Nature.

An. But your reason was not substantiall, why there is no time to recover.

S. Dro. Thus I mend it: Time himselfe is bald, and therefore to the worlds end, will have bald followers.

An. I knew 'twould be a bald conclusion: but soft, who wafts us yonder. 110

Enter Adriana and Luciana.

Adri. I, I, Antipholus, looke strange and frowne,

Some other Mistresse hath thy sweet aspects:

I am not Adriana, nor thy wife.

The time was once, when thou un-urg'd wouldst vow,

That never words were musicke to thine eare,

That never object pleasing in thine eye,

99. trying. 'tiring-Porr.

103. in no time: no time-2-4F.

That never touch well welcome, to thy hand,
 That never meat sweet-savour'd in thy taste, 119
 Unlesse I spake, or look'd, or touch'd, or carv'd to thee.
 How comes it now, my Husband, oh how comes it,
 That thou art then estranged from thy selfe?
 Thy selfe I call it, being strange to me:
 That undividable Incorporate
 Am better then thy deere selves better part.
 Ah doe not teare away thy selfe from me;
 For know my love: as easie maist thou fall
 A drop of water in the breaking gulfe,
 And take unmingled thence that drop againe
 Without addition or diminishing, 130
 As take from me thy selfe, and not me too.
 How dgerely would it touch thee to the quicke,
 Shouldst thou but heare I were licencious?
 And that this body consecrate to thee,
 By Ruffian Lust should be contaminate?
 Wouldst thou not spit at me, and spurne at me,
 And hurle the name of husband in my face,
 And teare the stain'd skin of my Harlot brow,
 And from my false hand cut the wedding ring,
 And breake it with a deepe-divorcing vow? 140
 I know thou canst, and therefore see thou doe it.
 I am possest with an adulterate blot,
 My bloud is mingled with the crime of lust:
 For if we two be one, and thou play false,
 I doe digest the poison of thy flesh,
 Being strumpeted by thy contagion:
 Keepe then faire league and truce with thy true bed,
 I live distain'd, thou undishonoured.

Antip. Plead you to me faire dame? I know you not:

122. then: thus—ROWE.

138. skin of: skin off—HANMER.

148. distain'd: unstained—HANMER.

In Epbesus I am but ~~two~~ <sup>yo</sup> houres old, 150
 As strange unto your towne, as to your talke,
 Who every word by all my wit being scan'd,
 Wants wit in all, one word to understand.

Luci. Fic brother, how the world is chang'd with you:
 When were you wont to use my sister thus?
 She sent for you by Dromio home to dinner.

Ant. By Dromio? Drom. By me.

Adr. By thee, and this thou didst returne from him.
 'But he did buffet thee, and in his blowes,
 Deniell my house for his, me for his wife. 160

Ant. Did you converse sir with this gentlewoman:
 What is the course and drift of your compact?

S. Dro. I sir? I never saw her till this time.

Ant. Villaine thou liest, for even her verie words,
 Didst thou deliver to me on the Mart.

**S. Dro.* I never spake with her in all my life.

Ant. How can she thus then call us by our names?
 Unlesse it be by inspiration.

Adri. How ill agrees it with your gravitie,
 To counterfeit thus grossely with your slave, 170
 Abetting him to thwart me in my moode;
 Be it my wrong, you are from me exempt,
 But wrong not that wrong with a more contempt.
 Come I will fasten on this sleeve of thine:
 Thou art an Elme my husband, I a Vine:
 Whose weaknesse married to thy stranger state,
 Makes me with thy strength to communicate:
 If ought possesse thee from me, it is drosse,
 Usurping Ivie, Brier, or idle Mosse,
 Who all for want of pruning, with intrusion, 180
 Infect thy sap, and live on thy confusion.

153. Wants: Want-JOHNSON.

157. Drom. new l.-4F.

176. strange?: stronger-4F.

What, was I married to her in my dreame?
Or sleepe I now, and thinke I heare all this?
What error drives our eies and eares amisse?
Untill I know this sure uncertaintie,
Ile entertaine the free'd fallacie.

Luc. Dromio, goe bid the servants spred for dinner.

S. Dro. Oh for my beads, I crosse me for a sinner.
This is the Fairie land, oh spight of spights, 191
We talke with Goblins, Owles and Sprights;
If we obay them not, this will insue:

They'll sucke our breath, or pinch us blacke and blew.

Luc. Why prat'st thou to thy selfe, and answer'st not?
Dromio, thou Dromio, thou snailc, thou slug, thou sot.

S. Dro. I am transformed Master, am I not?

Ant. I thinke thou art in minde, and so am I.

S. Dro. Nay Master, both in minde, and in my shape.

Ant. Thou hast thine owne forme. 200

S. Dro. No, I am an Ape,

Luc. If thou art chang'd to ought, 'tis to an Asse.

S. Dro. 'Tis true she rides me, and I long for grasse.
'Tis so, I am an Asse, else it could never be,
But I should know her as well as she knowes me.

Adr. Come, come, no longer will I be a foole,
To put the finger in the cie and weepe;
Whil'st man and Master laughes my woes to scorne:
Come sir to dinner, Dromio keepe the gate:
Husband Ile dine above with you to day, 210
And shrive you of a thousand idle pranks:
Sirra, if any aske you for your Master,

188. free'd: offer'd—CAPELL.

196. thou Dromio: thou drone—THEOBALD.

208. laugbes: laugh—POPE.

Say he dines forth, and let no creature enter:
Come sister, Dromio play the Porter well.

Ant. Am I in earth, in heaven, or in hell?
Sleeping or waking, mad or well advise:
Knowne unto these, and to my selfe disguise:
Ile say as they say, and persever so:
And in this mist at all adventures go.

S. Dro. Master, shall I be Porter at the gate? 220

Adr. I, and let none enter, least I breake your pate.

Luc. Come, come, Antipholus, we dine to late.

[Exeunt.]

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

[Before the house of Antipholus of Ephesus.]

Enter Antipholus of Ephesus, his man Dromio, Angelo the Goldsmith, and Balthaser the Merchant.

E. Anti. Good signior Angelo you must excuse us all,
My wife is shrewish when I keepe not howres;
Say that I lingerd with you at your shop
To see the making of her Carkanet,
And that to morrow you will bring it home.
But here's a villaine that would face me downe
He met me on the Mart, and that I beat him, 10
And charg'd him with a thousand markes in gold,
And that I did denie my wife and house;
Thou drunkard thou, what didst thou meane by this?

E. Dro. Say what you wil sir, but I know what I know,
That you beat me at the Mart I have your hand to show;
If the skin were parchment, & the blows you gave were ink, |

Your owne hand-writing would tell you what I thinke.

E. Ant. I thinke thou art an asse.

E. Dro. Marry so it doth appeare
By the wrongs I suffer, and the blowes I beare, 20

I should kicke being kickt, and being at that passe,
You would keepe from my heeles, and beware of an asse.

E. An. Y'are sad signior Baltbazar, pray God our cheer |

May answer my good will, and your good welcom here.

Bal. I hold your dainties cheapsir, & your welcom deer.

E. An. Oh signior Baltbazar, either at flesh or fish,
A table full of welcome, makes scarce one dainty dish.

Bal. Good meat sir is common that every churle affords.

Anti. And welcome more common, for thats nothing but words. 30

Bal. Small cheere and great welcome, makes a merrie feast.

Anti. I, to a niggardly Host, and more sparing guest:
But though my cates be meane, take them in good part,
Better cheere may you have, but not with better hart.
But soft, my doore is lockt; goe bid them let us in.

E. Dro. Maud, Briget, Marian, Cisley, Gillian, Ginn.

Either get thee from the dore, or sit downe at the hatch:
Dost thou conjure for wenches, that thou calst for such store, |

When one is one too many, goe get thee from the dore.

E. Dro. What patch is made our Porter? my Master stays in the street.

S. Dro. [Within] Let him walke from whence he came, lest hee | catch cold on's feet.

E. Ant. Who talks within there? hoa, open the dore.

S. Dro. [Within] Right sir, Ile tell you when, and you'll tell | me wherefore. 49

Ant. Wherefore? for my dinner: I have not din'd to day.

S. Dro. [Within] Nor to day here you must not come
 . againe | when you may.

Anti. What art thou that keep'st mee out from the howse I owe?

S. Dro. The Porter for this time Sir, and my name is Dromio.

E. Dro. O villaine, thou hast stolne both mine office and my name,

The one nere got me credit, the other mickle blame: 60
 If thou hadst beene Dromio to day in my place, Thou'wouldest have chang'd thy face for a name, or thy name for an asse.

Enter Luce.

Luce. [Within] What a coile is there Dromio? who
 , are those | at the gate?

E. Dro. Let my Master in Luce.

Luce. [Within] Faith no, hee comes too late, and so tell your | Master.

E. Dro. O Lord I must laugh, have at you with a Pro-verbe, 71

Shall I set in my staffe.

Luce. Have at you with another, that's when? can you tell?

S. Dro. [Within] If thy name be called Luce, Luce
 thou hast an- | swer'd him well.

Anti. Doe you heare you minion, you'll let us in I hope?

Luce. I thought to have askt you.

S. Dro. And you said no. 80

E. Dro. So come helpe, well strooke, there was blow for blow.

Anti. Thou baggage let me in.

Luce. [Within] Can you tell for whose sake? •

E. Drom. Master, knocke the doore hard.

Luce. [Within] Let him knocke till it ake.

Anti. You'll crie for this minion, if I beat the doore downe.

Luce. [Within] What needs all that, and a paire of stocks in the | towne? 90

Enter Adriana.

Adr. [Within] Who is that at the doore that keeps all this noise? |

S. Dro. [Within] By my troth your towne is troubled with un- | ruly hoies.

Anti. Are you there Wife? you might have come before.

Adri. [Within] Your wife sir knave? go get you from the doore. |

E. Dro. If you went in paine Master, this knave wold goe sore. 99

Angelo. Heere is neither cheere sir, nor welcome, we would faine have either.

Baltz. In debating which was best, wee shall part with neither.

E. Dro. They stand at the doore, Master, bid them welcome hither.

Anti. There is something in the winde, that we cannot get in.

E. Dro. You would say so Master, if your garments were thin.

Your cake here is warme within: you stand here in the cold. 111

110. cake here: cake there—GLOBE.

It would make a man ~~had~~ as a Bucke to be so bought and sold.

Ant. Go fetch me something, Ile break ope the gate.

S. Dro. [Within] Breake any breaking here, and Ile breake your | knaves pate.

E. Dro. A man may breake a word with your sir, and words are but winde:

I and breake it in your face, so he ~~break~~ it not behinde.

S. Dro. [Within] It seemes thou want'st breaking, out
Upon thee | hinde. 121

E. Dro. Here's too much out upon thee, I pray thee let me in.

S. Dro. [Within] I, when fowles have no feathers, and fish have | no fin.

Ant. Well, Ile breake in: go borrow me a crow.

E. Dro. A crow without feather, Master meane you so;
For a fish without a finne, ther's a fowle without afether,
If a crow help us in sirra, wee'll plucke a crow together.

Ant. Go, get thee gon, fetch me an iron Crow. 130

Balth. Have patience sir, oh let it not be so,
Heerein you warre against your reputation,
And draw within the compasse of suspect<sup>1</sup> <sup>1</sup>suspicion
Th'unviolated honor of your wife.

Once this your long experience of your wisdoms,
Her sober vertue, yeares, and modestie,
Plead on your part some cause to you unknowne;
And doubt not sir, but she will well excuse
Why at this time the dores are made against you.

Be rul'd by me, depart in patience, 140
And let us to the Tyger all to dinner,
And about evening come your selfe alone,
To know the reason of this strange restraint:

117. your: you-2-4F.

135. your: her-Rowe.

If by strong hand you offer to W'eake in
 Now in the stirring passage of the day,
 A vulgar comment will be made of it;
 And that supposed by the common rowt
 Against your yet ungalled estimation,
 That may with foule intrusion enter in,
 And dwell upon your grave when you are dead; 150
 For slander lives upon succession;
 For ever hows'd, where it gets possession.

Anti. You have prevail'd, I will depart in quiet,
 And in despite of mirth meane to be merrie:
 I know a wench of excellent discourse,
 Prettie and wittie; wilde, and yet too gentle;
 There will we dine: this woman that I meane
 My wife (but I protest without desert)
 Hath oftentimes upbraided me withall:
 To her will we to dinner, [To Ang.] get you home
 And fetch the chaine, by this I know 'tis made, 161
 Bring it I pray you to the Porpentine,
 For there's the house: That chaine will I bestow
 (Be it for nothing but to spight my wife)
 Upon mine hostesse there, good sir make haste:
 Since mine owne doores refuse to entertaine me,
 Ile knocke else-where, to see if they'll disdaine me.

Ang. Ile meet you at that place some houre hence.

Anti. Do so, this jest shall cost me some expence.

Exeunt. 170

[Scene ii. The same.]

Enter Juliana [Luciana], with Antipholus of Siracusia.

Julia. [Luc.] And may it be that you have quite forgot
 A husbands office? shall Antipholus
 Even in the spring of Love, thy Love-spring rot?

Shall love in buildings grow so ruinate?
 If you did wed my sister for her wealth,
 Then for her wealths-sake use her with more kindnesse:
 Or if you like else-where doe it by stealth,
 Muffle your false love with some shew of blindnessse:
 Let not my sister read it in your eye: 10
 Be not thy tongue thy owne shames Orator:
 Looke sweet, speake faire, become disloyaltie:
 Apparell vice like vertues harbenger:
 Beare a faire presence, though your heart be tainted,
 Teach sinne the carriage of a holy Saint,
 Be secret false: what need she be acquainted?
 What simple thiefe brags of his owne attaine?
 'Tis double wrong to truant with your bed,
 And let her read it in thy lookes at hoord:
 Shame hath a bastard fame, well managed, 20
 Ill deeds is doubled with an evill word:
 Alas poore women, make us not beleewe
 (Being compact of credit) that you love us,
 Though others have the arme, shew us the sleeve:
 We in your motion turne, and you may move us.
 Then gentle brother get you in againe;
 Comfort my sister, cheere her, call her wise;
 'Tis holy sport to be a little vaine,
 When the sweet breath of flatterie conquers strife.

S. Anti. Sweete Mistris, what your name is else I know not; 31

Nor by what wonder you do hit of mine:
 Lesse in your knowledge, and your grace you show not,
 Then our earths wonder, more then earth divine.
 Teach me deere creature how to thinke and speake:

5. buildings: building—THEOBALD. ruinate: ruinous—CAPELL.

17. attaine: attaint—ROWE.

21. is: are—2-4F.

22. not: but—THEOBALD.

27. wise: wife—2-4F.

Lay open to my carthie grosse conceit:
 Smothred in errors, feeble, shadow, weake,
 The foulded meaning of your words deceit:
 Against my soules pure truth, why labour you,
 To make it wander in an unknowne field? 40
 Are you a god? would you create me new?
 Transforme me then, and to your powre Ile veeld.
 But if that I am I, then well I know,
 Your weeping sister is no wife of mine,
 Nor to her bed no homage doe I owe:
 Farre more, farre more, to you doe I decline:<sup>1</sup> Incline
 Oh traine me not sweet Mermaide with thy note,
 To drowne me in thy sister flood of teares:
 Sing Siren for thy selfe, and I will dote:
 Spread ore the silver waves thy golden haire; 50
 And as a bud Ile take thee, and there lie: ,
 And in that glorious supposition thinke,
 He gaires by death, that hath such meanes to die:
 Let Love, being light, be drowned if she sinke.

Luc. What are you mad, that you doe reason so?

Ant. Not mad, but mated, how I doe not know.

Luc. It is a fault that springeth from your cie.

Ant. For gazing on your beames faire sun being by.

Luc. Gaze when you should, and that will cleere your sight. 60

Ant. As good to winke sweet love, as looke on night.

Luc. Why call you me love? Call my sister so.

Ant. Thy sisters sister.

Luc. That's my sister.

Ant. No: it is thy selfe, mine owne selves better part:
 Mine eies cleere cie, my deere hearts deerer heart;

48. sister: sister's-2-4F.

51. bed: bed-2-4F. thee: them-CAPELL.

OF ERRORS

[III. ii. 63-94

My foode, my fortune, and my sweet hopes aime;
My sole earths heaven, and my heavens claime.

Luc. All this my sister is, or else should be.

Ant. Call thy selfe sister sweet, for I am thee: 70
Thee will I love, and with thee lead my life;
Thou hast no husband yet, nor I no wife:
Give me thy hand.

Luc. Oh soft sir, hold you still;
He fetch my sister to get her good will. Exit.

Enter Dromio, Siracusia.

Ant. Why how now Dromio, where run'st thou so fast?

S. Dro. Doe you know me sir? Am I Dromio? Am I your man? Am I my selfe? 80

Ant. Thou art Dromio, thou art my man, thou art thy selfe.

Dro. I am an asse, I am a womans man, and besides my selfe.

Ant. What womans man? and how besides thy selfe?

Dro. Marrie sir, besides my selfe, I am due to a woman: One that claimes me, one that haunts me, one that will have me.

Ant. What claime laies she to thee? 90

Dro. Marry sir, such claime as you would lay to your horse, and she would have me as a beast, not that I being a beast she would have me, but that she being a verie beastly creature layes claime to me.

Ant. What is she?

Dro. A very reverent body: I such a one, as a man may not speake of, without he say sir reverence, I have but leane lucke in the match, and yet is she a wondrous fat marriage.

Anti. How dost thou meane a fat marriage? 100

Dro. Marry sir, she's the Kitchen wench, & al grease, and I know not what use to put her too, but to make a Lampe of her, and run from her by her owne light. I warrant, her ragges and the Tallow in them, will burne a Poland Winter: If she lives till doomesday, she'l burne a weeke longer then the whole World.

Anti. What complexion is she of?

Dro. Swart like my shoo, but her face nothing like so cleane kept: for why? she sweats a man may, goe over-shoes in the grime of it. 110

Anti. That's a fault that water will mend.

Dro. No sir, 'tis in graine, Noahs flood could not do it.

Anti. What's her name?

Dro. Nell Sir: but her name is three quarters, that's an Ell and three quarters, will not measure her from hip to hip.

Anti. Then she beares some bredth?

Dro. No longer from head to foot, then from hippe to hippe: she is sphericall, like a globe: I could find out Countries in her. 121

Anti. In what part of her body stands Ireland?

Dro. Marry sir in her buttockes, I found it out by the bogges.

Ant. Where Scotland?

Dro. I found it by the barrennesse, hard in the palme of the hand.

Ant. Where France?

Dro. In her forehead, arm'd and reverted, making warre against her heire. 130

Ant. Where England?

Dro. I look'd for the chalkle Cliffes, but I could find no whitenesse in them.<sup>132</sup> But I guesse, it stood in her chin by the salt rheume that ranne betweene France, and it.

Ant. Where Spaine?

Dro. Faith I saw it not: but I felt it hot in her breth.

Ant. Where America, the Indies?

Dro. Oh sir, upon her nose, all ore embellished with Rubies, Carbuncles, Saphires, declining their rich Aspect to the hot breath of Spaine, who sent whole Armadoes of Carrects to be ballast at her nose. 141

Anti. Where stood Belgia, the Netherlands?

Dro. Oh sir, I did not looke so low. To conclude, this drudge or Diviner layd claime to mee, call'd mee Dromio, swore I was assur'd to her, told me what privie markes I had about mee, as the marke of my shoulder, the Mole in my necke, the great Wart on my left arme, that I amaz'd ranne from her as a witch. And I thinke, if my brest had not beene made of faith, and my heart of steele, she had transform'd me to a Curtull<sup>1</sup> dog, & made me turne i'th wheele. <sup>1</sup>docked-tail 151

Anti. Go hie thee presently, post to the rode,
And if the winde blow any way from shore,
I will not harbour in this Towne to night.
If any Barke put forth, come to the Mart,
Where I will walke till thou returne to me:
If everie one knowes us, and we know none,
'Tis time I thinke to trudge, packe, and be gone.

Dro. As from a Beare a man would run for life,
So flie I from her that would be my wife. Exit 160

Anti. There's none but Witches do inhabite heere,
And therefore 'tis hie time that I were hence:

132. chalkle: chalky-2-4F. 141. Carrects: caracks-HANMER.

148-51. And 'I ... wheele: 2 rhymed ll.-KNIGHT.

153. And: An-CAPELL.

She that doth call me husband, even my soule
 Doth for a wife abhorre. But her faire sister
 Possest with such a gentle soveraigne grace,
 Of such inchanting presence and discourse,
 Hath almost made me Traitor to my selfe:
 But least my selfe be guilty to selfe wrong,
 Ile stop mine cares against the Mermaids song.

Enter Angelo with the Chaine. 170

Ang. M<sup>r</sup> Antipholus.

Anti. I that's my name.

Ang. I know it well sir, loe here's the chaine,
 I thought to have tane you at the Porpentine,
 The chaine unfinish'd made me stay thus long.

Anti. What is your will that I shal do with this?

Ang. What please your selfe sir: I have made it for
 you.

Anti. Made it for me sir, I bespoke it not.

Ang. Not once, nor twice, but twentie times you have: 181

Go home with it, and please your Wife withall,
 And soone at supper time Ile visit you,
 And then receive my money for the chaine.

Anti. I pray you sir receive the money now,
 For feare you ne're see chaine, nor mony more.

Ang. You are a merry man sir, fare you well. Exit.

Ant. What I should thinke of this, I cannot tell:
 But this I thinke, there's no man is so vaine,
 That would refuse so faire an offer'd Chaine. 190
 I see a man heere needs not live by shifts,
 When in the streets he meetes such Golden gifts:
 Ile to the Mart, and there for Dromio stay,
 If any ship put out, then straight away. Exit.

Actus Quartus. Scœna Prima.[Scene i. A public place.]Enter a Merchant, Goldsmith [Angelo], and an Officer.

Mer. You know since Pentecost the sum is due,
 And since I have not much importun'd you,
 Nor now I had not, but that I am bound
 To Persia, and want Gilders for my voyage:
 Therefore make present satisfaction,
 Or Ile attach you by this Officer.

Gold. [Ang.] Even just the sum that I do owe to you,
 Is growing to me by Antipholus, 10
 And in the instant that I met with you,
 He had of me a Chaine, at five a clocke
 I shall receive the money for the same:
 Pleaseth you walke with me downe to his house,
 I will discharge my bond, and thanke you too.

Enter Antipholus Ephes. Dromio from the Courtizans.

Off. That labour may you save: See where he comes.

Ant. While I go to the Goldsmiths house, go thou
 And buy a ropes end, that will I bestow
 Among my wife, and their confederates, 20
 For locking me out of my doores by day:
 But soft I see the Goldsmith; get thee gone,
 Buy thou a rope, and bring it home to me.

Dro. I buy a thousand pound a yeare, I buy a rope.

Exit Dromio

Eph. Ant. A man is well holpe up that trusts to you,
 I promised your presence, and the Chaine,

20. their: her-Rowe.

But neither Chaîne nor Goldsmith came to me:
 Belike you thought our love would last too long
 If it were chain'd together: and therefore came not. 30

Gold. Saving your merrie humor: here's the note
 How much your Chaîne weighs to the utmost charect,
 The finenesse of the Gold, and chargefull fashion,
 Which doth amount to three odde Duckets more
 Then I stand debted, to this Gentleman,
 I pray you see him presently discharg'd,
 For he is bound to Sea, and staves but for it.

Anti. I am not furnish'd with the present monie:
 Besides I have some businesse in the towne,
 Good Signior take the stranger to my house, 40
 And with you take the Chaîne, and bid my wife
 Disburse the summe, on the receit thereof,
 Perchance I will be there as soone as you.

Gold. Then you will bring the Chaîne to her your selfe.

Anti. No beare it with you, least I come not time enough.

Gold. Well sir, I will? Have you the Chaîne about you?

Ant. And if I have not sir, I hope you have: 50
 Or else you may returne without your money.

Gold. Nay come I pray you sir, give me the Chaîne:
 Both winde and tide staves for this Gentleman,
 And I too blame have held him heere too long.

Anti. Good Lord, you use this dalliance to excuse
 Your breach of promise to the Porpentine,
 I should have chid you for not bringing it,
 But like a shrew you first begin to brawle.

Mar. The houre steales on, I pray you sir dispatch.

Gold. You heare how he importunes me, the Chaine.

Ant. Why give it to my wife, and fetch your mony. 61

Gold. Come, come, you know I gave it you even now.
Either send the Chaine, or send me by some token.

Ant. Fie, now you run this humor out of breath,
Come where's the Chaine, I pray you let me see it.

Mar. My businesse cannot brooke this dalliance,
Good sir say, whe'r you'l answer me, or no:
If not, Ile leave him to the Officer.

Ant. I answer you? What should I answer you.

Gold. The monie that you owe me for the Chaine.

Ant. I owe you none, till I receive the Chaine. 71

Gold. You know I gave it you halfe an houre since.

Ant. You gave me none, you wrong mee much to say so.

Gold. You wrong me more sir in denying it.
Consider how it stands upon my credit.

Mar. Well Officer, arrest him at my suite.

Off. I do, and charge you in the Dukes name to obey me.

Gold. This touches me in reputation. 80
Either consent to pay this sum for me,
Or I attach you by this Officer.

Ant. Consent to pay thee that I never had:
Arrest me foolish fellow if thou dar'st.

Gold. Heere is thy fee, arrest him Officer.
I would not spare my brother in this case,
If he should scorne me so apparantly.

Offic. I do arrest you sir, you heare the suite.

Ant. I do obey thee, till I give thee baile. 90
But sirrah, you shall buy this sport as deere,
As all the mettall in your shop will answer.

Gold. Sir, sir, I shall have Law in Ephesus,
To your notorious shame, I doubt it not.

Enter Dromio Sira. from the Bay.

Dro. Master, there's a Barke of Epidamium,
That staies but till her Owner comes aboard,
And then sir she beares away. Our fraughtage sir,
I have convei'd aboard, and I have bought
The Oyle, the Balsamum, and Aqua-vitæ.
The ship is in her trim, the merrie winde 100
Blowes faire from land: they stay for nought at all,
But for their Owner, Master, and your selfe.

An. How now? a Madman? Why thou peevisish sheep
What ship of Epidamium staies for me.

S. Dro. A ship you sent me too, to hier wastage.

Ant. Thou drunken slave, I sent thee for a rope,
And told thee to what purpose, and what end.

S. Dro. You sent me for a ropes end as soone,
You sent me to the Bay sir, for a Barke.

Ant. I will debate this matter at more leisure 110
And teach your eares to list me with more heede:
To Adriana Villaine hie thee straight:
Give her this key, and tell her in the Deske
That's cover'd o're with 'Turkish' Tapistrie,
There is a purse of Duckets, let her send it:
Tell her, I am arrested in the streete,
And that shall baile me: hie thee slave, be gone,
On Officer to prison, till it come. Exeunt

S. Dromio. To Adriana, that is where we din'd,
Where Dowsabell did claime me for her husband, 120
She is too bigge I hope for me to compasse,
Thither I must, although against my wil:
For servants must their Masters mindes fulfill. Exit

[Scene ii. The house of Antipholus of Ephesus.]

Enter Adriana and Luciana.

Adr. Ah Luciana, did he tempt thee so?
 Might'st thou perceive austere in his eie,
 That he did plead in earnest, yea or no:
 Look'd he or red or pale, or sad or merrily?
 What observation mad'st thou in this case?
 Oh, his hearts Meteors tilting in his face.

Luc. First he deni'de you had in him no right.

Adr. He meant he did me none: the more my spight

Luc. Then swore he that he was a stranger heere. 10

Adr. And true he swore, though yet forsworne hee were.

Luc. Then pleaded I for you.

Adr. And what said he?

Luc. That love I begg'd for you, he begg'd of me.

Adr. With what perswasion did he tempt thy love?

Luc. With words, that in an honest suit might move.

First, he did praise my beautie, then my speech.

Adr. Did'st speake him faire?

Luc. Have patience I beseech. 20

Adr. I cannot, nor I will not hold me still,
 My tongue, though not my heart, shall have his will.
 He is deformed, crooked, old, and sere,
 Ill-fac'd, worse bodied, shapelesse every where:
 Vicious, ungentle, foolish, blunt, unkinde,
 Stigmaticall<sup>1</sup> in making worse in minde. <sup>1 deformed</sup>

Luc. Who would be jealous then of such a one?
 No evill lost is wail'd, when it is gone.

Adr. Ah but I thinke him better then I say:
 And yet would herein others eies were worse: 30

7. Ob: Of-2-4F.

Farre from her nest the Lapwing cries away;
My heart praies for him, though my tongue doc curse.

Enter S. Dromio.

Dro. Here goe: the deske, the purse, sweet now make haste.

Luc. How hast thou lost thy breath?

S. Dro. By runn'g fast.

Adr. Where is thy Master Dromio? Is he well?

S. Dro. No, he's in Tartar limbo, worse then hell:
A divell in an everlasting garment hath him; 40
On whose hard heart is button'd up with steele:

A Feind, a Fairie, pittillesse and ruffe:

A Wolfe, nay worse, a fellow all in buffe:

A back friend, a shoulder-clapper, one that countermands
The passages of allies, creekes, and narrow lands:

A hound that runs Counter, and yet draws drifoot well,
One that before the Judgment carries poore soules to hel.

Adr. Why man, what is the matter?

S. Dro. I doe not know the matter, hee is rested on the case.

Adr. What is he arrested? tell me at whose suite?

S. Dro. I know not at whose suite he is arested well; but is in a suite of buffe which rested him, that can I tell,
will you send him Mistris redemption, the monie in his deske.

Adr. Go fetch it Sister: this I wonder at.

Exit Luciana.

Thus he unknowne to me should be in debt:

Tell me, was he arested on a band?

41. On: One-2-4F.

42. Fairies fury-2POPE.

46. drifoot: dry-foot-Rowe.

52-3. 2 rhymed ll.-CAPPEL.

53. is in: he's in-3-4F. rested: 'rested-THEOBALD.

58. Thus: That-2-4F.

S. Dro. Not on a band, but on a stronger thing:
A chaine, a chaine, doe you not here it ring. 61

Adria. What, the chaine?

S. Dro. No, no, the bell, 'tis time that I were gone:
It was two ere I left him, and now the clocke strikes one.

Adr. The houres come backe, that did I never here.

S. Dro. Oh yes, if any houre meete a Serjeant, a turnes backe for verie feare.

Adri. As if time were in debt: how fondly do'st thou reason?

S. Dro. Time is a verie bankerout, and owes more then he's worth to season. 71

Nay, he's a theefe too: have you not heard men say,
That time comes stealing on by night and day?

If I be in debt and theft, and a Serjeant in the way,
Hath he not reason to turne backe an houre in a day?

Enter Luciana [with a purse].

Adr. Go Dromio, there's the monie, beare it straight,
And bring thy Master home immediately.

~~Some sister,~~ I am prest downe with conceit:
Conceit, my comfort and my injurie. Exit. 80

[Scene iii. A public place.]

Enter Antipholus Siracusia.

There's not a man I meete but doth salute me

As if I were their well acquainted friend,

And everie one doth call me by my name:

Some tender monie to me, some invite me;

Some other give me thanks for kindnesses;

Some offer me Commodities to buy.

65. here: hear-2-4F.

74. If I be: If Time be-Rowe.

Even now a tailor cal'd me in his shop,
 And show'd me Silkes that he had bought for me,
 And therewithall tooke measure of my body. 10
 Sure these are but imaginarie wiles,
 And lapland Sorcerers inhabite here.

Enter Dromio. Sir.

S. Dro. Master, here's the gold you sent me for: what have you got the picture of old Adam new apparel'd?

Ant. What gold is this? What Adam do'st thou meane?

S. Dro. Not that Adam that kept the Paradise: but that Adam that keepes the prison; hee that goes in the calves-skin, that was kil'd for the Prodigall: hee that came behinde you sir, like an evill angel, and bid you forsake your libertie. 22

Ant. I understand thee not.

S. Dro. No? why 'tis a plaine case: he that went like a Base-Viole in a case of leather; the man sir, that when gentlemen are tired gives them a sob, and rests them: he sir, that takes pittie on decaied men, and gives them suites of durance: he that sets up his rest to doe more exploits with his Mace, then a Moris Pike.

Ant. What thou mean'st an officer? 30

S. Dro. I sir, the Serjeant of the Band: he that brings any man to answer it that breakes his Band: one that thinkes a man alwaies going to bed, and saies, God give you good rest.

Ant. Well sir, there rest in your foolerie:
 Is there any ships puts forth to night? may we be gone?

S. Dro. Why sir, I brought you word an houre since, that the Barke Expedition put forth to night, and then

26. rests: 'rests-WARBURTON.

36. ships: ship-2-4F.

were you hindred by the Serjeant to tarry for the Hoy Delay: Here are the angels that you sent for to deliver you. 41

Ant. The fellow is distract, and so am I,
And here we wander in illusions:
Some blessed power deliver us from hence.

Enter a Curtizan.

Cur. Well met, well met, Master Antipholus:
I see sir you have found the Gold-smith now:
Is that the chaine you promis'd me to day.

Ant. Sathan avoide, I charge thee tempt me not.

S. Dro. Master, is this Mistris Sathan? 50

Ant. It is the divell.

S. Dro. Nay, she is worse, she is the divels dam:
And here she comes in the habit of a light wench, and thereof comes, that the wenches say God dam me, That's as much to say, God make me a light wench: It is written, they appeare to men like angels of light, light is an effect of fire, and ~~for~~ will burne: ergo, light wenches will burne, come not neere her.

Cur. Your man and you are marvailous merrie sir.
Will you goe with me, wee'll mend our dinner here? 60

S. Dro. Master, if do expect spoon-meate, or bespeake a long spoone.

Ant. Why Dromio?

S. Dro. Marrie he must nave a long spoone that must eate with the divell.

Ant. Avoid then fiend, what tel'st thou me of sup-ping? |

Thou art, as you are all a sorceresse:
I conjure thee to leave me, and be gon.

61. if do: if you do-2-4F.

Cur. Give me the ring of mine you had at dinner,
Or for my Diamond the Chaîne you promis'd, 70
And Ile be gone sir, and not trouble you.

S. Dro. Some divels aske but the parings of ones naile, a rush, a haire, a drop of blood, a pin, a nut, a cherrie-stone: but she more covetous, wold have a chaîne: Master be wise, and if you give it her, the divell will shake her Chaîne, and fright us with it.

Cur. I pray you sir my Ring, or else the Chaîne,
I hope you do not meane to cheate me so?

Ant. Avant thou witch: Come Dromio let us go.

S. Dro. Flie pride saics the Pea-cocke, Mistris that you know. Exit. 81

Cur. Now out of doubt Antipholus is mad,
Else wold he never so demeane himselfe,
A Ring he hath of mine worth fortie Duckets,
And for the same he promis'd me a Chaîne,
Both one and other he denies me now:
The reason that I gather he is mad,
Besides this present instance of his rage,
Is a mad tale he told to day at dinner, 73-6
Of his owne doores being shut against his entrance. 90
Belike his wife acquainted with his fits,
On purpose shut the doores against his way:
My way is now to hie home to his house,
And tell his wife, that being Lunaticke,
He rush'd into my house, and tooke perforce
My Ring away. This course I fittest choose,
For fortie Duckets is too much to loose.

73-6. new ll., ending pin, stone, chaîne, her, it—CAPELL. *

[Scene iv. A street.]

Enter Antipholus Ephes. with a Jailor.

An. Feare me not man, I will not breake away,
 Ile give thee ere I leave thee so much money
 To warrant thee as I am rested for.
 My wife is in a wayward moode to day,
 And will not lightly trust the Messenger,
 That I should be attach'd in Ephesus,
 I tell you 'twill sound harshly in her eares.

Enter Dromio Eph. with a ropes end.

Heere comes my Man, I thinke he brings the monie.
 How now sir? Have you that I sent you for? 11

E. Dro. Here's that I warrant you will pay them all.

Anti. But where's the Money?

E. Dro. Why sir, I gave the Monie for the Rope.

Ant. Five hundred Duckets villaine for a rope?

E. Dro. Ile serve you sir five hundred at the rate.

~~Ant. To what end did I bid thee hie thee home?~~

E. Dro. To a ropes end sir, and to that end am I return'd.

Ant. And to that end sir, I will welcome you. 20

[Beating him.]

Off. Good sir be patient.

E. Dro. Nay 'tis for me to be patient, I am in adversitie.

Off. Good now hold thy tongue.

E. Dro. Nay, rather perswade him to hold his hands.

Anti. Thou whoreson senselesse Villaine.

E. Dro. I would I were senselesse sir, that I might not feelee your blowes.

Anti. Thou art sensible in nothing but blowes, and so is an Asse. 30

E. Dro. I am an Asse indeede, you may proove it by my long eares. I have served him from the houre of my Nativitie to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service but blowes. When I am cold, he heates me with beating: when I am warme, he cooleth me with beating: I am wak'd with it when I sleepe, rais'd with it when I sit, driven out of doores with it when I goe from home, welcom'd home with it when I returne, nay I beare it on my shoulders, as a begger woont to beate his brat: and I thinke when he hath lam'd me, I shall begge with it from doore to doore. 41

Enter Adriana, Luciana, Courtizan, and a Schoole-master, call'd Pinch.

Ant. Come goe along, my wife is comming yonder.

E. Dro. Mistris respice finem, respect your end, or rather the prophesie like the Parrot, beware the ropes end.

Anti. Wilt thou still talke? ~~—~~ Dr.

Curt. How say you now? Is not your husband mad?

Adri. His incivility confirmes no lesse: 50
Good Doctor Pinch, you are a Conjuror,
Establish him in his true sence againe,
And I will please you what you will demand.

Luc. Alas how fiery, and how sharpe he lookes.

Cur. Marke, how he trembles in his extasie.

Pinch. Give me your hand, and let mee feele your pulse.

Ant. There is my hand, and let it feele your eares.

Pinch. I charge thee Sathan, hous'd within this man,
To yeeld possession to my holie prayers, 60

And to thy state of darknesse hie thee straight,
I conjure thee by all the Saints in heaven.

Anti. Peace doting wizard, peace; I am not mad.

Adr. Oh that thou wer't not, poore distressed soule.

Anti. You Minion you, are these your Customers?
Did this Companion with the saffron face
Revell and feast it at my house to day,
Whil'st upon me the guiltie doores were shut,
And I denied to enter in my house. 69

Adr. O husband, God doth know you din'd at home
Where would you had remain'd untill this time,
Free from these slanders, and this open shame.

Anti. Din'd at home? 'Thou Villaine, what sayest thou?

Dro. Sir sooth to say, you did not dine at home.

Ant. Were not my doores lockt up, and I shut out?

Dro. Perdie, your doores were lockt, and you shut out.

Anti. And did not she her selfe revile me there?

Dro. Sans Fable, she her selfe revil'd you there. 80

Anti. Did not her kitchin maide rail, taunt, and scorne me?

Dro. Certis she did, the kitchin vestall scorn'd you.

Ant. And did not I in rage depart from thence?

Dro. In yeritic you did, my bones beares witnesse,
That since have felt the vigor of his rage.

Adr. Is't good to sooth him in these contraries?

Pinch. It is no shame, the fellow finds his vaine,
And yeelding to him, humors well his frensie.

Ant. Thou hast subborn'd the Goldsmith to arrest mee. 91

Adr. Alas, I sent you Monie to redeeme you,
By Dromio heere, who came in hast for it.

85. beares: bear-2-4F.

87. contraries: contraries-2-4F.

Dro. Monie by me? Heart and good will you might,
But surely Master not a ragge of Monie.

Ant. Wentst not thou to her for a purse of Duckets.

Adri. He came to me, and I deliver'd it.

Luci. And I am wnesse with her that she did:

Dro. God and the Rope-maker beare me wnesse,
That I was sent for nothing but a rope. 100

Pinch. Mistris, both Man and Master is possest,
I know it by their pale and deadly lookes,
They must be bound and laide in some darke roome.

Ant. Say wherefore didst thou locke me fofth to day,
And why dost thou denie the bagge of gold?

Adr. I did not gentle husband locke thee forth.

Dro. And gentle M I receiv'd no gold:

But I confesse sir, that we were lock'd out.

Adr. Dissembling Villain, thou speak'st false in both

Ant. Dissembling harlot, thou art false in all, 110
And art confederate with a damned packe,
To make a loathsome abject scorne of me:
But with these nailes, Ile plucke out these false eyes,
That would behold in me this shamefull sport.

Enter three or foure, and offer to binde him:

Hee strives.

Adr. Oh binde him, binde him, let him not come neere me.

Pinch. More company, the fiend is strong within him

Luc. Aye me poore man, how pale and wan he looks.

Ant. What will you murther me, thou Jailor thou?
I am thy prisoner, wilt thou suffer them to make a rescue? 122

Off. Masters let him go: he is my prisoner, and you shall not have him.

122-4. new ll. at to and he-Porr.

Pinch. Go binde this man, for he is franticke too.

- [They offer to bind Dro. E.]

Adr. What wilt thou do, thou peevish Officer?
Hast thou delight to see a wretched man
Do outrage and displeasure to himselfe?

Off. He is my prisoner, if I let him go, 130
The debt he owes will be requir'd of me.

Adr. I will discharge thee ere I go from thee,
Beare me forthwith unto his Creditor,
And knowing how the debt growes I will pay it.
Good Master Doctor see him safe convey'd
Home to my house, oh most unhappy day.

Ant. Oh most unhappie strumpet.

Dro. Master, I am heere entred in bond for you.

Ant. Out on thee Villaine, wherefore dost thou mad
mee? 140

Dro. Will you be bound for nothing, be mad good
Master, cry the divell.

Luc. God helpe poore soules, how idly they talke.

Adr. Go beare him hence, sister go you with me:
Say now, whose suite is he arrested at?

Exeunt. Manet Offic. Adri. Luci. Courtizan

Off. One Angelo a Goldsmith, do you know him?

Adr. I know the man: what is the summe he owes?

Off. Two hundred Duckets. 150

Adr. Say, how growes it due.

Off. Due for a Chaine your husband had of him.

Adr. He did bespeake a Chain for me, but had it not.

Car. When as your husband all in rage to day
Came to my house, and tooke away my Ring,
The Ring I saw upon his finger now,
Straight after did I meete him with a Chaine.

Adr. It may be so, but I did never see it.

Come Jailor, bring me where the Goldsmith is,
I long to know the truth heereof at large. 160

Enter Antipholus Siracusia with his Rapier drawne, and Dromio Sirac.

Luc. God for thy mercy, they are loose againe.

Adr. And come with naked swords,
Let's call more helpe to have them bound againe.
Runne all out.

Off. Away, they'l kill us.

Exeunt omnes, as fast as may be, frighted.

S. Ant. I see these Witches are affraid of swords.

S. Dro. She that would be your wife, now ran from you, 171

Ant. Come to the Centaur, fetch our stuffe from thence:

I long that we were safe and sound aboard.

Dro. Faith stay heere this night, they will surely do us no harme: you saw they speake us faire, give us gold:
me thinkes they are such a gentle Nation, that but for the Mountaine of mad flesh that claimes marriage of me,
I could finde in my heart to stay heere still, and turne
Witch. 180

Ant. I will not stay to night for all the Towne, Therefore away, to get our stuffe aboard. • Exeunt

Actus Quintus. Scena Prima.

[A street before a Priory.]

Enter the Merchant and the Goldsmith.

Gold. I am sorry Sir that I have hindred you,
But I protest he had the Chaine of me,
Though most dishonestly he doth denie it.

OF ERRORS

[V. i. 4-32]

Mar. How is the man esteem'd heere in the Citie?

Gold. Of very reverent reputation sir,
Of credit infinite, highly belov'd,
Second to none that lives heere in the Citie:
His word might beare my wealth at any time. 10

Mar. Speake softly, yonder as I thinke he walkes.

Enter Antipholus and Dromio againe.

Gold. 'Tis so: and that selfe chaine about his necke,
Which he forswore most monstrously to have.
Good sir draw neere to me, Ile speake to him:
Signior Antipholus, I wonder much
That you would put me to this shame and trouble,
And not without some scandall to your selfe,
With circumstance and oaths, so to denie
This Chaine, which now you weare so openly. 20
Beside the charge, the shame, imprisonment,
You have done wrong to this my honest friend,
Who but for staying on our Controversie,
Had hoisted saile, and put to sea to day:
This Chaine you had of me, can you deny it?

Ant. I thinke I had, I never did deny it.

Mar. Yes that you did sir, and forswore it too.

Ant. Who heard me to denie it or forswear it?

Mar. These eares of mine thou knowst did hear thee:
Fie on thee wretch, 'tis pitty that thou liv'st 30
To walke where any honest men resort.

Ant. Thou art a Villaine to impeach me thus,
Ile prove mine honor, and mine honestie
Against thee presently, if thou dar'st stand:

Mar. I dare and do defie thee for a villaine.

They draw. Enter Adriana, Luciana, Courtezan, & others. |

Adr. Hold, hurt him not for God sake, he is mad,
Some get within him, take his sword away:

Binde Dromio too, and beare them to my house. 39

S. Dro. Runne master run, for Gods sake take a house,
This is some Priorie, in, or we are spoyl'd.

Exeunt to the Priorie.

Enter Ladie Abbesse.

Ab. Be quiet people, wherefore throng you hither?

Adr. To fetch my poore distracted husband hence,
Let us come in, that we may binde him fast,
And beare him home for his recoverie.

Gold. I knew he was not in his perfect wits.

Mar. I am sorry now that I did draw on him, 49

Ab. How long hath this possession held the man.

Adr. This weeke he hath beene heavie, sower sad,
And much different from the man he was:
But till this afternoone his passion
Ne're brake into extremity of rage.

Ab. Hath he not lost much wealth by wrack of sea,
Buried some deere friend, hath not else his eye
Stray'd his affection in unlawfull love,
A sinne prevailing much in youthfull men,
Who give their eies the liberty of gazing.
Which of these sorrowes is he subject too? 60

Adr. To none of these, except it be the last,
Namely, some love that drew him oft from home.

Ab. You should for that have reprehended him.

Adr. Why so I did.

Ab. I but not rough enough.

Adr. As roughly as my modestie would let me.

Ab. Haply in private.

Adr. And in assemblies too.

Ab. I, but not enough.

Adr. It was the copie of our Conference. 70

In bed he slept not for my urging it,

At boord he fed not for my urging it:

Alone, it was the subject of my Theame:

In company I often glanced it:

Still did I tell him, it was vilde and bad.

Ab. And thereof came it, that the man was mad.

The venonie clamors of a jealous woman,

Poisons more deadly then a mad dogges tooth.

It seemes his sleepes were hindred by thy railing,

And thereof comes it that his head is light. 80

Thou saist his meate was sawc'd with thy upbraidings,

Unquiet meales make ill digestions,

Thereof the raging fire of feaver bred,

And what's a Feaver, but a fit of madnesse?

Thou sayest his sports were hindred by thy bralles.

Sweet recreation barr'd, what doth ensue

But mōdie and dull melancholly,

Kinsman to grim and comfortlesse dispaire,

And at her heeles a huge infectious troope

Of pale distemperatures, and foes to life? 90

In food, in sport, and life-preserving rest

To be disturb'd, would mad or man, or beast:

The consequence is then, thy jealous fits

Hath scar'd thy husband from the use of wits.

Luc. She never reprehended him but mildly,

When he demean'd himselfe, rough, rude, and wildly,

Why beare you these rebukes, and answer not?

Adri. She did betray me to my owne reproofe,

Good people enter, and lay hold on him.

Ab. No, not a creature enters in my house. 100

Ad. Then let your servants bring my husband forth

Ab. Neither: he tooke this place for sanctuary,
And it shall priuledge him from your hands,
Till I have brought him to his wits againe,
Or loose my labour in assaying it.

Adr. I will attend my husband, be his nurse,
Diet his sicknesse, for it is my Office,
And will have no attorney but my selfe,
And therefore let me have him home with me.

Ab. Be patient, for I will not let him stirre, 110
Till I have us'd the approoued meanes I have,
With wholesome sirrups, drugges, and holy prayers
To make of him a formall man againe:
It is a branch and parcell of mine oath,
A charitable dutie of my order,
Therefore depart, and leaue him heere with me.

Adr. I will not hence, and leaue my husband heere:
And ill it doth besee me your holinesse
To separate the husband and the wife. 119

Ab. Be quiet and depart, thou shalt not haue him.

[Exit.]

Luc. Complaine unto the Duke of this indignity.

Adr. Come go, I will fall prostrate at his feete,
And never rise untill my teares and prayers
Have won his grace to come in person hither,
And take perforce my husband from the Abbesse.

Mar. By this I thinke the Diall points at five:
Anon I'me sure the Duke himselfe in person
Comes this way to the melancholly vale;
The place of depth, and sorrie execution,
Behinde the ditches of the Abbey heere. 130

129. depth: death-3-4F.

Gold. Upon what cause?

Mar. To see a reverent Siracusan Merchant,
Who put unluckily into this Bay
Against the Lawes and Statutes of this Towne,
Beheaded publikely for his offence.

Gold. See where they come, we wil behold his death

Luc. Kneele to the Duke before he passe the Abbey.

Enter the Duke of Ephesus, and the Merchant of Siracuse bare head, with the Headsman, & other Officers. 140

Duke. Yet once againe proclaime it publikely,
If any friend will pay the summe for him,
He shall not die, so much we tender him.

Adr. Justice most sacred Duke against the Abbesse.

Duke. She is a vertuous and a reverend Lady,
It cannot be that she hath done thee wrong.

Adr. May it please your Grace, Antipholus my husband, |

Who I made Lord of me, and all I had,
At your important Letters this ill day,
A most outrageous fit of madnesse tooke him: 150
That desp'rately he hurried through the streete,
With him his bondman, all as mad as he,
Doing displeasure to the Citizens,
By rushing in their houses: bearing thence Rings, Jewels, any thing his rage did like.
Once did I get him bound, and sent him home,
Whil'st to take order for the wrongs I went,
That heere and there his furie had committed,
Ano. I wot not, by what strong escape
He broke from those that had the guard of him, 160

132. reverent: reverend-3-4F.

148. Who: Whom-2-4F.

And with his mad attendant and himselfe,
 Each one with irefull passion, with drawne swords
 Met us againe, and madly bent on us
 Chac'd us away: till raising of more aide
 We came againe to binde them: then they fled
 Into this Abbey, whether we pursu'd them,
 And heere the Abbessc shuts the gates on us,
 And will not suffer us to fetch him out,
 Nor send him forth, that we may beare him hence.
 Therefore most gracious Duke with thy command, 170
 Let him be brought forth, and borne hence for helpe.

Duke. Long since thy husband serv'd me in my wars
 And I to thee ingag'd a Princes word,
 When thou didst make him Master of thy bed,
 To do him all the grace and good I could.
 Go some of you, knocke at the Abbey gate;
 And bid the Lady Abbessc come to me:
 I will determine this before I stirre.

Enter a Messenger.

Oh Mistris, Mistris, shift and save your selfe, 180
 My Master and his man are both broke loose,
 Beaten the Maids a-row, and bound the Doctor,
 Whose beard they have sindg'd off with brands of fire,
 And ever as it blaz'd, they threw on him
 Great pailles of puddled myrè to quench the haire;
 My M<sup>r</sup> preaches patience to him, and the while
 His man with Cizers nicks him like a foole:
 And sure (unlesse you send some present helpe)
 Betweene them they will kill the Conjuror.

Adr. Peace foole, thy Master and his man are here,
 And that is false thou dost report to us. 191

Mess. Mistris, upon my life I tel you true,

I have not breath'd almost since I did see it.
 He cries for you, and yowes if he can take you,
 To scorch your face, and to disfigure you:

Cry within.

Harke, harke, I heare him Mistris: flie, be gone.

Duke. Come stand by me, feare nothing: guard with Halberds.

Adr. Ay me, it is, my husband: wnesse you, 200
 That he is borne about invisible,
 Even now we hous'd him in the Abbey heere.
 And now he's there, past thought of humane reason.

Enter Antipholus, and E. Dromio of Ephesus.

E. Ant. Justice most gracious Duke, oh grant me justice, |

Even for the service that long since I did thee,
 When I bestrid thee in the warres, and tooke
 Deepe scarres to save thy life; even for the blood
 That then I lost for thee, now grant me justice.

Mar. Fat. Unlesse the feare of death doth make me dote, I see my sonne Antipholus and Dromio. 211

E. Ant. Justice (sweet Prince) against that Woman
 there: |

She whom thou gav'st to me to be my wife;
 That hath abused and dishonored me,
 Even in the strength and height of injurie:
 Beyond imagination is the wrong
 That she this day hath shamelesse throwne on me.

Duke. Discover how, and thou shalt finde me just.

E. Ant. This day (great Duke) she shut the doores upon me, 220
 While she with Harlots feasted in my house.

Duke. A greevous fault: say woman, didst thou so?

Adr. No my good Lord. My selfe, he, and my sister,
To day did dine together: so befall my soule,
As this is false he burthens me withall.

Luc. Nere may I looke on day, nor sleepe on night,
But she tels to your Highnesse simple truth.

Gold. O perjur'd woman! They are both forsworne,
In this the Madman justly chargeth them.

E. Ant. My Liège, I am advised what I say, 230
Neither disturbed with the effect of Wine,
Nor headie-rash provoak'd with raging ire,
Albeit my wrongs might make one wiser mad.
This woman lock'd me out this day from dinner;
That Goldsmith there, were he not pack'd with her,
Could wnesse it: for he was with me then,
Who parted with me to go fetch a Chaîne,
Promising to bring it to the Porpentine,
Where Balthasar and I did dine together.
Our dinner done, and he not comming thither, 240
I went to seeke him. In the street I met him,
And in his companie that Gentleman.
There did this perjur'd Goldsmith sweare me downe
That I this day of him receiv'd the Chaîne,
Which God he knowes, I saw not. For the which,
He did arrest me with an Officer.
I did obey, and sent my Pesant home
For certaine Duckets: he with none return'd.
Then fairly I bespoke the Officer
To go in person with me to my house. 250
By'th'way, we met my wife, her sister, and a rabble more
Of vilde Confederates: Along with them
They brought one Pinch, a hungry leane-fac'd Villaine;
A meere Anatomie, a Mountebanke,

A thred-bare Jugler, and a Fortune-teller,
 A needy-hollow-ey'd-sharpe-looking-wretch;
 A living dead man. This pernicious slave,
 Forsooth tooke on him as a Conjurer:
 And gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulse,
 And with no-face (as 'twere) out-facing me, 260
 Cries out, I was possest. Then altogether
 They fell upon me, bound me, bore me thence,
 And in a darke and dankish vault at home
 There left me and my man, both bound together,
 Till gnawing with my teeth my bonds in sunder,
 I gain'd my freedom; and immediately
 Ran hether to your Grace, whom I beseech
 To give me ample satisfaction
 For these deepe shames, and great indignities.

Gold. My Lord, in truth, thus far I witnes with him:
 That he din'd not at home, but was lock'd out. 271

Duke. But had he such a Chaîne of thee, or no?

Gold. He had my Lord, and when he ran in heere,
 These people saw the Chaîne about his necke.

Mar. Besides, I will be sworne these eares of mine,
 Heard you confesse you had the Chaîne of him,
 After you first forswore it on the Mart,
 And thereupon I drew my sword on you:
 And then you fled into this Abbey heere,
 From whence I thinke you are come by Miracle. 280

E. Ant. I never came within these Abbey wals,
 Nor ever didst thou draw thy sword on me:
 I never saw the Chaîne, so helpe me heaven:
 And this is false you burthen me withall.

Duke. Why what an intricate impeach is this?
 I thinke you all have drunke of Circes cup:
 If heere you hous'd him, heere he would have bin.
 If he were mad, he would not pleade so coldly:

You say he din'd at home, the Goldsmith heere
Denies that saying. Sirra, what say you? 290

E. Dro. Sir he din'de with her there, at the Porpen tine.

Cur. He did, and from my finger snatcht that Ring.

E. Anti. Tis true (my Liege) this Ring I had of her.

Duke. Saw'st thou him enter at the Abbey heere?

Curt. As sure (my Liege) as I do see your Grace.

Duke. Why this is straunge: Go call the Abbesse hither.

I thinke you are all mated, or starke mad.

Exit one to the Abbesse. 300

Fa. [Æge.] Most mighty Duke, vouchsafe me speak
a word: |

Haply I see a friend will save my life,
And pay the sum that may deliver me.

Duke. Speake freely Siracusan what thou wilt.

Fath. Is not your name sir call'd Antipholus?
And is not that your bondman Dromio?

E. Dro. Within this houre I was his bondman sir,
But he I thanke him gnaw'd in two my cords,
Now am I Dromio, and his man, unbound.

Fath. I am sure you both of you remember me. 310

Dro. Our selves we do remember sir by you:
For lately we were bound as you are now.
You are not Pinches patient, are you sir?

Father. Why looke you strange on me? you know me well.

E. Ant. I never saw you in my life till now.

Fa. Oh! grieve hath chang'd me since you saw me last,
And carefull houres with times deformed hand,
Have written strange defeatures in my face:
But tell me yet, dost thou not know my voice? 320

Ant. Neither.

Fat. Dromio, nor thou?

Dro. No trust me sir, nor I.

Fa. I am sure thou' dost?

E. Dromio. I sir, but I am sure I do not, and whatsoever a man denies, you are now bound to beleeeve him.

Fatb. Not know my voice, oh times e tremity
Hast thou so crack'd and splitted my poore tongue
In seven short yeares, that heere my onely sonne
Knowes not my feeble key of untun'd cares? 330
Though now this grained face of mine be hid
In sap-consuming Winters drizled snow,
And all the Conduits of my blood froze up:
Yet hath my night of life some memorie:
My wasting lampes some fading glimmer left;
My dull deafe cares a little use to heare:
All these old witnesses, I cannot erre.
T'ell me, thou art my sonne Antipholus.

Ant. I never saw my Father in my life.

Fa. But seven yeares since, in Siracusa boy 340
Thou know'st we parted, but perhaps my sonne,
Thou sham'st to acknowledge me in miserie.

Ant. The Duke, and all that know me in the City,
Can witness with me that it is not so.
I ne're saw Siracusa in my life.

Duke. I tell thee Siracusan, twentie yeares
Have I bin Patron to Antipholus,
During which time, he ne're saw Siracusa:
I see thy age and dangers make thee dote.

Enter the Abbess with Antipholus Siracusa, 350 and Dromio Sir.

Abbess. Most mightie Duke, behold a man much wrong'd.

327. e tremity: extremity-2-4F.

All gather to see them.

Adr. I see two husbands, or mine eyes deceive me.

Duke. One of these men is genius to the other:
And so of these, which is the naturall man,
And which the spirit? Who deciphers them?

S. Dromio. I Sir am Dromio, command him away.

E. Dro. I Sir am Dromio, pray let me stay. 360

S. Ant. Egeon art thou not? or else his ghost.

S. Drom. Oh my olde Master, who hath bound him heere?

Abb. Who ever bound him, I will lose his bonds,
And gaine a husband by his libertie:
Speake olde Egeon, if thou bee'st the man
That hadst a wife once call'd Æmilia,
That bore thee at a burthen two faire sonnes?
Oh if thou bee'st the same Egeon, speake:
And speake unto the same Æmilia. 370

Duke. Why heere begins his Morning storie right:
These two Antipholus, these two so like,
And these two Dromio's, one in semblance:
Besides her urging of her wracke at sea,
These are the parents to these children,
Which accidentally are met together.

Fa. If I dreame not, thou art Æmilia,
If thou art she, tell me, where is that sonne
That floated with thee on the fatall raffe.

Abb. By men of Epidamium, he, and I, 380
And the twin Dromio, all were taken up;
But by and by, rude Fishermen of Corinth
By force tooke Dromio, and my sonne from them,
And me they left with those of Epidamium.

What then became of them, I cannot tell:

I, to this fortune that you see mee in.

Duke. Antipholus thou cam'st from Corinth first.

S. Ant. No sir, not I, I came from Siracuse.

Duke. Stay, stand apart, I know not which is which.

E. Ant. I came from Corinth my most gracious Lord

E. Dro. And I with him. 391

E. Ant. Brought to this Town by that most famous Warriour,

Duke Menaphon, your most renowned Uncle.

Adr. Which of you two did dine with me to day?

S. Ant. I, gentle Mistris.

Adr. And are not you my husband?

E. Ant. No, I say nay to that.

S. Ant. And so do I, yet did she call me so:

And this faire Gentlewoman her sister heere 400

Did call me brother. What I told you then,

I hope I shall have leisure to make good,

If this be not a dreame I see and heere.

Goldsmith. That is the Chaine sir, which you had of mee.

S. Ant. I thinke it be sir, I denie it not.

E. Ant. And you sir for this Chaine arrested me.

Gold. I thinke I did sir, I deny it not.

Adr. I sent you monie sir to be your baile

By Dromio, but I thinke he brought it not. 410

E. Dro. No, none by me.

S. Ant. This purse of Duckets I receiv'd from you,
And Dromio my man did bring them me:

I see we still did meete each others man,

And I was tane for him, and he for me,

And thereupon these errors are arose.

E. Ant. These Duckets pawne I for my father heere.

Duke. It shall not neede, thy father hath his life.

Cur. Sir I must have that Diamond from you.

E. Ant. There take it, and much thanks for my good cheere. 421

Abb. Renowned Duke, vouchsafe to take the paines
To go with us into the Abbey heere,
And heere at large discoursed all our fortunes,
And all that are assembled in this place:
That by this simpathized one daies error
Have suffer'd wrong. Goe, keepe us companie,
And we shall make full satisfaction.
Thirtie three yeares have I but gone in travail:
Of you my sonnes, and till this present houre 430
My heavic burthen are delivered:
The Duke my husband, and my children both,
And you the Kalenders of their Nativity,
Go to a Gossips feast, and go with mee,
After so long greefe such Nativitie.

Duke. With all my heart, Ile Gossip at this feast.

Exeunt omnes. Manet the two Dromio's and two Brothers.

S. Dro. Mast. shall I fetch your stuffe from shipbord?

E. An. Dromio, what stuffe of mine hast thou imbarkt

S. Dro. Your goods that lay at host sir in the Centaur.

S. Ant. He speakes to me, I am your master Dromio.

Come go with us, wee'l looke to that anon, 443
Embrace thy brother there, rejoyce with him. Exit

S. Dro. There is a fat friend at your masters house,
That kitchin'd me for you to day at dinner:
She now shall be my sister, not my wife,

E. D. Me thinks you are my glasse, & not my brother:

OF ERRORS

[V. i. 417-425]

I see by you, I am a sweet-fac'd youth,
Will you walke in to see their gossipping? 450

S. Dro. Not I sir, you are my elder.

E. Dro. That's a question, how shall we trie it.

S. Dro. Wee'l draw Cuts for the Signior, till then, lead thod first.

E. Dro. Nay then thus:

We came into the world like brother and brother:
And now let's go hand in hand, not one before another.
Exeunt.

MUCH ADOE ABOUT NOTHING

First printed in Quarto, 1600

The First Folio, 1623, follows the Quarto with minor changes

INTRODUCTION

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

MUCH ADOE ABOUT NOTHING is the ironical title of a dual romance, where, in the case of one pair of lovers, they are parted by their own obstinacy, and in the other by carefully contrived villainy.

Benedick and Claudio, two young soldier-noblemen, accompany their general, Don Pedro of Arragon, on a visit to Leonato, governor of Messina. Benedick renews acquaintance with Beatrice, niece of Leonato, and though there is an unconfessed liking between them, they have many verbal battles. Claudio loves Hero, daughter of the governor, and enlists Don Pedro to sue for him.

Don Pedro wins Hero for Claudio in Act II, at a masquerade. Benedick is worsted in his skirmishes with Beatrice, but is led to believe by interested friends that she loves him.

In Act III Beatrice is likewise made to think that Benedick loves her. The happiness of Hero and Claudio is nearly wrecked, meanwhile, by the villainy of a natural brother of Don Pedro, who entraps Claudio into the belief that Hero is false to him.

Claudio disowns Hero (Act IV) at the time of the wedding ceremony. She swoons, and is reported dead. Beatrice will not believe her cousin faithless, but demands that Benedick—now her accepted lover —challenge his friend Claudio, which he does in Act V. Some watchmen who have stumbled upon the true facts tell them to the stricken Leonato. The duel is averted, and Leonato promises to pardon Claudio if the latter will marry a bride of the governor's choosing. Claudio agrees and is delighted to find that the bride is Hero, returned as it were from the dead. 'Benedick and Beatrice finally discover the trick which has brought them together, but seal a peace-compact in true lover fashion.

SOURCES

Shakespeare was evidently indebted to an Italian author, Bandello, for some of the characters, the scene, and a leading incident of this play. In Bandello's Twenty-second Novella is found a Don Pedro of Arragon and a Lionato; the scene is Messina; and the lady is-maligned by entrance into her window by a servant, she swoons, is thought dead, and is afterward restored to her repentant lover. Bandello died three years before Shakespeare was born, and his story was known in England not only in the original, but also in Belleforest's translation in 'Histoires Tragiques.'

The scene of the interrupted marriage also occurs in the story of Ariodante and Ginevra, in Ariosto's 'Orlando Furioso,' likewise in Spenser's 'Faerie Queene,' Book II, Canto 4. But in neither of these sources is there an agreement of names, places, and circumstances, as narrated in Bandello's story.

Nevertheless Shakespeare's indebtedness to the Italian is limited to the bare facts set forth above. The characters of Beatrice, Benedick, Don John, the servants, and the watchmen are all Shakespeare's own, as well as the clothing and setting forth of the entire play.

INTRODUCTION

A degree of similarity has been noted between the English play and a German version, 'The Beautiful Phœnicia,' by a contemporary playwright, Jacob Ayrrer. Ayrrer follows Bandello more closely in names, and probably founded his version on the Italian without reference to Shakespeare.

DURATION OF THE ACTION

In Act I, scene i, Don Pedro says that he will visit Messina 'at the least a month'; and in Act II, scene i, Leonato states that it is 'a just seven-night' until the wedding. But neither of these statements furnishes any definite time reckoning for the play, and ignoring them we could bring the action within four consecutive days: Day 1, Act I, and Act II, scenes i and ii. Day 2, Act II, scene iii, and Act III, scenes i, ii, and iii. Day 3, Act III, scenes iv and v, Act IV, Act V, scenes i, ii, and part of iii. Day 4, the remainder of the play.

The period is not determinable, on account of the composite nature of the story — an Italian plot transformed into a comedy of contemporary English manners. Treated solely as an English play, Shakespeare's own time seems to be indicated.

DATE OF COMPOSITION

Meyer's list in 'Palladis Tamia,' of 1598, does not mention 'Much Adoe,' so it may safely be assumed that the play was not known in that year. It was first printed in Quarto form in 1600; therefore that year or 1599 may be set down with considerable exactness as the date of its production.

Internal evidence is wanting, although general style and structure place it toward the last of the comedies. A mature touch and a skilful blending of tragedy with

Much Adoe E

MUCH ADOE ABOUT NOTHING

comedy mark a transition in the poet's method. The play has traits in common with 'Twelfth Night' and 'As You Like It,' while metrical tests place it at the last of this group and at the turning-point of the century.

EARLY EDITIONS

The first printing of 'Much Adoe' was a Quarto of thirty-six leaves, which bore the following title:

'Much adoe about Nothing. As it hath been sundrie times publikely acted by the right honourable, the Lord Chamberlaine his servants. Written by William Shakespeare. London. Printed by V. S. for Andrew Wise, and William Aspley. 1600.'

It was entered in the 'Stationers' Register,' August 23, 1600.

The next known printing is that of the First Folio, 1623, where it occupies twenty-one pages, from page 101 to page 121, in the comedies. It gives the acts, but not the scenes or the Dramatis Personæ, which were supplied by Rowe. The Folio text follows the Quarto with some minor variations. Both are comparatively good, the errors being chiefly typographical. So nearly identical are the versions that succeeding editors have been divided in their allegiance. The Folio, however, being the first authoritative collected edition, seems the more reliable.

• [Before Leonato's house.]

Leonato.

I LEARNE in this Letter, that Don Peter of Arragon, comes this night to Messina.

Mess. He is very neere by this: he was not three Leagues off when I left him.

Leon. How many Gentlemen have you lost in this action? 10

Mess. But few of any sort, and none of name.

Leon. A victorie is twice it selfe, when the atchiever brings home full numbers: I finde heere, that Don Peter hath bestowed much honor on a yong Florentine, called Claudio.

Mess. Much deserv'd on his part, and equally remembered by Don Pedro, he hath borne himselfe beyond the

Leo. He hath an Unckle heere in Messina, wil be very much glad of it.

Mess. I have alreadie delivered him letters, and there appeares much joy in him, even so much, that joy could not shew it selfe modest enough, without a badg of bitterness.

Leo. Did he breake out into teares?

Mess. In great measure.

Leo. A kinde overflow of kindnesse, there are no faces truer, then those that are so wash'd, how much better is it to weepe at joy, then to joy at weeping? 31

Bea. I pray you, is Signior Mountanto return'd from the warres, or no?

Mess. I know none of that name, Lady, there was none such in the armie of any sort.

Leon. What is he that you aske for Neece?

Hero. My cousin meanes Signior Benedick of Padua

Mess. O he's return'd, and as pleasant as ever he was.

Beat. He set up his hils here in Messina, & challeng'd Cupid at the Flight: <sup>1</sup> and my Unckles foole reading the Challenge, subscrib'd for Cupid, and challeng'd him at the Burbolt.<sup>2</sup> I pray you, how many hath hee kil'd and eaten in these warres? But how many hath he kil'd? for indeed, I promis'd to cate all of his killing. 44

Mess. And a good souldier too Lady.

Beat. And a good souldier to a Lady. But what is he to a Lord?

Mess. A Lord to a Lord, a man to a man, stuf with all honourable vertues.

Beat. It is so indeed, he is no lesse then a stuf man: but for the stuffing well, we are all mortall.

Leon. You must not (sir) mistake my Neece, there is a kind of merry war betwixt Signior Benedick, & her: they never meet, but there's a skirmish of wit between them. 61

Bea. Alas, he gets nothing by that. In our last conflict, foure of his sive wits went halting off, and now is the whole man govern'd with one: so that if hee have wit enough to keepe himselfe warme, let him beare it for a difference betweene himselfe and his horse: For it is all the wealth that he hath left, to be knowne a reasonable creature. Who is his companion now? He hath every month a new sworne brother.

Beat. Very easily possible: he weares his faith but as the fashion of his hat, it ever changes with the next block.

Mess. I see (Lady) the Gentleman is not in your bookes.

Pedro. You embrace your charge too willingly: I thinke this is your daughter. 101

Leonato. Her mother hath many times told me so.

Bened. Were you in doubt that you askt her?

Leonato. Signior Benedicke, no, for then were you a childe.

Pedr. That she is worthie, I know.

Bened. That I neither feele how shee should be loved, nor know how shee should be worthie, is the opinion that fire cannot melt out of me, I will die in it at the stake.

Pedr. Thou wast ever an obstinate heretique in the despite of Beautie.

Clau. And never could maintaine his part, but in the force of his will. 230

Beat. I am sure you know him well enough.

Bene. Not I, beleeve me.

Beat. Did he never make you laugh?

Troth my Lord, I have played the part of Lady Fame, I found him heere as melancholy as a Lodge in a Warren, I told him, and I thinke, told him true, that your grace had got the will of this young Lady, and I offered him my company to a willow tree, either to make him a garland, as being forsaken, or to binde him a rod, as being worthy to be whipt. 211

Ben. Yet it had not beene amisse the rod had beene made, and the garland too, for the garland he might have worne himselfe, and the rod hee might have bestowed on you, who (as I take it) have stolne his birds nest. 221

Pedro. I will but teach them to sing, and restore them to the owner.

Bene. If their singing answer your saying, by my faith you say honestly.

Pedro. The Lady Beatrice hath a quarrell to you, the Gentleman that daunst with her, told her shee is much wrong'd by you. 228

Bene. O she misusde me past the indurance of a block: an oake but with one greene leafe on it, would have answered her: my very visor began to assume life, and scold with her: shee told mee, not thinking I had beene my selfe, that I was the Princes Jester, and that I was duller then a great thaw, hudling jest upon jest, with such impossible conveiance upon me, that I stood like a man at a marke, with a whole army shooting at me: shee speakes poynyards, and every word stabbes: if her breath were as terrible as terminations, there were no living neere her, she would infect to the north starre: I would not marry her, though she were indowed with all that Adam had left him before he transgreest, she would have made Hercules have turnd spit, yea, and have cleft his club to make the fire too: come, talke not of her, you shall finde her the infernall Ate in good apparell. some scholler would conjure her, for certainly while she is heere, a man may live as quiet in hell, as in a sanctuary, and people sinne upon purpose, because they would goe thither, so indeed all disquiet, horror, and perturbation followes her.

249

Enter Claudio and Beatrice, Leonato, Hero.

Pedro. Looke heere she comes.

Bene. Will your Grace command mee any service to the worlds end? I will goe on the slightest errand now to the Antypodes that you can devise to send me on: I will fetch you a tooth-picker now from the furthest inch of Asia: bring you the length of Prester Johns foot: fetch you a hayre off the great Chams beard: doe you any embassage to the Pigmies, rather then hould three words conference, with this Harpy: you have no employment for me?

292. Herault: herald-4F.

301, my heart: her heart-Q.

Beat. I would rather have one of your fathers getting: hath your Grace ne're a brother like you? your father got excellent husbands, if a maid could come by them.

Prince. [Pedro] Will you have me? Lady. 310

Beat. No, my Lord, unlesse I might have another for working-daies, your Grace is too costly to weare everie day: but I beseech your Grace pardon mee, I was borne to speake all mirth, and no matter.

Prince. Your silence most offends me, and to be merry, best becomes you, for out of question, you were born in a merry lowre.

Beatr. No sure my Lord, my Mother cried, but then there was a starre daunst, and under that was I borne: cosins God give you joy. 320

Leonato. Neece, will you looke to those rhings I told you of?

Beat. Cry you mercy Uncle, by your Graces pardon.
Exit Beatrice.

Prince. By my troth a pleasant spirited Lady.

Leon. There's little of the melancholy element in her my Lord, she is never sad, but when she sleepes, and not ever sad then: for I have heard my daughter say, she hath often dreamt of unhappinesse, and wakt her selfe with laughing. 330

Pedro. Shee cannot indure to heare tell of a husband.

Leonato. O, by no meanes, she mocks all her wooers out of suite.

Prince. She were an excellent wife for Benedick.

Leonato. O Lord, my Lord, if they were but a weeke married, they would talke themselves madde.

Prince. Counte Claudio, when meane you to goe to Church?

321. rhings: things—Q.2-4F.

329. dreamt: dreamed (dream'd)—Rowe. 337. Counte: Count—Q.

Cla. To morrow my Lord, Time goes on crutches, till Love have all his rites. 340

Leonata. Not till monday, \ny deare sonne, which is hence a just seven night, and a time too bricfe too, to have all things answer minde.

Prince. Come, you shake the head at so long a breathing, but I warrant thee Claudio, the time shall not goe dully by us, I will in the interim, undertake one of Her- cules labors, which is, to bring Signior Benedicke and the Lady Beatrice into a mountaine of affection, th'one with th'other, I would faine have it a match, and I doubt not but to fashion it, if you three will but minister such assistance as I shall give you direction. 351

Leonata. My Lord, I am for you, though it cost mee ten nights watchings.

Claud. And I my Lord.

Prin. And you to gentle Hero?

Hero. I will doe any modest office, my Lord, to helpe my cosin to a good husband. 357

Prin. And Benedick is not the unhopèfullest husband that I know: thus farre can I praise him, hee is of a noble straine, of approved valour, and confirm'd honesty, I will teach you how to humour your cosin, that shee shall fall in love with Benedicke, and I, with your two helps, will so practise on Benedicke, that in despite of his "quickè" wit, and his queasie stomacke, hee shall fall in love with Beatrice: if wee can doe this, Cupid is no longer an As- cher, his glory shall be ours, for wee are the onely love-gods, goe in with me, and I will tell you my drift. Exit.

341, 352. Leonata: misprint in rF.

343. answer minde: answer my mind-Q.

[Scene ii. The same.]

Enter John and Borachio.

Job. It is so, the Count Claudio shall marry the daughter of Leonato.

Bora. Yea my Lord, but I can crosse it.

John. Any barre, any crosse, any impediment, will be medicinalle to me, I am sicke in displeasure to him, and whatsoever comes athwart his affection, ranges evenly with mine, how canst thou crosse this marriage?

Bor. Not honestly my Lord, but so covertly, that no dishonesty shall appeare in me. 10

John. Shew me breefely how.

Bor. I thinke I told your Lordship a yeere since, how much I was in the favour of Margaret, the waiting gentlewoman to Hero.

John. I remember.

Bor. I can at any unseasonable instant of the night, appoint her to look out at her Ladies chamber window.

John. What life is in that, to be the death of this marriage? 19

Bor. The poyson of that lies in you to temper, goe you to the Prince your brother, spare not to tell him, that hee hath wronged his Honor in marrying the renowned Claudio, whose estimation do you mightily hold up, to a contaminated stale,<sup>1</sup> such a one as Hero. <sup>1</sup> barlot

John. What prooffe shall I make of that?

Bor. Prooffe enough, to misuse the Prince, to vex Claudio, to undoe Hero, and kill Leonato, looke you for any other issue?

John. Onely to despight them, I will endeavour any thing. 30

Bor. Goe then, finde me a meete howre, to draw on Pedro and the Count Claudio alone, tell them that you know that Hero loves me, intend<sup>1</sup> a kinde of zeale both to the Prince and Claudio (as in a love of your brothers honor who hath made this match) and his friends reputation, who is thus like to be cosen'd with the semblance of a maid, that you have discover'd thus: they will scarcely beleieve this without triall: offer them instances which shall beare no lesse likelihood, than to see mee at her chamber window, heare me call 'Margaret, Hero; heare Margaret terme me Claudio, and bring them to see this the very night before the intended wedding, for in the meane time, I will so fashion the matter, that Hero shall be absent, and there shall appeare such seeming truths of Hero's disloyaltie, that jealousie shall be cal'd assurance, and all the preparation overthrowne. <sup>1 pretend</sup>

John. Grow this to what adverse issue it can, I will put it in practise: be cunning in the working this, and thy fee is a thousand ducates.

Bor. Be thou constant in the accusation, and my cunning shall not shame me. 51

John. I will presentlie goe learne their day of marriage. Exit.

[Scene iii. Leonato's orchard.]

Enter Benedicke alone.

Bene. Boy. [Enter Boy.]

Boy. Signior.

Bene. In my chamber window lies a booke, bring it hither to me in the orchard.

Boy. I am heere already sir. Exit. 6

Bene. I know that, but I would have thee hence, and heere againe. I doe much wonder, that one man seeing 44. truths: truth-Q.

50. thou: you-Q.

how much another man is a foole, when he dedicates his behaviours to love, will after hee hath laught at such shallow follies in others, become the argument <sup>1</sup> of his owne scorne, by falling in love, & such a man is Claudio, I have known when there was no musicke with him but the drums and the fife, and now had hee rather heare the taber and the pipe: I have knowne when he would have walkt ten mile afoot, to see a good armor, and now will he lie ten nights awake carving the fashion of a new dublet: he was wont to speake plaine, & to the purpose (like an honest man & a souldier) and now is he turn'd orthography, his words are a very fantasticall banquet, just so many strange dishes: may I be so converted, & see with these eyes? I cannot tell, I thinke not: I will not bee sworne, but love may transforme me to an oyster, but Ile take my oath on it, till he have made an oyster of me, he shall never make me such a foole: one woman is faire, yet I am well: another is wise, yet I am well: another vertuous, yet I am well: but till all graces be in one woman, one woman shall not come in my grace: rich shee shall be, that's certaine: wise, or Ile none: vertuous, or Ile never cheapen her: faire, or Ile never looke on her: milde, or come not neere me: Noble, or not for an Angell: of good discourse: an excellent Musitian, and her haire shall be' of what colour it please God, hah! the Prince and Monsieur Love, I will hide me in the Arbor. 34

<sup>1</sup> subject [Withdraws.]

Enter Prince [Don Pedro], Leonato, Claudio, and Jacke Wilson. |

Prin. [D. Pedro] Come, shall we heare this musicke?

Claud. Yea my good Lord: how still the evening is,
As hush't on purpose to grace harmonie.

31. not for: not I for-Q.

35. Jacke Wilson: out-Q.

Prin. See you where Benedicke hath hid himselfe?

Clau. O very well my Lord: the musicke ended, 40
Wee'll fit the kid-foxe with a peayny worth.

[Enter Baltbasar with Music.]

Prince. Come Baltbasar, wee'll heare that song again.

Baltb. O good my Lord, taxe not so bad a voyce,
To slander musicke any more then once.

Prin. It is the witenesse still of excellency,
To slander Musicke any more then once.

Prince. It is the witenesse still of excellencie,
To put a strange face on his owne perfection,
I pray thee sing, and let me woe no more.

Baltb. Because you talke of wooing, I will sing, 50
Since many a wooer doth commence his suit,
To her he thinkes not worthy, yet he wooes,
Yet will he sweare he loves.

Prince. Nay pray thee come,
Or if thou wilt hold longer argument,
Doe it in notes.

Baltb. Note this before my notes,
Theres not a note of mine that's worth the noting.

Prince. Why these are very crotchets that he speaks,
Note notes forsooth, and nothing. [Air.] 60

Bene. Now divine aire, now is his soule ravisht, is it not strange that sheepes guts should hale soules out of mens bodies? well, a horne for my money when all's done.

The Song.

[Baltb.] *Sigh no more Ladies, sigh no more,
Men were deceivers ever,*

*One foote in Sea, and one on shore,
To one thing constant never,
Then sigh not so, but let them goe, 70
And be you blithe and bonnie,
Converting all your sounds of woe,
Into hey nony nony.*

*Sing no more ditties, sing no moe,
Of dumps so dull and heavy,
The 'fraud of men were ever so,
Since summer first was leavy,
Then sigh not so, &c.*

Prince. By my troth a good song.

Balth. And an ill singer, my Lord. 80

Prince. Ha, no, no faith, thou singst well enough for a shift.

Ben. And he had been a dog that should have howld thus, they would have hang'd him, and I pray God his bad voyce bode no mischiefe, I had as lief have heard the night-raven, come what plague could have come after it.

Prince. Yea marry, dost thou heare Balthasar? I pray thee get us some excellent musick: for to morrow night we would have it at the Lady Heroes chamber window. 90

Balth. The best I can, my Lord. Exit Balthasar.

Prince. Do so, farewell. Come hither Leonato, what was it you told me of to day, that your Niece Beatrice was in love with signior Benedicke?

Cla. O J, stalke on, stalke on, the foule sits. I did neyer thinke that Lady would have loved any man.

Leon. No, nor I neither, but most wonderful, that she should so dote on Signior Benedicke, whom shee hath in all outward behaviours seemed ever to abhorre.

Bene. Is't possible? sits the winde in that corner? 100

Leo. By my troth my Lord, I cannot tell what to thinke of it, but that she loves him with an intraged affection, it is past the infinite of thought.

Prince. May be she doth but counterfeit.

Claud. Faith like enough.

Leon. O God! counterfeit? there was never counterfeit of passion, came so neere the life of passion as she discovers it.

Prince. Why what effects of passion shewes she?

Claud. Baite the hooke well, this fish will bite. 110

Leon. What effects my Lord? shee will sit you, you heard my daughter tell you how.

Claud. She did indeed.

Prin. How, how I pray you? you amaze me, I would have thought her spirit had beene invincible against all assaults of affection.

Leo. I would have sworne it had, my Lord, especially against Benedicke.

Bene. I should thinke this a gull, but that the white-bearded fellow speakes it: knavery cannot sure hide himselfe in such reverence. 121

Claud. He hath tane th'infection, hold it up.

Prince. Hath shee made her affection known to Benedicke?

Leonato. No, and swears she never will, that's her torment.

Claud. 'Tis true indeed, so your daughter saies: shall I, saies she, that have so oft encountred him with scorn, write to him that I love him? 129

Leo. This saies shee now when shee is beginning to write to him, for shee'll be up twenty times a night, and there will she sit in her smocke, till she have writ a sheet of paper: my daughter tells us all.

Clau. Now you talke of a sheet of paper, I remember a pretty jest your daughter told us of.

Leon. O when she had writ it, & was reading it over, she found Benedicke and Beatrice betweene the sheete.

Clau. That. 138

• Leon. O she tore the letter into a thousand halfpence, raild at her self, that she should be, so immodest to write, to one that shee knew would flout her: I measure him, saies she, by my owne spirit, for I should flout him if hee writ to mee, yea though I love him, I should.

Clau. Then downe upon her knees she falls, weepes, sobs, beates her heart, teares her hayre, praies, curses, O sweet Benedicke, God give me patience.

Leon. She doth indeed, my daughter saies so, and the extasie hath so much overborne her, that my daughter is sometime afeard she will doe a desperate out-rage to her selfe, it is very true. 150

Princ. It were good that Benedicke knew of it by some other, if she will not discover it.

Clau. To what end? he would but make a sport of it, and torment the poore Lady worse.

Prin. And he should, it were an almes to hang him, shee's an excellent sweet Lady, and (out of all suspition,) she is vertuous.

Claudio. And she is exceeding wise.

Prince. In every thing, but in loving Benedicke. 159

Leon. O my Lord, wisdom and bloud combating in so tender a body, we have ten proofes to one, that bloud hath the victory, I am sorry for her, as I have just cause, being her Uncle, and her Guardian.

153. but make: make but-Q.

155. And: AN-CAPELL

Leon. Were it good thinke you? 168

Clau. Hero thinks surely she wil die, for she saies she will die, if hee love her not, and shee will die ere shee make her love knowne, and she will die if hee wooe her, rather than shee will bate one breath of her accustomed crossnesse.

Prin. She doth well, if she should make tender of her love, 'tis very possible hee'l scorne it, for the man (as you know all) hath a contemptible<sup>4</sup> spirit. <sup>4</sup> contemptuous

Clau. He is a very proper man.

Prin. He hath indeed a good outward happines.

Clau. 'Fore God, and in my minde very wise.

Prin. He doth indeed shew some sparkes that are like wit. 181

Leon. [Claud.] And I take him to be valiant.

Prin. As Hector, I assure you, and in the managing of quarrels you may see hee is wise, for either hee avoydes them with great discretion, or undertakes them with a Christian-like feare.

Leon. If hee doe feare God, a must necessarilie keepe peace, if hee breake the peace, hee ought to eptcr into a quarrell with feare and trembling. 189

Prin. And so will hee doe, for the man doth fear God, howsoever it seemes not in him, by some large jeasts hee will make: well, I am sorry for your niece, shall we goe see Benedicke, and tell him of her love.

Claud. Never tell him, my Lord, let hee weage it out with good counsell.

Leon. Nay that's impossible, she may weare her heart out first. 197

Prin. Well, we will heare further of it by your daughter, let it coole the while, I love Benedicke well, and I could wish he would modestly examine himselfe, to see how much he is unworthy to have so good a Lady.

Leon. My Lord, will you walke? dinner is ready.

Clau. If he do not doat on her upon this, I will never trust my expectation. <sup>1 seriously</sup>

Prin. Let there be the same Net spread for her, and that must your daughter and her gentlewoman carry: the sport will be, when they hold one an opinion of anothers dotage, and no such matter, that's the Scene that I would see, which will be meerey a dumbe shew: let us send her to call him into dinner. Exeunt 210

[Don Pedro, Claudio, and Leonato].

Bene. [Coming forward] This can be no tricke, the confèrence was sadly<sup>1</sup> | borne, they have the truth of this from Hero, they seeme | to pittie the Lady: it seemes her affections have the full | bent: love me? why it must be requited: I heare how I | am censur'd, they say I will beare my selfe proudly, if I | perceive the love come from her: they say too, that she | will rather die than give any signe of affection: I did ne- | ver thinke to marry, I must not seeme proud, happy are | they that heare their detractions, and can put them to mending: they say the Lady is faire, 'tis a truth, I can beare them witnesse: and vertuous, tis so, I cannot re- | proove it, and wise, but for loving me, by my troth it is no addition to her witte, nor no great argument of her folly; for I wil be horribly in love with her, I may chance have some odde quirkes and remnants of witte broken on mee, because I have rail'd so long against marriage: but doth not the appetite alter? a man loves the meat in his youth, that he cannot indure in his age. Shall quips and sentences, and these paper bullets of the braine awe a man from the careere of his humour? No, the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married, here comes Beatrice: by this day, shee's a faire Lady, I doe spie some markes of love in her.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. Against my wil I am sent to bid you come in to dinner.

Bene. Faire Beatrice, I thanke you for your paines.

Beat. I tooke no more paines for those thankes, then you take paines to thanke me, if it had been painfull, I would not have come.

241

Bene. You take pleasure then in the message.

Beat. Yea just so much as you may take upon a knives point, and choake a daw withall: you have no stomacke signior, fare you well.

Exit.

Bene. Ha, against my will I am sent to bid you come into dinner: there's a double meaning in that: I tooke no more paines for those thankes then you tooke paines to thanke me, that's as much as to say, any paines that I take for you is as easie as thankes: if I do not take pittie of her I am a villaine, if I doe not love her I am a Jew, I will goe get her picture.

Exit. 252

Actus Tertius.[Scene i. Leonato's garden.]Enter Hero and two Gentlemen, Margaret, and Ursula.

Hero. Good Margaret runne thee to the parlour,
 There shaft thou finde my Cosin Beatrice,
 Proposing<sup>1</sup> with the Prince and Claudio, <sup>1</sup> conversing
 Whisper her care, and tell her I and Ursula,
 Walke in the Orchard, and our whole discourse
 Is all of her, say that thou over-heardst us,
 And bid her scale into the pleached bower,
 Where hony-suckles ripened by the sunne, 10
 Forbid the sunne to enter: like favourites,
 Made proud by Princes, that advance their pride,<sup>2</sup>
 Against that power that bred it, there will she hide her,
 To listen our purpose, this is thy office,
 Beare thee well in it, and leave us alone.

Marg. Ile make her come I warrant you presently.
 [Exit.]

Hero. Now Ursula, when Beatrice doth come,
 As we do trace this alley up and downe,
 Our talke must onely be of Benedicke,
 When I doe name him, let it be thy part, 20
 To praise him more then ever man did merit,
 My talke to thee must be how Benedicke
 Is sicke in love with Beatrice: of this matter,
 A little Cupids crafty arrow made,
 That onely wounds by heare-say: now begin,

Enter Beatrice [behind].

For looke where Beatrice like a Lapwing runs
 Close by the ground, to heare our conference.

2. and two Gentlemen: out-Rowe.

Urs. The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish
 Cut with her golden ores the silver streame, 30
 And greedily devoure the treacherous baite:
 So angle we for Beatrice, who even now,
 Is couched in the wood-bine coverture,
 Feare you not my part of the Dialogue.

Her. Then go we neare her that her care loose nothing,
 Of the false sweete baite that we lay for it:

[Approaching the bower.]

No truly Ursula, she is too disdainfull,
 I know her spirits are as coy and wilde,
 As Haggerds<sup>1</sup> of the rocke. 1 wild hawks

Ursula. But are you sure, 40
 That Benedicke loves Beatrice so intirely?

Her. So saies the Prince, and my new trothed Lord.

Urs. And did they bid you tell her of it, Madam?

Her. They did intreate me to acquaint<sup>r</sup> her of it,
 But I perswaded them, if they lov'd Benedicke,
 To wish him wrastle with affection,
 And never to let Beatrice know of it.

Ursula. Why did you so, doth not the Gentleman
 Deserve as full as fortunate a bed,
 As ever Beatrice shall couch upon? 50

Hero. O God of love! I know he doth deserve,
 As much as may be yeelded to a man:
 But Nature never fram'd a womans heart,
 Of powder stuffe then that of Beatrice:
 Disdaine and Scorne ride sparkling in her eyes,
 Mis-prizing what they looke on, and her wit
 Values it selfe so highly, that to her
 All matter else seemes weake: she cannot love,
 Nor take no shape nor project of affection,

46. wrastle: wrestle—JOHNSON.

ABOUT NOTHING

[III. i. 56-86]

Shee is so selfe indeared.

60

Ursula. Sure I thinke so,
And therefore certainly it were not good
She knew his love, lest she make sport at it.

Hero. Why you speake truth, I never yet saw man,
How wise, how noble, yong, how rarely featur'd.
But she would spell him backward: if faire fac'd,
She would sweare the gentleman should be her sister:
If blacke, why Nature drawing of an anticke,
Made a foule blot: if tall, a launce ill headed:
If low, an agot very vildlie cut:

70

If speaking, why a vane blowne with all windes:
If silent, why a blocke moved with none.
So turnes she every man the wrong side out,
And never gives to Truth and Vertue, that
Which simplenesse and merit purchaseth.

Ursu. Sure, sure, such carping is not commendable.

Hero. No, not to be so odde, and from all fashions,
As Beatrice is, cannot be commendable,
But who dare tell her so? if I should speake,
She would mocke me into ayre, O she would laugh me
Out of my selfe, presse me to death with wit, 81
Therefore let Benedicke like covered fire,
Consume away in sighes, waste inwardly:
It were a better death, to die with mockes,
Which is as bad as die with tickling.

Ursu. Yet tell her of it, heare what shee will say.

Hero. No, rather I will goe to Benedicke,
And counsaile him to fight against his passion,
And truly Ile devise some honest slanders,
To staine my Cosin with, one doth not know, 90
How much an ill word may impoison liking.

70. agot: agate-MALONE.

84. 10 die: than die-Q.

Ursu. O doe not doe your cosin such a wrong,
She cannot be so much without true judgement,
Having so swift and excellent a wit
As she is priske to have, as to refuse
So rare a Gentleman as signior Benedicke.

Hero. He is the onely man of Italy,
Alwaies excepted, my deare Claudio.

Ursu. I pray you be not angry with me, Madame,
Speaking my fancy: Signior Benedicke, 100
For shape, for bearing argument and valour,
Goes formost in report through Italy.

Hero. Indeed he hath an excellent good name.

Ursu. His excellence did earne it ere he had it:
When are you married Madame?

Herb. Why everie day to morrow, come goe in,
Ile shew thee some attires, and have thy counsell,
Which is the best to furnish me to morrow.

Ursu. Shee's tane I warrant you,
We have caught her Madame? <sup>1 chances</sup> 110

Hero. If it prove so, then loving goes by haps,<sup>1</sup>
Some Cupid kills with arrowes, some with traps. Exit.

Beat. [Coming forward.] What fire is in mine cares?
can this be true? |

Stand I condemn'd for pride and scorne so much?

Contempt, farewell, and maiden pride, adew, .

No glory lives behinde the backe of such.

And Benedicke, love on, I will requite thee,

Taming my wilde heart to thy loving hand:

If thou dost love, my kindenesse shall incite thee

To binde our loves up in a holy band. 120

For others say thou dost deserve, and I

Beleeve it better then reportingly.

Exit.

[Scene ii. A room in Leonato's house.]

Enter Prince, Claudio, Benedicke, and Leonato.

Prince. I doe but stay till your marriage be consummate, and then go I toward Arragon.

Claud. Ile bring you thither my Lord, if you'l vouchsafe me.

Prin. Nay, that would be as great a soyle in the new glosse of your marriage, as to shew a childe his new coat and forbid him to weare it, I will onely bee bold with Benedick for his companie, for from the crowne of his head, to the sole of his foot, he is all mirth, he hath twice or thrice cut Cupid's bow-string, and the little hang-man dare not shoot at him, he hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper, for what his heart thinkes, his tongue speakes. 14

Bene. Gallants, I am not as I have bin.

Leo. So say I, methinkes you are sadder.

Claud. I hope he be in love.

Prin. Hang him truant, there's no true drop of bloud in him to be truly toucht with love, if he be sad, he wants money. 20

Bene. I have the tooth-ach.

Prin. Draw it.

Bene. Hang it.

Claud. You must hang it first, and draw it afterwards.

Prin. What? sigh for the tooth-ach.

Leon. Where is but a humour or a worme.

Bene. Well, every one cannot master a griefe, but hee that has it.

Claud. Yet say I, he is in love. 29

Prin. There is no appearance of fancie in him, unlesse

Clau. If he be not in love with some woman, there is no beleeving old signes, a brushes his hat a mornings, What should that bode?

Prin. Hath any man seene him at the Barbers? 39

Clau. No, but the Barbers man hath beene seen with him, and the olde ornament of his cheeke hath alreadie stufte tennis balls.

Leon. Indeed he lookes yonger than hee did, by the losse of a beard.

Prin. Nay a rubs himselfe with Civit, can you smell him out by that?

Clau. That's as much as to say, the sweet youth's in love.

Prin. The greatest note of it is his melancholy.

Clau. And when was he wont to wash his face? 50

Prin. Yea, or to paint himselfe? for the which I heare what they say of him.

Clau. Nay, but his jesting spirit, which is now crept into a lute-string, and now govern'd by stops.

Prin. Indeed that tels a heavy tale for him: conclude, he is in love.

Clau. Nay, but I know who loves him.

Prince. That would I know too, I warrant, one that knowes him not.

Cla. Yes, and his ill conditions, and in despite of all,
dies for him. 61

Prin. Shee shall be buried with her face upwards.

Bene. Yet is this no charme for the tooth-ake, old signior, walke aside with mee, I have studied eight or nine wise words to speake to you, which these hobby-horses must not heare. [Exeunt Benedick and Leonato.]

Prin. For my life to breake with him about Beatrice.

Cla. 'Tis even so, Hero and Margaret have by this played their parts with Beatrice, and then the two Beares will not bite one another when they meete. 70

Enter John the Bastard.

Bast. [D. John] My Lord and brother, God save you. |

Prin. Good den<sup>1</sup> brother. <sup>1</sup> good evening

Bast. If your leisure serv'd, I would speake with you.

Prince. In private?

Bast. If it please you, yet Count Claudio may heare, for what I would speake of, concerns him.

Prin. What's the matter?

Basta. [To Claudio] Meanes your Lordship to be married to mor- | row? 80

Prin. You know he does.

Bast. I know not that when he knowes what I know.

Cla. If there be any impediment, I pray you discover it.

Bast. You may thinke I love you not, let that appeare hereafter, and ayme better at me by that I now will manifest, for my brother (I thinke, he holds you well, and in daresnesse of heart) hath holpe to effect your ensuing marriage: surely sute ill spent, and labour ill bestowed.

Prin. Why, what's the matter? 90

Bastard. I came hither to tell you, and circumstances shortned, (for she hath beene too long a talking of) the Lady is disloyall.

Claudio. Who Hero?

Bast. Even shee, Leonatoes Hero, your Hero, every mans Hero.

Claudio. Disloyall?

97

Bast. The word is too good to paint out her wickednesse, I could say she were worse, thinke you of a worse title, and I will fit her to it: wonder not till further warrant: goe but with mee to night, you shal see her chamber window entred, even the night before her wedding day, if you love her, then to morrow wed her: But it would better fit your honour to change your minde.

Claudio. May this be so?

Prince. I will not thinke it.

Bast. If you dare not trust that you see, Confesse not that you know: if you will follow mee, I will shew you enough, and when you have seene more, & heard more, proceed accordingly.

110

Claudio. If I see any thing to night, why I should not marry her to morrow in the congregation, where I shold wedde, there will I shame her.

Prince. And as I wooed for thee to obtaine her, I will joyne with thee to disgrace her.

Bast. I will disparage her no farther, till you are my witnesses, beare it coldly but till night, and let the issue shew it selfe.

Prince. O day untowardly turned!

Claudio. O mischiefes strangelic thwarting!

120

Bastard. O plague right well prevented! so will you say, when you have seene the sequele.

Exit.

[Scene iii. A street.]

Enter Dogbery and his compartner [Verges] with the watch. |

Dog. Are you good men and true?

Verg. Yea, or else it were pittie but they should suffer salvation body and soule.

Dogb. Nay, that were a punishment too good for them, if they should have any allegiance in them, being chosen for the Princes watch.

Verges. Well, give them their charge, neighbour Dogbery. 9

Dog. First, who thinke you the most desartlesse man to be Constable?

Watch. 1. Hugh Ote-cake sir, or George Sea-coale, for they can write and reade.

Dogb. Come hither neighbour Sea-coale, God hath blest you with a good name: to be a wel-favoured man, is the gift of Fortune, but to write and reade, comes by Nature.

Watch 2. Both which Master Constable 18

Dogb. You have: I knew it would be your answer: well, for your favour sir, why give God thanks, & make no boast of it, and for your writing and reading, let that appeare when there is no need of such vanity, you are thought heere to be the most senslesse and fit man for the Constable of the watch: therefore beare you the lanthorne: this is your charge: You shall comprehend all vagrom men, you are to bid any man stand in the Princes name.

Watch 2. How, if a will not stand? 28

Dogb. Why then take no note of him, but let him go, and presently call the rest of the Watch together, and thanke God you are ridde of a knave.

Verges. If he will not stand when he is bidden, hee is none of the Princes subjects.

Dogb. True, and they are to meddle with none but the Princes subjects: you shall also make no noise in the streetes: for, for the Watch to babble and talke, is most tollerable, and not to be indured.

Watch. We will rather sleepe than talke, 'wee know what belongs to a Watch. 39

Dog. Why you speake like an ancient and most quiet watchman, for I cannot see how sleeeping should offend: only have a care that your bills<sup>1</sup> be not stolne: well, you are to call at all the Alehouses, and bid them that are drunke get them to bed. <sup>1 weapons</sup>

Watch. How if they will not?

Dogb. Why then let them alone till they are sober, if they make you not then the better answer, you may say, they are not the men you tooke them for."

Watch. Well sir. 49

Dogb. If you meet a theefe, you may suspect him, by vertue of your office, to be no true man: and for such kinde of men, the lesse you meddle or make with them, why the more is for your honesty.

Watch. If wee know him to be a thiefe, shall wee not lay hands on him.

Dogb. Truly by your office you may, but I think they that touch pitch will be defil'd: the most peaceable way for you, if you doe take a theefe, is, to let him shew himselfe what he is, and steale out of your company. 59

Ver. You have bin alwaies cal'd a merciful man partner.

Dog. Truly I would not hang a dog by my will, much more a man who hath anie honestie in him..

Verges. If you heare a child crie in the night you must call to the nurse, and bid her still it.

Watch. How if the nurse be asleepe and will not heare us?

Dog. Why then depart in peace, and let the childe wake her with crying; for the ewe that will not heare her Lambe when it baes, will never answeare a calfe when he bleates.

70

Verges. 'Tis verie true.

Dog. This is the end of the charge: you constable are to present the Princes owne person, if you meete the Prince in the night, you may staie him.

Verges. Nay birladie that I thinke a cannot.

Dog. Five shillings to one on't with anie man that knowes the Statues, he may staie him, marrie not without the prince be willing, for indeede the watch ought to offend no man, and it is an offence to stay a man against his will.

80

Verges. Birladie I thinke it be so.

Dog. Ha, ah ha, well masters good night, and there be anie matter of weight chances, call up me, keepe your fellowes counsailes, and your owne, and good night, come neighbour.

Watch. Well masters, we heare our charge, let us go sit here upon the Church bench till two, and then all to bed.

88

Dog. One word more, honest neighbors. I pray you watch about signior Leonatoes doore, for the wedding being there to morrow, there is a great coyle to night, adiew, be vigilant I beseech you.

Exeunt

[Dogberry and Verges].

Enter Borachio and Conrade.

Bor. What, Conrade?

Watch. [Aside] Peace, stir not.

75, 81. birladie: by'r lady—CAPELL.

82. and: and—2Rowe.

Bor. Conrade I say.

Con. Here man, I am at thy elbow.

Bor. Mas and my elbow itcht, I thought there wold a scabbe follow.

Con. I will owe thee an answer for that, and now forward with thy tale. 101

Bor. Stand thee close then under this penthouse, for it drissels raine, and I will, like a true drunkard, utter all to thee.

Watch. [Aside] Some treason masters, yet stand close.

Bor. Therefore know, I have earned of Don John a thousand Ducates.

Con. Is it possible that anie villanie should be so deare?

Bor. Thou should'st rather aske if it were possible anie vilanie should be so rich? for when rich villains have neede of poore ones, poore ones may make what price they will. 112

Con. I wonder at it.

Bor. That shewes thou art unconfirm'd,<sup>1</sup> thou knowest that the fashion of a doublet, or a hat, or a cloake, is nothing to a man. <sup>1</sup> inexperienced

Con. Yes, it is apparell.

Bor. I meane the fashion.

Con. Yes the fashion is the fashion. 119

Bor. Tush, I may as well say the foole's the foole, but seest thou not what a deformed theefe this fashion is?

Watch. [Aside] I know that deformed, a has bin a vile theefe, | this vii. yeares, a goes up and downe like a gentle man: | I remember his name.

Bor. Did'st thou not heare some bodie?

Con. No, 'twas the vaine on the house. 126

Bor. Seest thou not (I say) what a deformed thiefe

this fashion is, how giddily a turnes about all the Hot-blounds, betweene foureteene & five & thirtie, sometimes fashioning them like Pharaoes souldiours in the rechie<sup>1</sup> painting, sometime like god Bels priests in the old Church window, sometime like the shaven Hercules in the smircht worm eaten tapestrie, where his cod-peece seemes as massie as his club.

<sup>1</sup> dirty

Con. All this I see, and see that the fashion weares out more apparrell then the man; but art not thou thy selfe giddie with the fashion too that thou hast shifted out of thy tale into telling me of the fashion? 138

Bor. Nōt so neither, but know that I have to night wooed Margaret the Lady Heroes gentle-woman, by the name of Hero, she leanes me out at her mistris chamber-window, bids me a thousand times good night; I tell this tale vildly. I should first tell thee how the Prince Claudio and my Master planted, and placed, and possessed by my Master Don John, saw a far off in the Orchard this amiable incounter.

Con. And thought thy Margaret was Hero? 147

Bor. Two of them did, the Prince and Claudio, but the diuell my Master knew she was Margaret and partly by his oathes, which first possest them, partly by the darke night which did deceive them, but chiefly, by my villanie, which did confirme any slander that Don John had made, away went Claudio enraged, swore hee would meete her as he was apointed next morning at the Temple, and there, before the whole congregation shame her with what he saw o're night, and send her home againe without a husband.

Watch. 1. We charge you in the Princes name stand.

Conr. Masters, masters.

Watch. 2. Youle be made bring deformed forth I warrant you,

Conr. Masters, [1 Watch.] never speake, we charge you, let us o- | bey, you to goe with us.

Bor. We are like to prove a goodly commoditie, being taken up of these mens bils. 170

Conr. A commoditie in question I warrant you, come weele obey you. Exeunt.

" [Scene iv. Hero's apartment.]

Enter Hero, and Margaret, and Ursula.

Hero. Good Ursula wake my cosin Beatrice, and desire her to rise..

Ursu. I will Lady.

Her. And bid her come hither.

Urs. Well.

[Exit.]

Mar. Troth I thinke your other rebato<sup>1</sup> were better.

Bero. [Hero] No pray thee good Meg, Ile weare this.

Marg. By my troth's not so good, and I warrant your cosin will say so. <sup>1</sup> ruff 10

Bero. My cosin's a foole, and thou art another, ile weare none but this. 0

Mar. I like the new tire<sup>2</sup> within excellently, if the haire were a thought browner: and your gown's a most rare fashion yfaith, I saw the Dutchess<sup>3</sup> of Millaines gowne that they praise so. <sup>2</sup> head-dress

Mar. By my troth's but a night-gowne in respect of yours, cloth a gold and cuts, and lac'd with silver, set with pearles, downe sleeves, side sleeves, and skirts, round underborn with a blewish tinsel, but for a fine queint gracefull and excellent fashion, yours is worth ten on't.

Hero. God give mee joy to weare it, for my heart is exceeding heavy.

Marga. 'Twill be heavier soone, by the waight of a man.

Hero. Fie upon thee, art not asham'd? 27

Marg. Ut what Lady? of speaking honourably? is not marriage honourable in a beggar? is not your Lord honourable without marriage? I thinke you would have me say, saving your reverence a husband: and bad thin-king doe not wrest true speaking, Ile offend no body, is there any harme in the heavier for a husband? none I thinke, and it be the right husband, and the right wife, otherwise 'tis light and not heavy, aske my Lady Beatrice else, here she comes.

Enter Beatrice.

Hero. Good morrow Coze.

Beat. Good morrow sweet Hero. 39

Hero. Why how now? do you speake in the sick tune?

Beat. I am out of all other tune, me thinkes.

Mar. Claps into Light a love, (that goes without a burden,) do you sing it and Ile dance it.

Beat. Ye Light alove with your heeles, then if your husband have stables enough, you'll looke he shall lacke no barnes.<sup>1</sup>

Mar. For a hauke, a horse, or a husband?

Beat. For the letter that begins them all, H.

Mar. Well, and you be not turn'd Turke, there's no more saying by the starre.

Beat. What meanes the foole trow?

Mar. Nothing I, but God send, every one rheir harts desire.

Hero. These gloves the Count sent mee, they are an excellent perfume.

Beat. I am stuff cosin, I cannot smell. 60

Mar. A maid and stuff! there's goodly catching of colde.

Beat. O God helpe me, God help me, how long have you profest apprehension? *

Mar. Ever since you left it, doth not my wit become me rarely?

Beat. It is not scene enough, you should weare it in your cap, by my troth I am sicke.

Mar. Get you some of this distill'd carduus beuedictus and lay it to your heart, it is the onely thing for a qualm.

Hero. There thou prickst her with a thissell. 71

Beat. Benedictus, why benedictus? you have some morall<sup>1</sup> in this benedictus. <sup>1</sup> bidden meaning

Mar. Morall? no by my troth, I have no morall meaning, I meant plaine holy thissell, you may thinke perchance that I thinke you are in love, nay birlady I am not such a foole to thinke what I list, nor I list not to thinke

Beat. What pace is this that thy tongue keepes.

Mar. Not a false gallop.

Enter Ursula.

Ursula. Madam, withdraw, the Prince, the Count, signior Benedicke, Don John, and all the gallants of the towne are come to fetch you to Church. 91

Hero. Helpe to dresse mee good coze, good Meg, good Ursula. [Exeunt.]

[Scene v. Another room in Leonato's house.]

Enter Leonato, and the Constable [Dogberry], and the Headborough [Verges]. |

Leonato. What would you with mee, honest neighbour?

Const. Dog. Mary sir I would have some confidence with you, that decernes you nearely.

Leon. Briefe I pray you, for you see it is a busie time with me.

Const. Dog. Mary this it is sir.

Headb. [Verges.] Yes in truth it is sir.

Leon. What is it my good friends? 10

Con. Do. Goodman Verges sir speakes a little of the matter, an old man sir, and his wits are not so blunt, as God helpe I would desire they were, but infaith honest as the skin betweene his browes.

Head. Yes I thank God, I am as honest as any man living, that is an old man, and no-honester then I.

Con. Dog. Comparisons are odorous, palabras,<sup>1</sup> neighbour Verges. 1 words

Leon. Neighbours, you are tedious. 19

Con. Dog. It pleases your worship to say so, but we are the poore Dukes officers, but truely for mine owne part, if I were as tedious as a King I could finde in my heart to bestow it all of your worship.

Leon. All thy tediousnesse on me, ah? <sup>1</sup>

Const. Dog. Yea, and 'twere a thousand times more than 'tis, for I heare as good exclamation on your Worship as of any man in the Citie, and though I bee but a poore man, I am glad to heare it.

Head. And so am I.

Leon. I would faine know what you have to say. 30

Head. Marry sir our watch t'night, excepting your worships presence, have tane a couple of as arrant knaves as any in Messina.

Con. Dog. A good old man sir, hee will be talking as they say, when the age is in, the wit is out, God helpe us; it is a world to see: well said yfaith neighbour Verges, well, God's a good man, and two men ride of a horse, one must ride behinde, an honest soule yfaith sir, by my troth he is, as ever broke bre'd, but God is to bee worshipt, all men are not alike, alas good neighbour. 40

Exit. |

Const. I shall be suffigance.

49

Leon. Drinke some wine ere you goe: fare you well.

[Enter a Messenger.]

Messenger. My Lord, they stay for you to give your daughter to her husband.

Leon. Ile wait upon them, I am ready.

[Exeunt Leonato and Messenger.]

Dogb. Goe good partner, goe get you to Francis Seacoale, bid him bring his pen and inkehorne to the Gaole: we are now to examine those men.

Verges. And we must doe it wisely.

Dogb. Wee will spare for no witte I warrant you: heere's that shall drive some of them to a non-come, onely get the learned writer to set downe our excommunication, and meet me at the Jaile. Exeunt. 61

Actus Quartus.

[Scene i. A church.]

Enter Prince, Bastard, Leonato, Frier [Francis], Claudio, Benedicke, | Hero, and Beatrice.

Leonato. Come Frier Francis, be briefe, onely to the plaine forme of marriage, and you shal recount their particular duties afterwards.

45. aspitious: auspicious—2Rowe. 48. as may: as it may—Q.

56. examine those: examination these—Q.

Fran. [Frier] You come hither, my Lord, to marry this Lady. |

Clau. No.

Leo. To be married to her: Frier, you come to marry her. 10

Frier. Lady, you come hither to be married to this Count.

Hero. I doe.

Frier. If either of you know any inward impediment why you should not be conjoyned, I charge you on your soules to utter it.

Claud. Know you anie, Hero?

Hero. None my Lord.

Frier. Know you anie, Count?

Leon. I dare make his answer, None. 20

Clau. O what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do! [,not knowing what they do!]

Bene. How now! interjections? why then, some be of laughing, as ha, ha, he.

Clau. Stand thee by Frier, father, by your leave, Will you with free and unconstrained soule Give me this maid your daughter?

Leon. As freely sonne as God did give her me.

Cla. And what have I to give you back, whose worth May counterpoise this rich and precious gift? 30

Prin. Nothing, unlesse you render her againe.

Clau. Sweet Prince, you learn me noble thankfulnes: There Leonato, take her backe againe, Give not this rotten Orenge to your friend, Shee's but the signe and semblance of her honour: Behold how like a maid she blushes heere! O what authoritie and shew of truth

Can cunning sinne cover it selfe withall!
Comes not that bloud, as modest evidence,
To<sup>o</sup> wnesse simple Vertue? would you not sweare 40
All you that see her, that she were a maide,
By these exterior shewes? But she is none:
She knowes the heat of a luxurious bed:
Her blush is guiltinesse, not modestie.

Leonato. What doe you meane, my Lord?

Claudio. Not to be married,
Not to knit my soule to an approved wanton.

Leon. Deere my Lord, if you in your owne prooffe,
Have vanquisht the resistance of her youth,
And made defeat of her virginie. 50

Claudio. I know what you would say: if I have knowne her, |

You will say, she did imbrace me as a husband,
And so extenuate the forchand sinne: No Leonato,
I never tempted her with word too large,
But as a brother to his sister, shewed
Bashfull sinceritie and comely love.

Hero. And seem'd I ever otherwise to you?

Claudio. Out on thee seeming, I will write against it,
You seeme to me as Diane in her Orbe,
As chaste as is the budde ere it be blowne: 60
But you are more intemperate in your blood,
Than Venus, or those pampred animalls,
That rage in savage sensualitie.

Hero. Is my Lord well, that he doth speake so wide?

Leon. Sweete Prince, why speake not you?

Prince. What should I speake?

I stand dishonour'd that have gone about,
To linke my deare friend to a common stale.

Leon. Are these things spoken, or doe I but dreame?

Bast. Sir, they are spoken, and these things are true.

Bene. This lookes not like a nuptiall. 71

Hero. True, O God!

Claudio. Leonato, stand I here?

Is this the Prince? is this the Princes brother?

Is this face Heroes? are our eies our owne?

Leon. All this is so, but what of this my Lord?

Claudio. Let me but move one question to your daughter, |

And by that fatherly and kindly<sup>1</sup> power, . <sup>1</sup>natural
That you have in her, bid her answer truly.

Leo. I charge thee doe, as thou art my childe. 80

Hero. O God defend me how am I beset,
What kinde of catechizing call you this?

Claudio. To make you answer truly to your name.

Hero. Is it not Hero? who can blot that name
With any just reproach?

Claudio. Marry that can Hero,

Hero it selfe can blot out Heroes vertue.

What man was he, talkt with you yesternight,

Out at your window betwixt twelve and one?

Now if you are a maid, answer to this. 90

Hero. I talkt with no man at that howre my Lord.

Prince. Why then you are no maiden: Leonato,
I am sorry you must heare: upon mine honor,
My selfe, my brother, and this grieved Count
Did see her, heare her, at that howre last night,
Talke with a ruffian at her chamber window,
Who hath indeed most like a liberall villaine,
Confest the vile encounters they have had
A thousand times in secret.

80. doe, as: do so, as-Q.2F.

92. you are: are you-Q.

John. Fie, fie, they are not to be named my Lord,
Not to be spoken of, 101

There is not chastitie enough in language,
Without offence to utter them: thus pretty Lady
I am sorry for thy much misgovernment.

Claud. O Hero! what a Hero hadst thou beene
If halfe tliy outward graces had beene placed
About thy thoughts and counsailes of thy heart?
But fare thee well, most foule, most faire, farewell
Thou pure impiety, and impious puritie,
For thee Ile locke up all the gates of Love, 110
And on my cie-lids shall Conjecture hang,
To turne all beauty into thoughts of harme,
And never shall it more be gracious.

Leon. Hath no mans dagger here a point for me?
[Hero swoons.]

Beat. Why how now cosin, wherfore sink you down?

Basi. Come, let us go: these things come thus to light,
Smother her spirits up.

[Exeunt Don Pedro, Don John, and Claudio.]

Bene. How doth the Lady?

Beat. Dead I thinke, helpe uncle,

Hero, why Hero, Uncle, Signor Benedicke, Frier. 120

Leonato. O Fate! take not away thy heavy hand,
Death is the fairest cover for her shame
That may be wisht for.

Beatr. How now cosin Hero?

Fri. Have comfort Ladie.

Leon. Dost thou looke up?

Frier. Yea, wherfore should she not?

Leon. Wherfore? Why doth not every earthly thing
C-y shame upon her? Could she heere denie
The storic that is printed in her blood? 130

101. spoken: spoke-Q.

Do not live Hero, do not ope thine eyes:
 For did I thinke thou wouldst not quickly die,
 Thought I thy spirits were stronger then thy shames,
 My selfe would on the reward of reproaches
 Strike at thy life. Griev'd I, I had but one?
 Chid I, for that at frugal Natures frame?
 O one too much by thee: why had I one?
 Why ever was't thou lovelie in my cies?
 Why had I not with charitable hand
 Tooke up a beggars' issue at my gates, 140
 Who smeered thus, and mir'd with infamie,
 I might have said, no part of it is mine:
 This shame derives it selfe from unknowne loines,
 But mine, and mine I lov'd, and mine I prais'd,
 And mine that I was proud on mine so much,
 That I my selfe, was to my selfe not mine:
 Valewing of her, why she, O she is false
 Into a pit of Inke, that the wide sea
 Hath drops too few to wash her cleane againe,
 And salt too little, which may season give 150
 To her foule tainted flesh.

Ben. Sir, sir, be patient: for my part, I am so attired in wonder, I know not what to say.

Bea. O on my soule my cosin is belied.

Ben. Ladie, were you her bedfellow last night?

Bea. No truly: not although untill last night,
 I have this twelvemonth bin her bedfellow.

Leon. Confirm'd, confirm'd, O that is stronger made
 Which was before barr'd up with ribs of iron.
 Would the Princes lie, and Claudio lie, 160

134. reward: rearward—Q.2-4F. 141. smeered: smirched—Q.

151-3. 3 ll. ending patient, wonder, say—Pope.

156. truly: not: truly, not;—Rowe.

160. the Princes: the two princes—Q.

Who lov'd her so, that speaking of her foulnesse,
Wash'd it with teares? Hence from her, let her die.

Fxi. Heare me a little, for I have onely bene silent so long, and given way unto this course of fortune, by noting of the Ladie, I have markt.

A thousand blushing apparitions,
To start into her face, a thousand innocent shames,
In Angel whitenesse beare away those blushes,
And in her eie there hath appear'd a fire
To burne the errors that these Princes hold 170
Against her maiden truth. Call me a foole,
Trust not my reading, nor my observations,
Which with experimental seale doth warrant
The tenure of my booke: trust not my age,
My reverence, calling, nor divinitie,
If this swæet Ladie lye not guiltlesse heere,
Under some biting error.

Leo. Friar, it cannot be:

Thou seest that all the Grace that she hath left,
Is, that she wil not adde to her damnation, 180
A sinne of perjury, she not denies it:
Why seek'st thou then to cover with excuse,
That which appears in proper nakednesse?

Fri. Ladie, what man is he you are accus'd of?

Hero. They know that do accuse me, I know none:
If I know more of any man alive
Then that which maiden modestie doth warrant,
Let all my sinnes lacke mercy. O my Father,
Prove you that any man with me converst,
At houres unmeete, or that I yesternight 190
Maintain'd the change of words with any creature,
Refuse me, hate me, torture me to death.

163-5. 4 ll. ending been, unto, fortune, mark'd-CAMBRIDGE.

168. beare: beat-Q.

174. tenure: tenour-THEOBALD.

Fri. There is some strange misprision<sup>1</sup> in the Princes.

Ben. Two of them have the verie bent of honor,
And if their wisdomes be misled in this: <sup>1</sup> mistake
The practise of it lives in John the bastard,
Whose spirits toile in frame of villanies.

Leo. I know not: if they speake but truth of her,
These hands shall teare her: If they wrong her honour,
The proudest of them shall wel heare of it. 200
Time hath not yet so dried this bloud of mine,
Nor age so eate up my invention,
Nor Fortune made such havocke of my meanes,
Nor my bad life refit me so much of friends,
But they shall finde, awak'd in such a kinde,
Both strength of limbe, and policie of minde,
Ability in meanes, and choise of friends,
To quit me of them throughly.

Fri. Pause awhile:

And let my counsell sway you in this case, 210
Your daughter heere the Princesse (left for dead)
Let her awhile be secretly kept in,
And publish it, that she is dead indeed:
Maintaine a mourning ostentation,
And on your Families old monument,
Hang mournfull Epitaphes, and do all rites,
That appertaine unto a buriall.

Leon. What shall become of this? What wil this do?

Fri. Marry this wel carried, shall on her behalfe,
Change slander to remorse, that is some good, 220
But not for that dreame I on this strange course,
But on this travaile looke for greater birth:
She dying, as it must be so maintain'd,
Upon the instant that she was accus'd,

ABOUT NOTHING

[IV. i. 218-249]

Shal be lamented, pittied, and excus'd
 Of every hearer: for it so fals out,
 That what we have, we prize not to the worth,
 Whiles we enjoy it; but being lack'd and lost,
 Why then we racke the value, then we finde
 The vertue that possession would not shew us 230
 Whiles it was ours, so will it fare with Claudio:
 When he shal heare she dyed upon his words,
 Th' Idea of her life shal sweetly, creepe
 Into his study of Imagination.
 And every lovely Organ of her life,
 Shall come apparel'd in more precious habite:
 More moving delicate, and ful of life,
 Into the eye and prospect of his soule
 Then when she liv'd indeed: then shal he mourne,
 If ever Love had interest in his Liver, 240
 And wish he had not so accused her:
 No, though he thought his accusation true:
 Let this be so, and doubt not but successe
 Wil fashion the event in better shape,
 Then I can lay it downe in likelihood.
 But if all ayme but this be levelld false,
 The supposition of the Ladies death,
 Will quench the wonder of her infamie.
 And if it sort not well, you may conceale her,
 As best befits her wounded reputation, 250
 In some reclusive and religious life,
 Out of all eyes, tongnes, mindes and injuries.
Bene. Signior Leonato, let the Frier advise you,
 And though you know my inwardnesse<sup>1</sup> and love
 Is very much unto the Prince and Claudio.<sup>1</sup> intimacy
 Yet, by mine honor, I will deale in this,

252. tongnes: tongues—Q.2-4F.

As secretly and justlie, as your soule
Should with your bodie.

Leon. Being that I flow in greefe,
The smallest twine may lead me. 260

Frier. 'Tis well consented, presently away,
For to strange sores, strangely they straine the cure,
Come Lady, die to live, this wedding day
Perhaps is but prolong'd, have patience & endure. Exit.

[Exeunt all but Benedick and Beatrice.]

Bene. Lady Beatrice, have you wept all this while?

Beat. Yea, and I will weepe a while longer.

Bene. I will not desire that.

Beat. You have no reason, I doe it freely.

Bene. Surelie I do beleewe your fair cosin is wrong'd.

Beat. 'Ah, how much might the man deserve of mee that would right her! 271

Bene. Is there any way to shew such friendship?

Beat. A verie even way, but no such friend.

Bene. May a man doe it?

Beat. It is a mans office, but not yours.

Bene. I doe love nothing in the world so well as you,
is not that strange?

Beat. As strange as the thing I know not, it were as possible for me to say, I loved nothing so well as you, but beleewe me not, and yet I lie not, I confesse nothing, nor
I deny nothing, I am sorry for my cousin. 281

Bene. By my sword Beatrice thou lov'st me.

Beat. Doe not sweare by it and eat it.

Bene. I will sweare by it that you love mee, and I will make him eat it that sayes I love not you.

Beat. Will you not eat your word?

Bene. With no sawce that can be devised to it, I protest I love thee.

283. by it: out-Q.

Beat. Why then God forgive me.

Bene. What offence sweet Beatrice? 290

Beat. You have stayed me in a happy howre, I was about to protest I loved you.

Bene. And doe it with all thy heart.

Beat. I love you with so much of my heart, that none is left to protest.

Bened. Come, bid me doe any thing for thee.

Beat. Kill Claudio.

Bene. Ha, not for the wide world.

Beat. You kill me to denie, farewell.

Bene. 'Tarrise sweet Beatrice. 300

Beat. I am gone, though I am heere, there is no love in you, nay I pray you let me goe.

Bene. Beatrice.

Beat. Infaith I will goe.

Bene. Wee'll be friends first.

Beat. You dare easier be friends with mee, than fight with mine enemy.

Bene. Is Claudio thineemie? 308

Beat. Is a not approved in the height a villaine, that hath slandered, scorned, dishonoured my kinswoman? O that I were a man! what, beare her in hand untill they come to take hands, and then with publike accusation uncovered slander, unmitigated rancour? O God that I were a man! I would eat his heart in the market-placc.

Bene. Heare me Beatrice.

Beat. Talke with a man out at a window, a proper saying.

Bene. Nay but Beatrice.

Beat. Sweet Hero, she is wrong'd, shee is slandered, she is undone. 320

299. denie: 'deny it-Q.

309. a: he-Rowz.

Bene. Beat?

Beat. Princes and Counties<sup>1</sup>! surelie a Princely testimonie, a goodly Count, Comfect,<sup>2</sup> a sweet Gallant surelie, O that I were a man for his sake! or that I had any friend would be a man for my sake! But manhood is melted into cursies, valour into complement, and men are onelie turned into tongue, and trim ones too: he is now as valiant as Hercules, that only tells a lie, and swears it: I cannot be a man with wishing, therefore I will die a woman with grieving.

<sup>1</sup>noblemen 330

Bene. Tarry good Beatrice, by this hand I love thee.

Beat. Use it for my love some other way then swearing by it.

<sup>2</sup>affected nobleman

Bened. Thinke you in your soule the Count Claudio hath wrong'd Hero?

Beat. Yea, as sure as I have a thought, or a soule.

Bene. Enough, I am engagde, I will challenge him, I will kisse your hand, and so leave you: by this hand Claudio shall render me a deere account: as you heare of me, so thinke of me: goe comfort your coosin, I must say she is dead, and so farewell.

338. so leave: so I leave-Q.

Sexton. Which be the malefactors?

Andrew. [Dog.] Marry that am I, and my partner.

Cowley. [Verg.] Nay that's certaine, wee have the exhibition | to exarjine.

Sexton. But which are the offenders that are to be examined, let them come before master Constable. 10

Kemp. [Dog.] Yea marry, let them come before mee, what is | your name, friend?

Bor. Borachio.

Kem. [Dog.] Pray write downe Borachio. Yours sirra. |

Con. I am a Gentleman sir, and my name is Conrade.

Kee. [Dog.] Write downe Master gentleman Conrade: mai- | sters, doe you serve God:

[Both. Yea, sir, we hope. |

Kem. [Dog.] Write downe, that they hope they serve God: | and write God first, for God defend but God should goe | before such villaines:] maisters, it is proved alreadie | that you are little better than false knaves, and it will goe | neere to be thought so shortly, how answer you for your | selves? 20

Kemp. [Dog.] Flat Burglarie as ever was committed. †

Const. [Verg.] Yea by th'masse that it is,

Sexton. What else fellow?

Watch 1. And that Count Claudio did meane upon his words, to disgrace Hero before the whole assembly, and not marry her. 51

Kemp. [Dog.] O villaine! thou wilt be condemn'd into ever- | lasting redemption for this.

Sexton. What else?

Watch. This is all.

Sexton. And this is more masters then you can deny,
Prince John is this morning secretly stolne away: Hero was in this manner accus'd, in this very manner refus'd, and upon the griefe of this sodainely died: Master Constable, let these men be bound, and brought to Leonato,
I will goe before, and shew him their examination. 61
[Exit.]

Const. [Dog.] Come, let them be opinion'd.

[Scene i. Before Leonato's house.]

Enter Leonato and his brother [Antonio].

Brother. [Ant.] If you goe on thus, you will kill your

And 'tis not wisdom thus to second grieffe,
Against your selfe.

Leon. I pray thee cease thy counsaile,

75. any in: any is in—Q.

Which falls into mine cares as profitlesse,
 As water in a sieve: give not me counsaile,
 Nor let no comfort delight mine eare,
 But such a one whose wrongs doth sute with mine. 10
 Bring me a father that so lov'd his childe,
 Whose joy of her is over-whelmed like mine,
 And bid him speake of patience,
 Measure his woe the length and bredth of mine,
 And let it answere every straine for straine,
 As thus for thus, and such a griefe for such,
 In every lineament, branch, shape, and forme:
 If such a one will smile and stroke his beart,
 And sorrow, wagge, crie hem, when he should grone,
 Patch griefe with proverbs, make misfortune drunke, 20
 With candle-wasters: bring him yet to me,
 And I of him will gather patience:
 But there is no such man, for brother, men,
 Can counsaile, and speake comfort to that griefe,
 Which they themselves not feele, but tasting it,
 Their counsaile turnes to passion, which before,
 Would give preceptiall medicinē to rage,
 Fetter strong madnesse in a silken thred,
 Charme ache with ayre, and agony with words,
 No, no, 'tis all mens office, to speake patience 30
 To those that wring under the load of sorrow:
 But no mans vertue nor sufficiencie
 To be so morall, when he shall endure
 The like himselfe: therefore give me no counsaile,
 My griefs cry lowder then advertisement.<sup>1</sup> <sup>1</sup> admonition

Leonato. I pray thee peace, I will be flesh and bloud,
 For there was never yet Philosopher,

9. comfort: comforter—Q.10. doth: do—Q.19. And sorrow: Bid sorrow—CAPPELL.

That could endure the tooth-ake patiently,
How ever they have writ the stile of gods, 40
And made a push at chance and sufferance.

Brother. Yet bend not all the harme upon your selfe,
Make those that doe offend you, suffer too.

Leon. There thou speak'st reason, nay I will doe so,
My soule doth tell me, Hero is belied,
And that shall Claudio know, so shall the Prince,
And all of them that thus dishonour her.

Enter Prince and Claudio.

Brot. Here comes the Prince and Claudio hastily.

Prin. Good den, good den. 50

Clau. Good day to both of you.

Leon. Heare you my Lords?

Prin. We have some haste Leonato.

Leo. Some haste my Lord! wel, fareyouwel my Lord,
Are you so hasty now? well, all is one.

Prin. Nay, do not quarrell with us, good old man.

Brot. If he could rife himselfe with quarrelling,
Some of us would lie low.

Claud. Who wrongs him?

Leon. Marry thou dost wrong me, thou dissembler,
thou. | 60

Nay, never lay thy hand upon thy sword,
I feare thee not.

Claud. Marry beshrew my hand,
If it should give your age such cause of feare,
Infaieth my hand meant nothing to my sword.

Leonato. Tush, tush, man, never fleere and jest at me,
I asake not like a dotard, nor a foole,
As under priviledge of age to bragge,
What I have done being yong, or what would doe,

Were I not old, know Claudio to thy head, 70
 Thou hast so wrong'd my innocent childe and me,
 That I am forc'd to lay my reverence by,
 And with grey haire and bruise of many daies,
 Doe challenge thee to triall of a man,
 I say thou hast belied mine innocent childe,
 Thy slander hath gone through and through her heart,
 And she lies buried with her ancestors:
 O in a tombe where never scandall slept,
 Save this of hers, fram'd by thy villanie.

Claud. My villany? 80

Leonato. Thine Claudio, thine I say.

Prin. You say not right old man.

Leog. My Lord, my Lord,

Ile prove it on his body if he dare,
 Despight his nice fence, and his active practise,
 His Maie of youth, and bloome of lustihood.

Claud. Away, I will not have to do with you.

Leo. Canst thou so daffe<sup>1</sup> me? thou hast kild my child,
 If thou kilst me, boy, thou shalt kill a man. <sup>1</sup> befool

Bro. He shall kill two of us, and men indeed, 90
 But that's no matter, let him kill one first:

Win me and weare me, let him answere me,
 Come follow me boy, come sir boy, come follow me
 Sir boy, ile whip you from your foyning<sup>2</sup> fence,
 Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will. <sup>2</sup> thrusting

Leon. Brother.

Brot. Content your self, God knows I lov'd my neece,
 And she is dead, slander'd to death by villaines,
 That dare as well answer a man indeede,
 As I dare take a serpent by the tongue. 100
 Boyes, apes, braggarts, Jackes, milke-sops.

Leon. Brother Anthony.

ABOUT NOTHING

[V. i. 93-119]

Bro. Hold you content, what man? I know them, yea
And what they weigh, even to the utmost scruple,
Scambling, out-facing, fashion-monging boyes,
That lye, and cog,<sup>1</sup> and flout, deprave, and slander,
Goe antiquely, and show outward hidiousnesse,
And speake of halfe a dozen dang'rous words,
How they<sup>o</sup> might hurt their enemies, if they durst.
And this is all. <sup>1</sup> deceive 110

Leon. But brother Anthonie.

Ant. Come, 'tis no matter,
Do not you meddle, let me deale in this.

Pri. Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience
My heart is sorry for your daughters death:
But on my honour she was charg'd with nothing
But what was true, and very full of proofe.

Leon. My Lord, my Lord.

Prin. I will not heare you.

Enter Benedicke.

120

Leo. No come brother, away, I will be heard.

Exeunt ambo.

Bro. And shall, or some of us will smart for it.

Prin. See, see, here comes the man we went to seeke.

Clau. Now signior, what newes?

Ben. Good day my Lord.

Prin. Welcome signior, you are almost come to part almost a fray.

Clau. Wee had likt to have had our two noses snap off with two old men without teeth. 130

Prin. Leonato and his brother, what think'st thou? had wee fought, I doubt we should have beene too yong for them.

120. Enter Benedicke: shifted to after l. 124—CAPELL.

Ben. In a false quarrell there is no true valour, I came to seeke you both.

Clau. We have beene up and downe to seeke thee; for we are high prooffe melancholly, and would faine have it beaten away, wilt thou use thy wit?

Ben. It is in my scabberd, shall I draw it?

Prin. Doest thou weare thy wit by thy side? 140

Clau. Never any did so, though verie many have been beside their wit, I will bid thee drawe, as we do the minstrels, draw to pleasure us.

Prin. As I am an honest man he lookes pale, art thou sicke, or angrie?

Clau. What, courage man: what though care kil'd a cat, thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill care.

Ben. Sir, I shall meete your wit in the carcere, and you charge it against me, I pray you chuse another subject. 150

Clau. Nay then give him another staffe, this last was broke crosse.

Prin. By this light, he changes more and more, I thinke he be angrie indeede.

Clau. If he be, he knowes how to turne his girdle.

Ben. Shall I speake a word in your care?

Clau. God blesse me from a challenge.

Ben. [Aside to Claudio] You are a villaine, I jest not, I will make it good | how you dare, with what you dare, and when you dare: | doe me right, or I will protest your cowardise: you have | kill'd a sweete Ladie, and her death shall fall heavie on | you, let me heare from you. | 162

Clau. Well, I will meete you, so I may have good cheare.

Prin. What, a feast, a feast?

Clau. I faith I thanke him, he hath bid me to a calves head and a Capon, the which if I doe not carve most curiously, say my knife's naught, shall I not finde a wood-cocke too?

Ben. Sir, your wit ambles well, it goes easily. 170

Prin. Ile tell thee how Beatrice prais'd thy wit the other day: I said thou hadst a fine wit: true saies she, a fine little one: no said I, a great wit: right saies shee, a great grosse one: nay said I, a good wit: just said she, it hurts no body: nay said I, the gentleman is wise: certain said she, a wise gentleman: nay said I, he hath the tongues: that I beleeeve said shee, for hee swore a thing to me on munday night, which he forswore on tuesday morning: there's a double tongue, there's two tongues: thus did shee an howre together trans-shape thy particular virtues, yet at last she concluded with a sigh, thou wast the proprest man in Italie. 182

Clau. For the which she wept heartily, and said shee car'd not.

Prin. Yea that she did, but yet for all that, and if shee did not hate him deadlie, shee would love him dearly, the old mans daughter told us all.

Clau. All, all, and moreover, God saw him when he was hid in the garden.

Prin. But when shall we set the savage Bulls hornes on the sensible Benedicks head? 191

Clau. Yea and text under-neath, heere dwells Benedicke the married man.

Ben. Fare you well, Boy, you know my minde, I will leave you now to your gossep-like humor, you breake jests as praggards do their blades, which God be thankes, hurt not: my Lord, for your manie courtesies I thank

Prin. He is in earnest.

Clau. In most profound earnest, and Ile warrant you, for the love of Beatrice.

Prin. And hath challeng'd thee.

Clau. Most sincerely.

Prin. What a prettie thing man is, when he goes in his doublet and hose, and leaves off his wit.

*Enter Constable [Dogberry, Verges, and the Watch],

Clau. He is then a Giant to an Ape, but there is an Ape a Doctor to such a man.

Prin. But soft you, let me be, plucke up my heart, and be sad, did he not say my brother was fled?

Const. [Dog.] Come you sir, if justice cannot tame you, shee | shall nere weigh more reasons in her balance, nay, and | you be a cursing hypocrite once, you must be lookt to. |

Prin. How now, two of my brothers men bound? Borachio one.

Clau. Harken after their offence my Lord. 220

Prin. Officers, what offence have these men done?

Const. Marrie sir, they have committed false report, moreover they have spoken untruths, secondarily they are slanders, sixt and lastly, they have belyed a Ladie, thirdly, they have verified unjust things, and to conclude they are lying knaves.

Prin. First I aske thee what they have done, thirdlie I aske thee what's their offence, sixt and lastlie why they are committed, and to conclude, what you lay to their charge. 230

Clau. Rightlie reasoned, and in his owne division, and by my troth there's one meaning well suted.

Prin. Who have you offended masters, that you are thus bound to your answer? this learned Constable is too cunning to be understood, what's your offence?

Bor. Sweete Prince, let me go no farther to mine answer: do you heare me, and let this Count kill mee: I have deceived even your verie eies: what your wisdomes could not discover, these shallow fooles have brought to light, who in the night overheard me confessing to this man, how Don John your brother incensed<sup>1</sup> me to slander the Ladie Hero, how you were brought into the Orchard, and saw me court Margaret in Heroes garments, how you disgrac'd her when you should marrie her: my villanie they have upon record, which I had rather seale with my death, then repeate over to my shame: the Ladie is dead upon mine and my masters false accusation: and briefelie, I desire nothing but the reward of a villaine. <sup>instigated</sup>

Prin. Runs not this speech like yron through your bloud? 251

Clau. I have drunke poison whiles he utter'd it.

Prin. But did my Brother set thee on to this?

Bor. Yea, and paid me richly for the practise of it.

Prin. He is compos'd and fram'd of treacherie, And fled he is upon this villanie.

Clau. Sweet Hero, now thy image doth appeare In the rare semblance that I lov'd it first. 258

Const. Come, bring away the plaintiffes, by this time

Leon. Which is the villaine? let me see his eies,
That when I note another man like him,
I may avoide him: which of these is he?

Bor. If you would know your wronger, looke on me.

Leon. Art thou thou the slave that with thy breath hast kild mine innocent childe? 271

Bor. Yea, even I alone.

Leo. No, not so villaine, thou beliest thy selfe,
Here stand a paire of honourable men,
A third is fled that had a hand in it:
I thanke you Princes for my daughters death,
Record it with your high and worthie deedes,

Your neece regards me with an eye of favour.

Leo. That eye my daughter lent her, 'tis most true.

Bene. And I doe with an eye of love requite her.

Leo. The sight whereof I thinke you had from me,
From Claudio, and the Prince, but what's your will?

Bened. Your answer sir is Enigmaticall,
But for my will, my will is, your good will
May stand with ours; this day to be conjoyn'd, 30
In the state of honourable marriage,
In which (good Frier) I shall desire your helpe.

Leon. My heart is with your liking.

Frier. And my helpe.

[Heere comes the Prince and Claudio.]

Enter Prince and Claudio, with attendants.

Prin. Good morrow to this faire assembly.

Leo. Good morrow Prince, good morrow Claudio:
